LABOUR WOMEN AND HOME CRAFTS

Cake-Making Without Tears.

MODERN COOKERY METHODS.

Do you know that the best way to mix the ingredients of a sponge quickly, is to stand your basin over a saucepan of hot water while you beat the eggs and sugar, till the basin is thoroughly warm?

That the best way to beat a sponge is to use a wire whisk which costs you sixpence?

That one of the commonest causes of a rich fruit cake turning out heavy with the fruit sunk to the bottom, is the use of too much raising agent?

That a palette knife will save a cake-maker wasting a great deal of her cake mixture and save its own cost in a year?

That a cake made with water is more likely to be light than one made with milk?

That ducks' eggs are excellent for cake-making?

And that if a cake browns more on one side than the other, the balance of the heat of the oven is probably being disturbed by a draft of air from a door or window?

These were only a few of the practical hints on successful cake-making which women members of the Ilford Trades and Labour Council picked up when they were the guests of the Ilford Gaslight and Coke Company at a cooking demonstration arranged at the High-road offices of the company on Wednesday.

The visitors were welcomed on behalf of the company by Councillor Braithwaite, the local manager, who thanked them for their interest in the work of the company, and hoped that they would find the afternoon had been interestly and profitably spent.

All the cooking at the demonstration was performed on one of the most modern type of gas cookers, a New World model. The demonstrator explained that the heat of this kind of stove is automatically controlled by a bar of sensitive metal which passed along the top of the oven. The bar of metal expands or contracts according to the heat attained in the oven. As it expands with the growing heat, it gradually cuts off the supply of gas—although the main tap of the stove is turned on full all the time the cooking is in progress and so the oven is kept at a constant temperature.

A dial at the side of the stove controls this bar, and enables the cook to choose to what heat she wishes to raise her oven and to keep it constantly at this temperature while her cooking is in progress.

The demonstration included the making of two special types of cake—small, rolled sponge cakes, and coffee eclairs.

The recipes were slowly dictated so that each member of the party was able to take them down for herself.

SPONGE-MAKING.

These were the quantities used for the sponge cakes:—

3 eggs.
6 ozs. caster sugar.
5 ozs. plain household flour.
½ teaspoonful baking powder.
1 tablespoonful warm water.
Pinch of salt.

Then the demonstrator showed the method of cooking. The eggs were beaten in a basin and the caster sugar added. These were whisked together for several minutes with the basin standing over a saucepan of hot water, the demonstrator explaining how the gentle heat helped the mixture to thicken quickly, provided the heat was not allowed to become great enough to cook the eggs.

The dry ingredients were next sieved into the mixture and well beaten and the water added, and the mixture spread on greased paper on flat tins.

The oven had been lighted at the beginning of the demonstration, and the dial set for the requisite heat. After a quarter of an hour, the demonstrator explained, the right heat had been attained, and this heat would be automatically kept by the oven itself without any supervision or interference of any kind. It would grow neither hotter nor colder so long as the dial and the tap were not moved.

The sponge tins were placed in the oven, and after a few moments taken out again with the mixture lightly cooked, just ready to be rolled. It was explained that a cake can be tested simply by pressing the surface lightly with one finger, and there is no need to insert a knife or knitting needle. If the finger leaves no impression, and the surface of the cake seems springy, then the mixture is well cooked. A sponge which is at all over-cooked will not roll.

The jam to be used for the inside of the sponge, was warmed and mixed with a little lemon juice. The sponge was laid on a sugared paper, the hard edges cut off, the jam spread, and the sponge cut into small pieces of the appropriate size and rolled.

COFFEE ECLAIRS.

For the eclairs, the following quantities were used:—

1½ ozs. butter.
2 eggs.
Pinch of salt.

The oven was set to the appropriate heat and the butter and water put into a saucepan and boiled. The flour was warmed and then sieved into the mixture in the saucepan, which was taken off the stove for the purpose. The saucepan was returned to the light and the mixture cooked until it left the sides of the saucepan clean. It was taken from the stove, cooled a little and the eggs added, and the salt.

The demonstrator then showed how a forcing-bag could be made from a short length of calico and a bone curtain ring. The eclair mixture shaped much better if it was passed through such a bag, the thread of the mixture being cut off with a knife at about every three inches, to form cakes of a suitable size.

The eclairs were placed on a flat tin and put in the oven, which had automatically adjusted itself to the right heat for their cooking.

An icing for the eclairs was made by mixing two ounces of icing sugar with coffee essence and a little water. The finished eclairs were cut in half, and cream inserted, and the top half coated with the coffee mixture.

Visitors then sat down to a tea which included the fruits of the afternoon's demonstration. They were given an opportunity to ask advice on any of their own personal cooking problems, and their questions drew forth a fund of useful information on the art of successful cooking.

Local Government.

"POPULAR" COUNCIL OFFICIALS

The Power Behind the Throne.

By WILLIAM MABANE, M.P.

SURELY it is one of the most difficult things in the world for an "official" to be popular—or even understood.

Deeply ingrained in the minds of most men and women is the notion that an official is a person whose function is either to prevent them from doing something they want to do or to extort money from them they do not want to pay. So every official starts life with a strong prejudice against him.

But without competent and hard-working officials the great family business of local government would soon be in a sad mess. They are the power behind the throne. The directors of the concern are the councillors chosen by the ratepayers, but the councillors can only direct the main lines of policy. They cannot carry out the detailed administration. Therefore a principal duty of councillors is to appoint the very best officials they can find to follow up the work they themselves inaugurate.

In earlier times, when the work of local authorities was very restricted, the officials occupied a very different position. The "council clerks" of those days were a downtrodden race, poorly paid, without any specialised knowledge, and with a very limited responsibility. Things are different to-day.

Very few people realise that the growth of local government work has created a kind of second Civil Service, in which employment is as honourable, and ability as great, as in the Government service in Whitehall. To-day the head of the smallest department controls an expenditure greater than that of his whole authority a century ago.

Nor is the improved status confined to heads of departments. The heads have around them able and qualified assistants, there is a trained clerical staff, and down to the newest junior a high quality is required of all who wish to enter the service. In the ratepayer's interest it is very properly so.

SERVANTS OF THE CITIZENS.

But while ratepayers desire the quality, they are not always so willing to pay for it. Many, who themselves may not be finding the times too prosperous, cast envious eyes at the entrenched security of those who are in effect their servants. To them the salaries of £1,000, £2,000, £3,000 and even more paid to senior officials appear grossly excessive, and often they complain.

These complaints have little justification. Now that the work of local government has been split up into departments, each department must have at its head a man of outstanding qualifications and with specialised knowledge. To this he must add a high degree of business acumen.

THE EXPERT IN COMMAND.

The trading departments, transport, gas, electricity, and the like, must be controlled by men who are the equals or the superiors in technical ability and administrative capacity to the managing directors of the largest private concerns.

The departments of Education, Health, Housing and so on must be in the hands of men pre-eminent in their profession, whether it be education, medicine, or architecture. The services of these men cannot be commanded at a cheap rate. With men, or with goods, the cheap is usually the wasteful in the long run. Often, too, these officials could, unless they preferred the public service, earn much higher salaries outside it than within it.

There is another, and very important, reason why a local authority should not underpay any of its officials, from the highest to the lowest. The service must be kept free from corruption. In this respect particularly the British system of local government is the envy of the world. There are almost unlimited opportunities for officials to misuse the ratepayers' money, either directly or indirectly by the taking of bribes for particular favours. There are black sheep everywhere, and occasionally corrupt practices are dragged into the light. The very rarity of these occurrences is evidence of the high credit of the officials.

Under-payment or insecurity most often drive men to corrupt practices. America's municipalities afford abundant evidence of the evils of insecurity. Office, on the other side of the Atlantic, is distributed as a form of political patronage. Consequently, the office-holders never knowing when a turn of the political wheel will drive them from their places, make as much hay as they can while the sun shines, at the expense of the general body of citizens.

In this country, more wisely, officials are given security so long as they are efficient, and, moreover, a part of their salaries is set aside to provide pensions for their old age, lest worry about the future should lead to provision being made by improper means. The result is that local government officials in this country can look the world proudly in the face, and concentrate their whole attention on the work they have to perform.

AN EXAMPLE TO THE COMMUNITY.

And there is yet one other overwhelming reason why local government officials should not merely be men of the highest quality and character, but also well treated. They are, after all, the employees of a great family business in which all citizens participate. Such a business surely should be the model employer. Its terms of service should be an example to the community. They should reflect the conditions which every man and woman would desire either for themselves or their employees.

The local government, in its highest sense, is something far more than the mere expenditure of money. It is a great experiment in a communal effort to make the lives of every citizen fuller, better, and more happy. That effort could never succeed unless ratepayers were determined themselves to do unto their officials what they would have the world do to them.

IT feels good to hear that there are signs of improvement. The "Spend More" Campaign, if not an actual success, has been a long way from a failure. We are told there has been a big decrease in unemployment, and trade generally is on the rise, but the road to prosperity is still a long way off, and requires the concentrated efforts of every British citizen to become a member of the "Spend More Brigade." By the way, the interest shown by local residents to my last appeal has meant the employment of an extra two on the staff. If this was universal (and it should be) unemployment would be just a dream. So let your slogan be "Spend More but Spend Wisely."

STAGE AND SCREEN.

THE BEST SHOWS NEXT WEEK.

"GRAND SLAM."

BEING released coincidentally with the international bridge contest now in progress, players of the game will be interested in "Grand Slam," which tells how a husband, forced to play the game at the dictates of his wife, makes a fortune, though he hardly knows the difference between a "grand slam" and a "no-bid." The stars are Paul Lukas and Loretta Young.

Lukas, by the way, has the reputation of being Hollywood's most travelled actor. He claims that his penchant for travelling came as the result of being born in an express train as it was being pulled into Budapest. "It must have been a sort of inherited tendency," he says. "At any rate I have been on the go ever since."

"THE KING'S VACATION."

THE polished acting of George Arliss, coupled with his ready wit, has placed him in the forefront of British actors, though he was loaned to America for the production of "The King's Vacation." The film concerns the marriage entanglements of a king (Arliss) and two wives, one born a commoner and therefore unable to be his queen, and the other his queen who refuses to be his wife.

In the unfolding of the story there are many opportunities for Arliss to indulge in his own particular form of humour and he takes full advantage of them. Interest is added to the film in that Arliss plays "opposite" his own wife, who portrays the part of Queen Helena, while Marjorie Gateson is his "commoner" wife.

"COHENS AND KELLYS IN TROUBLE."

AGAIN we have Charlie Murray and George Sidney in another chapter in the lives of the Cohens and the Kellys, and whatever scrapes they may have been in before they manage to get into real trouble this time. Kelly blossoms forth as a tug owner, while his friend Cohen, though perfectly innocent, is suspected by the police of being a rum runner. To make matters worse for them while under the influence of the odd "spot" over eight they become enmeshed in the snares laid by two shady ladies. One of the ladies turns out to be Kelly's former wife, and she sends the police after Kelly as he has not paid her any alimony. Trouble for Kelly and Cohen then falls fast and furious, the climax being reached when they flee from the police in a sinking speedboat.

"LUCKY DOG."

A MAN and his dog. This is the theme of "Lucky Dog," featuring "Chic" Sale. The film offers the opportunity of film fans seeing "Chic" Sale for the first time performing without any make-up. Sale has earned himself a reputation for being a capable comedian, but in this film he shows that he is equally as clever in drama. The story of "Lucky Dog" is the story of a man who loses position, prestige, wife, property and servants—in fact everything but the love of his dog. Their separation, the roads they both follow, and their final reunion under dramatic circumstances is said to bring a lump to the throat of every man who loves dogs.

"PRIVATE JONES."

SO many extras were attached to "Private Jones" that the filming company resembled an army in the field, and when on location required an organisation similar to it. A rolling kitchen accompanied the unit with its horde of extra "privates" when exterior scenes of fighting took them away from within the studio walls.

Lee Tracy, as Bill Jones in "Private Jones," assumes a new type of role—that of a soldier—but one with which he is unusually familiar, having served in the infantry during the war. He is said to give his best performance as a resentful slacker who is made into a soldier and a man against his will. The opportunity of the role for fast dialogue and crisp lines is seized upon by Tracy's inimitable personality.

Where Shall We Go To-Day?

THOSE who enjoy action films have a wide selection from which to choose among the many that are being screened at local cinemas to-day (Thursday), Friday and Saturday. They include:

HIPPODROME.—"Air Hostess" (Evelyn Knapp, James Murray, Thelma Todd), a romance that sweeps the skies. Also "The Public Be Hanged" (Pat O'Brien, Mary Brian, Evelyn Brent and Neil Hamilton), a fast moving "graft" story featuring a "go-getter" reporter. On the stage Terry's famous juveniles.

COLISEUM, MANOR PARK.—"Men Must Fight" (Diana Wynyard, Lewis Stone, Phillips Holmes), depicting the effect of war in future on those who stay at home. Also "The Chimp," a Laurel and Hardy quick-fire farce. Additional matinee attraction "Who Killed Forbes?" (Glenn Tyron and Vera Reynolds).

REGENT, BECONTREE.—"Out all Night" (Slim Summerville, Zasu Pitts) an excellent farce. Also "Smoke Lightning" (George O'Brien), a rip-roaring tale of the West. On the stage Cecil Mitchell and his band.

CAPITOL, BARKING.—"Hello Everybody" (Kate Smith and Randolph Scott), introducing America's foremost radio stars. Supporting film "Thrill of Youth" (June Clyde, Allen Vincent).

ASTORIA, SEVEN KINGS.—"Rio Rita" (Bebe Daniels, John Boles), by special request. The supporting programme includes a Laurel and Hardy film.

THEY ALSO SERVE!

Bow'ers Stand and Wait On the Ladies.

No visiting teams ever go to South Park without their captain pays a well-deserved compliment to the ladies for their service as caterers. And the members of Clementswood themselves, never cease to reveal their appreciation of their womenfolk for their great efforts on the club's behalf. But on one day in the year, they give special manifestation to this appreciation, and know it as "Ladies Day."

On this day, the role of the sexes is reversed, the ladies taking possession of the green, with the men acting as attendants upon them.

The event this year was celebrated on Saturday last, when thirty-six ladies put on rubber shoes, and took charge of the woods. At all of the five rinks there was an officer or member of the club at either end to act as a guide, but not in every instance was their advice accepted, some few of the ladies preferring to trust to their own instinct, rather than to rely upon the experience of the adviser.

Previous to the match, the Ladies' Committee had arranged the tea tables, fearing to trust so delicate and artistic an operation to the menfolk. The latter, however, contributed their share by providing flowers from their gardens and the wealth and beauty of these floral decorations, proved that the men of Clementswood have more than bowls as a hobby.

In distributing the prizes, President C. H. Bourne thanked those men who had acted as waiters at tea time, and particularly commended Frankie Barton and Bert Porter, who saw to the "brew" and "washing-up," in a small and sweltering kitchen.

The committee of the club left the selection of the twenty-two prizes to their secretary, Austin Eastwell. Austin is not a bachelor, and it was plainly observable from the appropriateness of the choice, that his spouse had been carefully consulted. These gifts, consisted of cushions, cutlery, fancy linen, handbags, humpies, etc.

Rink one was constituted solely of members of the Ladies Tea Committee, all of whom were awarded prizes, the winners having first choice. The sides upon the other four rinks also took prizes, each participant making her own selection.

There was an extra competition confined to the members of the Tea Committee. In this six took part, each playing two ends against every other competitor, and this was won by Mrs. Wilson, the prize being presented by the ladies president, Mrs. Thompson; as runner-up Mrs. Morris also received an award. The last act of service rendered by the helpers, was in their going round the green later in the evening, with trays laden with ices for the ladies. By then, their games were over, but they remained as spectators, witnessing a splendidly contested match, which had a very exciting finish. It was the final of the club pairs, wherein F. White and H. Fryer beat J. P. Coyle and G. Scholes by one shot.

"ANCIENTS" BEAT "MODERNS."

This match which was instituted by the Clementswood Club last year on the suggestion of T. H. Richardson, under the title of "Ancients" v. "Moderns" was again played last week, upon Mr. Greaves' coming from Lancashire to spend his usual annual fortnight with his old Ilford friends and colleagues of Clementswood.

He joined that club during the war when he was transferred from the North to undertake special railway duties in London and although in 1920 he returned to his native city of Liverpool, he continues his vice-presidency and membership of the club, and he has never allowed since a season to pass without his resuming a brief but active connection with it. The contending sides consisted of Greaves' contemporaries and those who joined up subsequent to 1920. The latter made a great effort to win and almost succeeded, being ahead on three of the five rinks but three down in the aggregate of shots scored.

Promotion Race Lost.

On Monday evening of last week the final event of the Southern Amateur Athletic League (Division 2) which was the one mile medley relay, was decided at Battersea Park. The result of this event decided the team to be promoted to the first division of the League, and as Ilford A.C. already headed the table with one point ahead of Blackheath Harrier, it was necessary for the latter club to win the event to gain promotion. This they did, covering the mile in 3mins. 40secs., and we offer to them our congratulations on their well merited success. Mitcham A.C. were second, Ilford A.C. third, Croydon A.C. fourth, and Ashcombe A.C. fifth. Woodford Green A.C. did not compete in this event. The Ilford team was represented by W. H. Gross, J. A. F. Churchill, J. O. Magee and F. W. O. Broom.

The following is a complete table showing the points obtained by each club in the separate events. The method of scoring was 6 points for a win, 5 for second, 4 for third, etc.

Following the untimely death of Arthur Muggeridge, the English international track and cross-country runner, I regret to report the death of R. A. Wallis who passed away with tragic suddenness at the recent walking festival in Holland.

R. A. Wallis was one of the English team and a great walking enthusiast. He was one of the Essex County Executive and was responsible for the road walk introduced at the Rayleigh sports which were held last Monday.

ILFORD TUBERCULOSIS CARE ASSOCIATION.

More Than 50 Grants This Month.

The usual problem—want of funds—caused the committee of the Ilford Tuberculosis Care Association some anxiety at their August meeting. Nevertheless they decided to make further, if somewhat reduced grants, in the expectation that public support would be forthcoming in the near future to enable them to carry on.

More than 50 cases were dealt with, the grants being renewed or varied as circumstances required.

The committee received, with much regret, notice of the resignation of Capt. Butler, a valued worker for the Association.

Donations were reported from the Essex Insurance Committee, National Union of Women Teachers, Councillor A. W. Green, Mr. and Mrs. T. L. D. Porter, Downshall Child Welfare Centre, and the Sunshine Circle.

A flag day is being organised by Mrs Pitt, of 60, Aberdour-road, Goodmayes, to whom offers of help should be sent.

The committee are appealing for donations to the funds, and these may be sent to the secretary, Mr. L. Lamb, 130, Cranbrook-road.

Mrs. Alway has been appointed to the committee as the representative of the Soroptimist Club, Ilford

About 30 acres of Weeley Woods, St. Osyth, were destroyed by fire last week.

SEVEN KINGS PARK HELP THE HOSPITAL.

Last week end Seven Kings Park Club held a Bowls Drive, in which 68 members participated. After thirty ends it was found that two rinks had tied for the top place with 35 points. An extra end was then played by these two in order to decide first and second places and Mr. A. E. Aldridge's rink, consisting of Messrs. B. Heyes, W. J. Stevens, A. F. Salmon and himself, took the first prizes by defeating the rink skipped by Mr. W. Thomason who had with him Messrs. J. W. Barley, T. Percival and E. Sainsbury.

On Monday morning it was arranged to play off the home and away match with the friendly "enemies" of Goodmayes, the original match having been "washed out" on 24th June. The match resulted in a win for Seven Kings by 22 shots.

In the afternoon the annual match between the Captain (Mr. G. W. Westhrop) and Vice-captain (Mr. W. G. Crichlow), took place. It was in the form of a Bowls Drive, in which the reds' rinks were for the Captain and the whites for the Vice. After twenty-five ends it was found that the result was in favour of the Captain, his players having scored 210 shots against 190.

The prizes on this occasion, which were won by the "Red" (captain) rink, composed of Messrs. G. Lofts, J. Bacon, H. A. Beecroft and H. W. Howard (skip) with 34 points, and by the White (vice-captain's) rink, consisting of Messrs. S. J. Bedwell, F. J. Dench, A. C. Crisp and F. White (skip) with 29 points, were provided by the Captain and Vice-captain, and these gentlemen were thanked at the close for their generosity.

This generosity allows entry-fee money to be donated to the hospital, and it was found that this money, with a collection made among the spectators, had realised £4 17s. In order to round off the amount a box was taken round the green for "stray coppers" with the final result that a cheque for five guineas (£5 5s.) will be sent to King George's Hospital.

BOWLS — THE MOST FASCINATING SPORT.

Hints and Comments on the Game.

SPECIALLY CONTRIBUTED BY "JACK HEAD."

TO some men the single-handed game gives far greater interest and pleasure than the rink, and I would not class this preference—as some are so apt to do—as being pure selfishness; it is an expression of individualism and, were this man's attitude to life generally open to examination, it would be found that he is of the type, trained from boyhood—possibly by circumstances outside anyone' control—to self reliance. With advancing years he asks nothing better than to be able to pit his individual knowledge and skill, against an opponent under conditions which have been made, as far as humanly possible, equal.

This player wants his play to be absolutely under his own control. Ever open to learn, but intolerant of interference, he takes his losses in his stride, and values success, once attained, less for himself than others perhaps, do for him.

Oftimes he is termed "pot hunter": actually he is nothing of the kind. His joy lies in his having been able to beat his opponent, not in the reward for so doing, and it would be just as reasonable to blame the player who finds his pleasure in the rink game for being imbued with too much of the "herding" instinct.

Younger Generation.

If the single-handed player is to be so much condemned, why do all clubs—without exception—give so much prominence to their own little "singles" competitions, and belaud the winner of the championship to the skies, while dubbing the "singles" man "unsociable" in his desire for a little practice as such.

With the influx of many of the "younger" generation into the game, more care and preparation than ever is needed for a man to survive a big tournament or championship.

The singles of Kent, with an entry ranging around the 500 Surrey, Middlesex and Essex 300, Devon, Somerset and Wiltshire to 250, are not won without big effort.

First and foremost the bowler must be in the pink of condition as I know of no other outdoor game demanding such perfection of nerve control as bowls.

Semi-Drugged Players.

Often you hear the remark, I was better after I had a "double"! Actually this player has told you that he semi-drugged himself: his nerves were a little out of order and that which he treated himself to, was not used (as he thought) as a beverage, but as a narcotic. The teetotaller will indulge in excessive smoking, thereby producing the same effect, a quietening of the nerves.

Actually both men for the big occasion, would have been in a fitter condition had they submitted themselves to a course of good opening medicine, getting their "inwards" in proper order, their general health benefiting proportionately.

What Type of Bowls Player Are You?

In fighting single-handed, in addition to playing your own game, every endeavour must be made to "learn" your opponent, watch for any hint of nervousness on his part, at the same time keeping yourself rigidly under control.

If he is "highly strung" you will probably find him shuffling his feet about, preparatory to bowling, and should his first wood be good enough to be near the jack, but not on it and his second a couple of yards over or under—nerves!

Effect of "Nerves."

Having ascertained the strength with the first, it is only temporary loss of "touch," through nerves, that has precluded him from duplicating his first wood, and rather points to the fact that he was fortunate in getting it there. Should this "nervy" type of player happen—early in the game—to get two woods, sitters or close enough to make a big object, and you be reasonably accurate with the "firing" shot, then hit the lot out of the rink, and you will further unsettle him, but you must not forget that, in the event of your putting up a wild one, and missing everything, you are helping to restore his confidence, hence, accuracy must never be sacrificed to speed; you must hit your object, or in failing, be too close to be comfortable thereby keeping your opponent, still guessing.

Should you resort to a "fire" at all, try and do so with your third wood, as although there are times when it is necessary to do so with the last, it will usually be wiser to reserve this for saving. Don't, where it is little short of folly to assume your opponent less skilful than yourself, expect more than the odd shot at an end. It is the reverse of good tactics—although it does come off sometimes—to crowd all four woods around the jack, deliberately tempting your opponent to indulge in a devastating smash.

The Firing Shot.

The firing shot—even by those who have deservedly acquired a reputation for deadliness in its use—must never be allowed to "become a habit," it must be employed only as one of a number of tactical moves in the game. To make too great a use of it, is worse than not having such a shot in your locker at all.

It is the man who can draw, draw, draw, and employs the "firer" only in a judicial manner, who wins most games.

Always try and draw second wood. Never mind if your opponent is "sitting" on the jack, draw up as closely as you can, making sure of being just through, thus tying him down to one. In every singles game, no matter what kind of player your opponent may prove to be, you will always be concerned whether—you holding shot—you should endeavour to guard or play positional woods behind the jack.

In regard to this although no definite line can possibly be laid down, the player can be guided to some extent, by the nature and pace of the green upon which the game is being played. The "guard" may perhaps be useful on a wet and coarse grass green as a means of forcing your opponent on to the more difficult side, but you are putting up a wood which can never be in the count, and moreover, attempting a shot, the success of which in keeping your opponent out is problematic. It is a shot which will not, as a rule, disturb an opponent who is a seasoned player.

See for Yourself.

On a very "quick" green, undoubtedly the best plan—you holding shot—is to try and just beat the woods of your opponent that rest behind, making use of his woods as your jack. You will thus be following the plan of "marrying" as mentioned previously and always standing the chance of scoring more than the one shot.

Make frequent excursions—following your bowl—to the head so as to see for yourself the exact state of affairs, waiting there until your opponents next bowl has come to rest.

While waiting take up a position on the far side of the marker—who will be standing some distance from the head—so as to be out of the line of sight of your opponent while he is bowling. When asked by the marker, if you would like a shot measured, don't bend down squinting in order to try and check his measurements.

If he is not neutral, he should not be marking at all and if he is, he would be quite as honest in his decisions as you, and perhaps more so.

ILFORD CLUB MATCHES.

Exciting Game With Wanstead.

After the excitement of county competitions, the Ilford Club has settled down to its club fixtures.

Last Tuesday their visitors were the Goodmayes Club, and what a jolly team they were. Both teams were out for a merry and bright game, which proved most enjoyable. Charlie Reynolds was the highest up for Ilford. It was very pleasing to see this good old bowler back to his old form again. He has been playing very well indeed just lately.

On Thursday the club received Wanstead, when a very exciting game ended in a draw of 59 all. The result depended upon the very last shot of the match. This was taken by Mr. Snell, the Wanstead skip, who wanted one shot to tie, or two to win the match. Ilford were lying five shots and looked safe to win, but Snell drove with his last wood, and took the jack as clean as a whistle, which rebounded and was lucky enough to lie nearest to a Wanstead wood, for one, and thus made the match all square.

On Saturday Ilford visited the Falcon, at Chelmsford, with four links. The Falcon, who recently lost the final of the Essex County Double Rink Championship, put up the same team against Ilford. Whether it was the hot weather of the Bank Holiday Saturday element, is not known, but Ilford's "brass hats" did not shine. J. H. Mattinson bowled vedy well indeed for a novice at the game. He possesses a great asset in bowls, a fine delivery. I prophesy he will make a good bowler.

"Abe" Enoch won his second round in good style.

Congratulations to Dick German, whose Hong Kong "snaps" were very good. Copies are going over to China, by request of the visitors.

Ilford Club Championship.

G. COLE, 21 v. W. CHESTERTON, 19.

A ding dong game, in which the players passed and re-passed each other. They were 17 all at 19 ends, then Cole got away with two ones and a two, to win.

A. ENOCH, 21 v. R. L. LEEDER, 15.

Enoch played a very steady and tactful game against a strong opponent. He scored seven in the last four ends. At one period the game stood 15 all.

Sparkling Cricket in Ilford's Games :: Thrilling End to Thursday Battle

GUNARY'S BRILLIANT BOWLING ON SATURDAY.

Takes Eight Wickets for 40.

THERE was excellent cricket on the Ilford ground on Saturday and Monday where Ilford played Romford and Eastern Nomads. Features of the games were brilliant bowling by Bill Gunary and Arthur Daer on Saturday and two centuries—by W. W. Clarke and C. Melville on Monday.

Bowlers had things all their own way on Saturday, both Gunary and Daer finding "spots" which made them deadly.

Romford batted first, but Bill Gunary destroyed their hopes of a big score and, with the assistance of Howgego and Barlow had dismissed five Romford men for 50 runs.

G. Mills and Bryett then offered a bit of resistance, but at 84 the sixth wicket fell, and the last four wickets added only 37 runs. Mills batted well in an effort to stem the tide.

Gunary bowled 16 overs and took eight wickets at a cost of 40 runs—his best effort this season.

Ilford should have reached Romford's total of 121 with ease, but Daer, who usually does not find the Ilford wicket to his liking, took a decided fancy to it and, in spite of a stubborn "skipper's" innings by Ben Brooker, who batted a very long while for nine runs, the Ilford men formed a procession to and from the crease, six wickets being down for 36 runs.

Anderson, who was suffering from a leg injury then batted well, and when Bill Gunary came in last the only stand of the innings was made 24 runs being added quickly. Bill lashed out at Daer and made most of his 15 not out in fours, and Anderson pulled Veryard for a glorious six to the Cranbrook-road fence.

Arthur Daer's six wickets cost 43 runs.

TWO CENTURIES IN MONDAY'S MATCH.

OVER 500 RUNS ON MONDAY.

Monday's game, which attracted a large crowd, was in aid of the groundsman's benefit. Eastern Nomads sent a strong side, which included C. Melville, the Union Castle batsman, Baden Herod, the ex-Spurs back, who has signed for Swindon for next season, Sid Bishop, late of Chelsea and G. F. Siegerts.

Ilford were not so strongly represented.

The home side batted first, and Purrier had a narrow escape almost at once, surviving a confident appeal for a catch behind the wicket off Herod, who was bowling very fast.

Ben Brooker was bowled by Herod with the score at the unlucky 13 when he had scored two, but Purrier and Clarke batted steadily and broke the back of the bowling. They raised the score to 101 before Purrier was bowled by Herod for 63 which included five 4's.

Peskett, Shelton and Barlow were tumbled out, and five wickets were down for 113, but then Clarke and Barron made a stand which put on 72 runs, Barron eventually being out for a valuable 35

K. K. Haynes joined Clarke, and in a brisk piece of batting ran up 53, 36 of the runs being made via the boundary. This stand put on 90 runs, and when Clarke had made his century the innings was declared with the score at 286 for seven. Clarke's 101 not out included only four 4's.

Ilford's innings lasted about 3½ hours.

Eastern Nomads lost Siegerts and Harwood for 37 runs, but L. Bishop aided Melville in scoring 59 runs before he was caught by Brooker off Ames. Langley contributed 11, but Herod was out for three, and then Sid Bishop and Melville played briskly to add a further 59 runs At 221 for seven time was called, Melville having reached his century before being caught off Ames. His 113 included 22 4's, and Bishop hit nine 4's in his 45.

T. A. LYON BADLY HURT

A serious accident to T. A. Lyon marred Ilford's match with Walthamstow on Monday. He had scored 37 when he caught a ball on the edge of his bat and it rose and hit him over the eye, smashing his glasses. He was badly cut over the eye and had to be taken home by car. ANOTHER GOOD SCORE BY ASHER.

AT Leytonstone on Saturday Becontree suffered their sixth reverse of the season against Forest House.

Becontree made a very poor start, and Steggel had most of the batsmen guessing. The exception, however, was J. Asker, who fearlessly attacked the varied bowling.

Forest House were none too happy in their reply, and following some rapid bowling changes had lost six wickets for only 44 runs. A decided change came over the game Anderson trouncing the bowling unmercifully, and Becontree's total was passed without further loss.

BARLEY MOW, playing at home on Monday, drew a high-scoring game with Jurgins, the odds being in favour of the visitors. Over 450 runs were scored during the day's play.

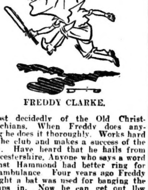
SPORTSNAPS.



FREDDY CLARKE.

Most decidedly of the Old Christchurchians. When Freddy does anything he does it thoroughly. Works hard for the club and makes a success of the work. Have heard that he hails from Gloucestershire. Anyone who says a word against Hammond had better ring for the ambulance. Four years ago Freddy thought a bat was used for banging the stumps in. Now he can get out lbw almost any day. Opens for Old Christchurchians and closes up almost at once behind his bat. Relates interesting experiences to the gullible and in this respect could give Grimm a few lessons. Takes cricket seriously and is a great rugby enthusiast. Wants to start a rugby club among Old Christchurchians. They say they like to keep the gangster type of sport out of it if they can't do enough damage with their feet or with hockey sticks they'll be blowed if they will adopt all-in wrestling. A cheerful fellow and a good sport.

GAME WON BY LAST-MINUTE BOUNDARY CATCH.

Ilford Thursday Lose by Four.

THROUGH a magnificent catch on the boundary Kilburn beat Ilford Thursday by four runs, with only another over to go after a splendid game on the Ilford ground on Thursday.

Kilburn thus inflicted on Ilford the only two defeats they have suffered this season.

It was a dramatic battle on Thursday. Ilford, with a badly weakened team—they were without Purrier, Hooker, Eady, Barron and Andrews—making an heroic reply to Kilburn's total of 204.

Four hundred runs were scored in four hours, 51 4's being hit.

Kilburn made a great start with Poole and McLaren, who got right on top of Ilford's weak bowling and flogged it for 113 runs before they were parted. McLaren being stumped by Dunn when he had scored 75 (eight 4's).

In spite of the leather-hunting they had Ilford's fielders worked well and, with Poole still hitting hard they had more to do, for 44 runs were put on before the next wicket fell. Dunn again doing a nice piece of stumping. The third wicket fell at 175, and then a skilful piece of organisation between T. Nuttall and Brown led to Poole's downfall. He hit a full toss, full of guile from Nuttall, to the boundary, where Brown held a beautiful catch.

Poole had batted brilliantly for his 87, and hit 14 4's.

The rest of the wickets tumbled for 25 runs. Dunn stumped two more, and Edwards finished with the excellent analysis of five for 56.

Ilford had two hours 15 minutes to bat, and they lost Wells early. Wigzell was also lured out by Head's slows and two wickets were down for 38. Neale was batting with his usual solidity, and Edwards, with some brilliant shots contributed 18 before he left at 73. Neale followed at 85, after he had scored a valuable 43 (six 4's).

Brown and Nuttall contributed a valuable partnership, which added 27 runs before Nuttall left, Ilford being 112 for five—not a good position.

Batting soundly, Brown now had the assistance of Dunn, and these two took the score to 179 before Dunn was bowled off his pads for 26.

With 26 runs to get Ilford had fifteen minutes to bat. C. Nuttall was unluckily run out at 190, and then Brown left at 193, having scored a brilliant 52 (six 4's).

There were now seven minutes to bat and 12 runs to get. Amps hit a four and was bowled—eight to get and the last man in. Leach sneaked a single and then Hancock drove McLaren hard for two—four to get and the last ball of the last over but one.

He hit this beautifully over the bowler's head. Pitts ran along the boundary and brought off a great catch. Had he missed it, Ilford would have saved the game.

Powell and Ross Score Centuries for Old Parks "A."

AT South Ockendon on Saturday, Old Parkonians had their opening bats well out with only 14 runs scored. Burdon and Gray batted well, however, and made way for Link and Boyd, who put on 68 for the fourth wicket and enabled the Parks' skipper to declare at 160 for seven wickets. Link was in brilliant form, and Boyd, a member of this year's School team, gave him able assistance. Left with an hour and a quarter in which to get the runs, South Ockendon were content to play for a draw, and they achieved this by dour batting.

At Barkingside on Saturday. Against accurate bowling Old Park scored 98.

Kingsbury lost their first seven wickets for 18 runs to Lefever and R. I. Moore. That their total eventually reached 71 was due to A. Moore, who drove and pulled in brilliant style. The last three Kingsbury wickets put on 53 runs.

PLENTY OF LEATHER HUNTING ON MONDAY.

Old Parkonians lost at Redbourn on Monday. Redbourn made 246. Burdon put up a great bowling performance for the Old Parks, taking five wickets for 68 runs on a perfect batsman's wicket. Burdon and Boyd gave the Old Parks a splendid start, and Houghton played a fine innings but in spite of these efforts the visitors were all out for 214, after a keen struggle.

A SPORTSMAN'S POINT OF VIEW: By "SPECTATOR."

WITH THE greatest respect to all the other grounds I think it must be conceded that the Ilford ground had played on it the most interesting cricket during the holiday week-end.

THERE WAS a thrilling finish on Thursday, brilliant bowling on Saturday and two centuries on Monday.

ALL TOLD there were 1,105 runs scored in the three matches.

THANKS MAINLY to the groundsman who will deserve the excellent benefit which, I hope and believe, has resulted from the fine weather which graced the week-end.

THURSDAY'S WAS a real thriller—cricket at its best, though the Ilford sustained their second defeat of the season at the hands of Kilburn who also inflicted the first defeat.

IT WAS a game of remarkable fluctuations. Kilburn were 113 for no wicket and all out for 204 and Ilford were about 110 for five and all out 200.

IT WAS THE last ball of the last over but one that brought their downfall. Pitts, a Kilburn fielder, dashing across the screen to catch a great drive by Hancock.

HAD THE fielder dropped that ball it would have rolled over the line and Ilford would have tied.

KILBURN'S WIN gave great delight to their 75 years old skipper—Mr. A. Doran who fielded brilliantly.

AND WHERE do you think this youngster fielded at times?—At silly mid-on!

HE WAS APPOINTED captain of Kilburn Thursday in 1887.

HATS OFF DEPARTMENT.

DOFF YOUR SMOKING CAPS . . .

To Bill Gunary for bagging eight Romford wickets for 40 and making top score on Saturday.

To Barley Mow C.C. for acquiring a handsome trophy.

ONE OF THE features of this game was the wicket keeping of "Dickie" Dunn the Ilford "skipper," who stumped four and let only four byes.

ON SATURDAY it was nearly all Bill Gunary.

THIS STRAPPING lad took eight wickets for 40 runs and then pasted Arthur Daer vigorously for the highest score in the Ilford innings.

IN SPITE of this Arthur returned the analysis of six for 43—which is the best I have seen him do on that ground which does not favour him

IF IT HAD not been for Bill's contribution Ilford would have been all out for about 50

MONDAY BROUGHT more runs.

THE CENTURY-MAKERS were Wally Clarke of Ilford—son of Ilford's umpire, and Charles Melville, of Eastern Nomads, who lives in Ilford and plays for Union Castle as a rule.

EDDIE PURRIER made another good score of 63. This brings his total of runs scored for Ilford and Ilford Thursday to 717 this season

THAT IS, if my arithmetic is correct It may not be to a run or two.

THESE RUNS are the fruit of 21 innings—two of them not out

CLARKE'S CENTURY was the second scored for Ilford this season Ben Brooker having preceded him on Whit-Monday when he scored 108 against Romford.

POOR BEN has struck a bad patch lately but [illegible] not perturbed about it and, [illegible] half score some runs.

IT WAS rather singular that the week-end, so full of cricket produced so few outstanding performances.

ONE OF THE FEW batsmen who managed to get above 50 was R. Ritchie, of Seven Kings Congregational and he went the whole hog and scored 105.

FEW BOWLERS shone, the most notable feat next to that of Gunary's, being contributed by E. Smith, of Becontree Athletic who took eight for 21.

HE TOOK eight for 13 the previous week They say he is the Man of Eight.

THEN THERE was Maddison, of Ramblers, who did a nice little job of four wickets in four balls—an outsize hat-trick.

WHAT THE week-end was notable for was the number of close games played.

THERE WERE two ties—Ilford Baptists and East Ham Brotherhood and Old Parks B and Buxton finishing all square.

Athenaeum won by	1
Connaught won by	2
S. K. and G. Meths. won by	3
Seven Kings S.C. won by	3
Ilford Thursday lost by	4
Lansdowne lost by	4
Upton Manor won by	5

THE CRICKET was good and interesting at the Barley Mow ground on Sunday when the Ladies played the Gentlemen.

THE GENTLEMEN were presented with a handsome trophy, the gift of the Ladies.

THIS TROPHY—in the form of a bowl of neat design—is hanging proudly in the pavilion and is greatly treasured by all.

IT IS SO unique. Few clubs have won such a trophy.

OLD PARKONIANS A set up a record for the season by including two centuries in their week-end innings.

ONE WAS by K. Powell, who scored 124 on July 22nd

THE OTHER was contributed by D Ross who made his runs on Monday.

THIS CONSTITUTED the fifth century scored for the Old Parkonians club this season, four being for the second team and one for the first.

THIS BEATS United Dairies who have had four scored for them this season.

Football:

WHAT A cooling thought—trial matches start on Saturday. Ilford's being among them.

IT HAS always struck me that football should not begin till the middle of September at least.

BUT, FOR some reason or other the F.A. take no notice of me and, therefore, football makes a farcical start with the mercury bubbling over the top.

THOSE WHO can enjoy football this delightful weather have the advantage of me—the very same makes me sad because it indicates the end of summer.

AND I personally object to summer ending on the last Saturday in August.

FORTUNATELY THE junior clubs are not in such a hurry and that gives junior clubs a chance to apply to Mr. L. H. Page, of 37, Norfolk-road, Seven Kings secretary of the Ilford Borough Wednesdays F.C., for fixtures.

THE WORKSHOPS are running two teams one in the Ilford Auxiliary League and one in the League.

FIXTURES ARE wanted for the A team, home and away. The average age of the team is 21 and the ground is No 2 Pitch, Seven Kings Park.

CHADWELL HEATH "soccer" enthusiasts are keeping just a little more than one eye open, during the coming season, to watch the activities of the Clyde Club.

LAST SEASON, they collected the Romford Charity (Section 1) and the Ilford Auxiliary League, with a cup each time, and medals apiece all round.

THEIR AMBITION this year is to make interesting attempts for Ilford and Romford Charities, and the Essex Junior, and there is no outstanding reason for their not succeeding since they have that mighty weapon "Esprit-de-corps" [illegible] on the roll of Metro Cables. Not only do they play for their club, but, naturally, for their firm. A double incentive.

KEEN TRAINING is starting in the middle of this month, with trials in September, and if the acquisition of extended grounds, and the possession of a pavilion with electric lighting, and almost luxurious dressing and refreshment accommodation, counts for anything, then they should be interesting boys to follow at Grove-road.

IF THE determination of their rugged Scot president "Rob" McMillan Cook is the deciding factor, then they must win.

FIRST WOMEN'S GAME IN ILFORD.

Gantshill Methodists' Venture

On Monday the club held an "at home" on the delightful ground of the Stratford (Newtown) Methodist Club. A game between the Married and Single was the chief feature of the day. The Rev. Cyril E. Gwyther was top scorer for the Single side with 35 and helped E. Odling to raise the score from 46 for four to 94 for five. E. Odling and E. Robinson then added 29 for the sixth wicket; the ninth, tenth and eleventh wickets fell at 135 when G. Dubock joined W. Fowlis and together put on 43 runs for the twelfth wicket. The Single team batting 14 men totalled 178, D. Martin claiming seven wickets for 21 runs. Davies for the Married, although out of practice, kept splendidly and took much of Martin's fast bowling in fine style.

The chief feature of the Married innings was a forceful knock by D. Dean of 65 runs containing 11 fours and one six. The Married Men's innings eventually closed for 158, the Rev. C. E. Gwyther claiming six wickets for 25 runs and W. Fowlis five for 24

In the evening the Gantshill Ladies v. Becontree Ladies (both Methodist teams) game was commenced amid much excitement and gratuitous advice from the mere males. Gantshill Ladies batting first scored 53, Miss Saunders securing six wickets at small cost. Becontree replied with 18, Mrs. L. Dean, the Gantshill "skipper," claiming six wickets for five runs and Miss Gander, three for 13. Gantshill did not enforce the "follow on" however, to use a county cricket phrase and ran up 37 for four (Mrs. L. Dean 27) and declared leaving Becontree with 73 to get to win.

The ladies from Becontree reached the fine score of 76 to win a thrilling game by three runs. Thus ended what was perhaps the first serious ladies game of cricket played in Ilford.

Played at Barkingside on Saturday, Gantshill entertained their friends from Stratford and a pleasant game ended in a decisive win for the visitors by 190 to 130. Lawrence contributing 29 containing 5 fours; Finn and Dean also made useful scores of 26 each. Pank, for Stratford, secured half of the Gantshill wickets. Stratford, after a bad start, losing two wickets for 10 runs, improved and required but 28 runs to win when the fifth wicket fell at 103.

CYCLING.

NOTES AND NEWS OF THE CLUBS.

ILFORD ROAD CLUB.

The usual August Bank Holiday week-end camp was held this year at Little Baddow and with ideal camping weather it was the most enjoyable yet held. Despite holidays over thirty members participated and most of the time was spent in or on the water.

The site was on the river bank away from the holiday crowds. Two members over indulged in sun-bathing and for one a doctor was necessary but he is the only one who will not retain a store of pleasant memories of a wonderful week-end

ROMFORD WHEELERS.

The Romford Club have vacancies for a few keen cyclists of either sex, who have a preference for club life. Programme to suit all riders (touring, racing and social sections). Subscriptions are extremely moderate with the usual affiliations.

FOREST FIRE DANGERS.

An appeal to motorists to assure themselves on leaving picnic and camping spots that nothing is left behind which could possibly cause a fire is made by the Automobile Association. The A.A. also asks motorists to endeavour to keep the British countryside as beautiful as they would like to find it.

One forest fire in every four occurring in Britain is traceable to a picnic or camp fire which some member of the public has neglected to extinguish completely. "Forest fires are usually caused by carelessness" is the conclusion of the Forestry Commission.

Many recent outbreaks in forest and plantations have been caused by matches and cigarette ends dropped, still burning into dry grass or bush, by fires light[illegible] too close to such inflammable material and so on. "Spontaneous" fires are known to originate in the summer months from the sun's rays striking through a bottle or piece of broken glass, which acts as a powerful burning glass.

THE HOSPITAL QUEUE.

WHEN a theatre manager sees a long queue at his doors he rubs his hands and says business is good. When a hospital has a long queue—which, of course, is seen only in the mind's eye, but is there all the same—the chairman of the Board of Management doesn't rub his hands; he wrings them and says business is bad. For there would not be a queue unless the hospital was full, and if the hospital could be made larger there would be no need for a queue, but the hospital cannot be made larger because money cannot be had for the purpose. And so the queue must stay there.

* * *

That is the position in which King George Hospital stands to-day, and has indeed stood for a long, long time. The "House Full" notice, invisible like the queue but just as plain to the imagination, is always hung out at the doors. Not another bed can be pressed into service; not another patient can be admitted until some of the present occupants leave to make room for them. Somehow last month this 142-bed hospital managed to accommodate a daily average of 151 in-patients, a masterly effort in the time-honoured art of trying to get a quart into a pint pot. But the tragic thing about it is that there are twice that number in the queue—the hospital authorities more properly call it a waiting list—no fewer than 305 of them. At the rate at which admissions can take place, what hope for those at the end of the queue who may be desperately needing the treatment such as only a hospital can give?

* * *

Surely here is the best reason that ever was for pushing forward with the extension scheme which is being held up—like the queue—only because there is no money to pay for it. The plans are there, the patients are there, the opportunity is there, and the purpose is there. Everything there but the cash. Beyond the £26,000 still wanted to balance the building fund, £60,000 has to be found to build two more wards and bring the number of beds up to 200. Those fifty-odd beds would take quite a large slice off that anxious queue. And if—only if—the ultimate dream of a 300-bed hospital could materialise the queue would almost melt, like Prospero's spirit actors, into thin air. Ilford, Barking and Dagenham would then have a general hospital that would be one of the largest and best equipped in the land, and fully able to meet the requirements of the population for some years to come.

* * *

The time is ripe to begin. A prodigious work it may be, but the conditions are most favourable. With the co-operation of the municipal councils of the three towns, and more than a hint of help to come from certain powerful bodies outside, the governors have every hope of adding the two new wards in the near future. They have said "Go." The slogan for the thousands who should now rally to the support of the hospital ought to be "Push and Go."

* * *

The Price of Speed.

A MOTOR CYCLIST was killed in Eastern-avenue last week while travelling at between 60 and 65 miles an hour. Another motor cyclist, who gave evidence at the inquest, admitted that he was "doing 45 to 50 miles an hour"—and the deceased passed him at "a terrific speed." Now speeds are seldom accurately estimated, particularly by those who stand in a witness box. Forty miles an hour is put at 60 by one witness and at 20 by another; it depends whether he is on the side of the prosecution or the defence. Judge Crawford has frequently observed that the County Court speed is never more than 18 miles an hour. But in this case there can be little doubt that the speed was correctly judged. For once the Coroner had the truth, and he took it upon himself, as one who would point a useful moral, to address a warning on the dangers of speeding to the motor cyclist who had given his evidence so frankly.

* * *

The Coroner's words would apply to hundreds, or even thousands, of road users, whose one passion in life, so soon as they get hold of a steering wheel or astride a saddle, seems to be to cover a maximum of distance in a minimum of time. Everyone knows that arterial roads were built for fast traffic, but speed has varying limits of safety according to road conditions. Eastern-avenue has largely become, as a Dagenham Councillor said of Green-lane, and what any Ilford Councillor might say of Cranbrook-road, a racing track, across which pedestrians venture at their peril. While the police and the public authorities generally show themselves unable to cope with this problem, the feeling of impotence that seizes upon the man in the street as he takes his walks abroad can easily be appreciated.

* * *

Speed—speed at all costs—has become an obsession, a mania that turns many a kindly, well-mannered man into a brutal, selfish hooligan, the moment he gets into a driving seat. In spite of the views put forward by the Pedestrians' Association and discussed in this column last week, there is no ready, certain cure. So far as can be seen, the disease is being and will be left to cure itself by a gradual process of public education in road manners and in the simple principles of Safety First. Experience is the best teacher, but in this instance the fees, paid at cost to life and limb, are a trifle high.

The Stable Door.

ONLY a fortnight ago the "Recorder" published facts which went to show that the Ilford Fire Brigade is seriously understaffed and suggested that the matter was one to which the General Purposes Committee of the Borough Council should give its immediate attention. An incident that happened during the week-end gives emphasis to the warning. A number of fires broke out—small fires admittedly, but, small or large, they demanded the prompt and undivided services of the brigade. On one occasion two engines had to be used to deal with an extensive grass fire. There remained at the station but two men—two men to take charge of the third engine and three ambulances and respond to any calls that might be made for the use of these vehicles.

* * *

Providentially there were no calls: the luck of the brigade—or the luck of the borough; it is much the same thing—held good. But what if there had been? It is not enough to leave these things to luck or chance or any other fickle influence to which the imprudent and improvident choose to entrust their destinies. The fire brigade should be large enough and strong enough not only to deal efficiently with normal work, as it does now, but also to cope with the greater emergencies which, although we hope they may never arise, have an unpleasant way of overwhelming those who are least prepared for them. The issue here involves the safety of life and property. Let the Council take heed in good time. The stable door can be left unlocked once too often.

COUGHING BOY GIVES FIRE ALARM

Hectic Week-End For Ilford Brigade.

TEN ACRE FIELD ALIGHT

Over seven hours of the holiday week-end were spent by the Ilford Fire Brigade fighting eight fires which broke out in the district—most of them being grass fires.

The run began on Saturday afternoon, when members of the brigade themselves discovered a fire in progress in the yard of the Council Works Depot in Ley-street.

A stock of waste timber, containing about a ton and a half of wood, was alight, and before the flames could be put out windows were broken by the heat in neighbouring buildings and roofs were slightly damaged.

At 1.23 a.m. on Sunday firemen were called from bed to a fire which had been discovered at the rear of 51, Ilford-lane, occupied by Mrs. B. J. Eyton, who lives above a shop there.

Her young son was asleep in a back bedroom, and Mrs. Eyton was awakened by the sound of his coughing. She found his room full of smoke, and, looking through the window, saw flames leaping up the wall of the yard outside. She rushed to the front of the building and gave the alarm.

When the Fire Brigade arrived a minute or two later they found a pile of boxes and shopfittings blazing furiously, and flames had caught the dividing fence.

Neighbours did good work by pouring water on the blaze from upstair windows.

The cause of the fire is unknown. But for the boy coughing there is no doubt that the fire would have been very serious.

At 1.7 p.m. on Sunday the brigade was out again to a grass and hedge fire at Fencepiece Farm, Barkingside, where an expanse of rough grass 150 yards square and 100 yards of hedge were alright.

The firemen had to use 900 feet of hose to reach the flames.

At 6.35 p.m. on Sunday out they went again to Forest-road, Barkingside, where they found 200 yards by 250 yards of grass and hedge alight.

While at work there they were called to another grass fire in Hainault-road, this affecting 75 yards of grass and hedge.

On Monday morning, at 10.27 a.m., they were called to the Headley drive junction of Ashurst-drive, and there dealt with a fire which destroyed 20 yards by 10 yards of grass.

A ten-acre fire, in which 98 yards of railway fence was destroyed, occupied them for 2½ hours from 4.32 p.m. on Monday.

The fire involved the whole of a field in Fencepiece-road, which stretches to the railway line. About 550 yards by 450 yards of grass were alight, and there was grave danger of the fences of surrounding houses being destroyed.

Two fire engines were engaged (leaving two men at the Fire Station to take out a third engine and three ambulances in case of need!), and 2,000 feet of hose were used to fight the flames.

DEATH OF MR. W. J. PARKER ON HOLIDAY.

Chairman of Barking Education Committee.

We regret to record the death which occurred suddenly on Friday in Cologne, Germany, of Mr. W. J. Parker, of Park-avenue, Barking, brother of Mr. J. S. Parker, of Seven Kings, the well known King George Hospital governor.

Mr. W. J. Parker, who was 62 years of age and had been a headmaster at Barking for 27 years, was on a tour with a party of boys from Barking Abbey School. The tour was to conclude on Saturday. Mr. Parker had not been in the best of health.

He was chairman of the Barking Education Committee.

Mr. J. S. Parker was at once sent for, and he travelled to Germany on Saturday. The remains were cremated at Cologne and brought back to Barking by Mr. Parker.

A memorial service will be held to-morrow (Friday) at the Barking Parish Church at 3 p.m.

LENIENCY FOR "RUINED MAN."

Ilford Club Owner's £3,000 Losses.

"We know that you have had a lot of money taken from you and that possibly you are a ruined man, therefore we will be lenient with you and fine you only 40s."

This remark was made by Mr. W. P. Forbes (chairman) at Stratford Police Court on Wednesday, to Mr. Jack Rose, of "Princess Alexandra" public house, Canning Town, who was summoned for unlawfully keeping the Ilford Social Club, Ilford-lane, for the purposes of public dancing without a licence.

Mr. Rose was fined recently for allowing the club to be used for unlawful betting purposes.

In respect of the present summons, for the Essex County Council, the licensing authority, it was stated that on May 7th and May 15th, both days being Sundays, officers entered the premises after paying a shilling. There were about 150 persons on one occasion and there was a band of five men. Defendant was constantly in the dance hall supervising the dancing.

Defendant said anybody admitted to the club who was not a member was admitted against his instructions. To become a member an entrance fee of a shilling was required, and the applicant had to have a proposer and seconder.

The clerk (Mr. L. H. Walden): But yours was not a bona fide club and was struck off.

Mr. Rose said that since he had been summoned in respect of the offences at his club he had practically lost £3,000 he had invested. He was in the position where he was years ago, with the exception that he now had a family. On these grounds he had asked for leniency.

Canadian Prime Minister Among Donors.

Among the donors to the children's outing fund of the Chigwell Row branch of the British Legion are the Duke of Northumberland, the Duchess of Richmond and Gordon, the Duchess of Westminster, and the Right Hon. R. B. Bennett, Prime Minister of Canada.

In a letter to Mr. Henry A. Herring, chairman of the Entertainment Committee, Mr. Bennett wrote: "Of course, I receive many applications similar to yours, and I have responsibilities of the same class in Canada. But the enclosed will mark my sympathy with your efforts, and carries my best wishes for the happiness of the 60 little children, who, I hope, will greatly enjoy a trip to sea on Wednesday, the 23rd August. Success to your work."

The outing will be to Clacton-on-Sea.

THIRSTY CHILDREN FAINT.

RESIDENTS BESIEGED.

Council That Refused Gift of Drinking Fountain.

Lack of drinking water caused acute distress among the thousands of children who went to Chigwell Row and Lambourne End on Bank Holiday to spend the day in the woods.

Some of the scenes witnessed are described as heartrending. Many of the children were overcome by the combined effects of heat and severe thirst, and the plight of some of them was pitiable in the extreme. Several young girls fainted.

From an early hour in the morning, crowds began to pour into the neighbourhood by bus, train and on foot. Between 6,000 and 7,000 are reported to have arrived by train at Grange Hill station before 1 p.m. A large proportion of them were parties of children who, unaccompanied by adults, had come provided with the day's food and such liquid refreshment as they could carry. The latter, as might have been expected, did not last long.

BEGGING FOR WATER.

Soon the youngsters began to besiege the shops, houses and cottages with urgent requests for water. As the day wore on they become more and more importunate, even desperate. Kind-hearted residents did what they could. But even so the wants of large numbers could not be met. To give one child water brought a hundred others flocking round the door.

The nearest public source of supply is a roadside fountain by Grange Hill station, but that is a good mile and a half away, and its existence probably remained unknown.

In the yard of the Maypole Inn is a tap belonging to the London General Omnibus Company. Children swarmed around it, and at length they caused an obstruction that the police had to turn them away.

"TERRIBLE" SIGHT.

Mr. Henry Herring, host of the Maypole Inn, told the "Recorder" that the sight was "terrible."

"There were the children, thousands of them," he said, "and no water but what they could beg from the people living there. The same thing has happened before, many times, but we noticed it more on Monday, when we had one of the hottest bank holidays within memory and certainly about the largest crowd on record.

"The children swarmed round the houses with bottles and receptacles of every description, clamouring for something to drink. It was heartbreaking to see them. Where could they go for water? The nearest drinking fountain, by Grange Hill station, is too far away to be of real service.

"I should like to have supplied the whole crowd of children, but a complete staff would have been needed to do that."

Mr. Herring mentioned that several children suffered so from heat and thirst that they fainted. He supplied stimulants for two young girls who were taken ill.

COUNCIL'S STRANGE ATTITUDE.

It is wicked that such a thing should have happened. Two years ago I approached the Chigwell Parish Council with a proposal that a drinking fountain should be placed in the recreation ground (opposite the church). The Metropolitan Drinking Fountain Association agreed to provide and erect it on the one condition that the Parish Council should accept responsibility for its maintenance.

"What do you think the Council did? They turned down the idea on the pretext that no building could be erected on the ground! A fountain as a building! I should say it was prejudice and nothing else behind their decision.

"Last year I wrote to the chairman of the Council and again put the suggestion forward. I was told that the recreation ground was not provided for the children of the citizens of London. That was how the matter was put off the second time. The point of view is utterly selfish.

"Personally, I can see no objection to having a drinking fountain in the recreation ground or indeed anywhere else. It could be put by the roadside. All that matters is that it should be easily accessible to the public. It would not cost the Council a halfpenny—the Metropolitan Drinking Fountain Association would bear the cost. All that the Council would have to do would be to see that it was kept in order.

"I still hope that something of this kind will be done. Humanitarian considerations demand it."

CYCLIST AND MOTOR CYCLIST COLLIDE.

Bote Seriously Hurt.

James Saward, of "Wylboro," Havering-atte-Bower, was riding a bicycle in Eastern-avenue, Chadwell Heath, on Thursday, when he came into collision with a motor-cycle driven by Dryer Wallace, of Belfairs-drive, Chadwell Heath.

Both men were badly injured, Saward being taken in the Dagenham ambulance to Oldchurch Hospital, and Wallace in the Ilford ambulance to King George Hospital.

BACK-FIRE IGNITES COACH.

Passengers Unhurt.

Believed to have been caused by a back-fire through the carburretor, fire broke out in a Hillman coach in Green-lane, near Beacontree Heath, on Sunday.

There were only a few passengers in the coach at the time, and nobody was injured.

The outbreak was dealt with by the Dagenham Fire Brigade.

The driver of the coach was Mr. Henry Bull.

TRAIN SPEEDS TO SAVE WOMAN'S LIFE.

While travelling by train from Manchester to meet her mother at Chadwell Heath on Tuesday, Mrs. E. Hargreaves, of Longbridge, Longsight, Manchester, was taken ill with appendicitis.

The speed of the express was increased and at Leicester a waiting ambulance took her to hospital. Her two children were sent on to London.

DAGENHAM VICTIM OF TRAGIC FIRE.

One of the victims of a tragic fire in a London street on Wednesday, was a Dagenham boy—Clifford McMahon, aged 3. He was staying with his grandmother in Drury-lane, and was an only child.

He and another child were found dead inside a baker's handcart which had caught fire.

The presence of the children was not suspected until the fire was put out.

LATE CRICKET.

Big Scores for Clementswood

Clementswood drew with Grays at Fairlop on Saturday, the scores being Clementswood 175 for six declared, Grays 147 for three. For Clementswood U. Devereux (54), C. Devereux (37), J. Vanderkamp (27), and R. Harwood (26), were chief scorers.

On Monday Clementswood beat Guildhall by 210 to 127 at Manor Park, R. Harwood scoring 95 and A. Groves 67. C. Devereux took seven wickets for 40 runs.

In the examinations held in May by the National Union of Teachers, the silver medal for theory and practice of commerce was awarded to Miss Edith H. Bovill, a day student at Pitman's College, Forest Gate.

The managers of West Ham Church Schools have appointed Mr. E. S. Robson (now at Godwin-road boys' school) to be headmaster of Pelly School on Mr. D. Fassam's retirement at the end of August. Mr. Robson has already served 24 years in this school.

FIFTY YEARS MARRIED!

Golden Wedding of Mr. and Mrs. J. Deer

Fifty years of happy married life do not seem a very long period when you look back over them! This, at least, has been the experience fo Mr. J. Deer, of 54, Vernon-road, Seven Kings, who celebrated his golden wedding quietly on Sunday. He and Mrs. Deer were married in London 50 years ago, and though they have only lived in Ilford for 10 years, they have many friends in Seven Kings who joined in congratulating them and wishing them continued health and happiness.

Interviewed by a "Recorder" reporter, Mr. Deer explained that he is a retired grocer, and that his wife is a Somerset woman, hailing from the town of Wincanton. They both still enjoy the best of health, and he has every hope that they may look forward to celebrating their diamond wedding in due course.

They have one married daughter, Mrs. A. Cornell, who lives near them.

"I HAVE GONE BLIND!"

Dramatic Incident in Drowning Mystery.

Strange evidence that Henry Devlin, aged 23, a motor fitter, of Campden-crescent, Dagenham, thought he had suddenly lost his sight, was given at the Camberwell Coroner's Court, on Tuesday, when an inquest was held on Devlin, whose body was found in the Thames, near Waterloo Bridge, on Saturday.

A verdict of found drowned was recorded.

The Coroner, Mr. A. Douglas Cowburn, said it was a very remarkable case.

"The evidence seems to show," he said, "that Devlin was a most exemplary young fellow in every possible way. He supported his mother, was perfectly well conducted, earned good wages, and was attached to his young lady. He was the last person one would expect to commit suicide, and there is literally no evidence as to how he came into the water."

Cornelius Devlin, of Waldegrave-road, Dagenham, said that when he saw his brother on Wednesday he was quite well and cheerful. He had never suffered from giddiness.

"My brother was the only one in the family who could not swim. We could not get him to go," he added. "He was not short of money and had no troubles. I cannot account for this at all, and would have thought it impossible."

GIRL FRIEND'S STORY.

Daisy Vera Maeers, of Moor-lane, Cranham, who said she was a great friend of Devlin, declared that they were both to have left in his car on Thursday evening to go to Manchester and visit Devlin's parents. On Wednesday evening they went for a ride in the car.

"When we came back and were standing outside my house," she continued, "he suddenly said, 'Vera, I have gone blind.' He fell forward and I held him. For about five minutes he could not see anything, and then a 'bus came along and he ran to catch it, asking me to call for him next night. I never saw him again. Later I found that he never caught the 'bus.

"I was with him practically every night, and he never complained of his eyes before. He was always quite well," Miss Maeers added.

Coroner: You were on perfectly friendly terms?—Yes.

Dr. Rees Phillips, divisional surgeon, said death was due to drowning. There was no sign of blindness, and Devlin appeared to have got into the water some time on Thursday morning.

"I found nothing wrong with his eyes," the doctor added, "but from what I have heard it seems like some temporary disturbance of the circulation of the eye."

"ROAD FATALITY SEQUEL"

Mr. D. A. Graham, of 62, Colombo-road, Ilford, writes to us concerning a case in which he was the defendant at Southend Police Court, and which was reported in the "Recorder" of July 20th under the heading quoted above.

He points out that the sub-heading, "Ilford man said to have driven dangerously," was misleading, in that it suggested that the case against him was proved.

The facts were that the summons was dismissed without the defence being called upon, the Bench deciding that on the evidence given by the prosecution no jury would be likely to convict.

CHILD INJURED AT PLAY.

While Thomas Kelley, aged 8, of 165, Bentry-road, Dagenham, was playing in Becontree-avenue, on Friday, he fell and fractured one of his arms.

The child was taken in the Dagenham ambulance to Oldchurch Hospital, and detained.

305 PATIENTS WAITING.

"Full House" Report at King George Hospital.

132 SURGICAL CASES.

The official figures of the work of King George Hospital during July tell a startling story.

On the last day of the month, notwithstanding that the ward accommodation had been strained to the uttermost, there were still 305 patients on the waiting list!

The list comprises 132 surgical cases and 138 ear, nose and throat cases, the remainder being 25 gynaecological and 10 medical cases.

Patients are unable to get in because there is not room for them.

There could be no more convincing proof of the urgency of the need for building new wards and providing additional beds.

How valuable a service the hospital renders to the people of Ilford, Barking and Dagenham is shown by the record of work actually done.

During the month no fewer than 252 patients were admitted and 240 discharged, the average number resident daily being 151.4.

The attendances in the several departments were:—

Casualty	1,562.
Massage	1,431.
X-ray	324
Out-patient	650.

Last week 142.8 patients were resident daily, 66 patients having been admitted and the same number discharged. There were 380 attendances in the casualty department, the others being: Massage, 326; X-ray, 73; out-patient, 138.

"A VERY BAD CASE."

Motorist Heavily Fined for Dangerous Driving.

"This is a very bad case, and we are bound to protect the public," said Mr. J. Trumble (chairman) at Stratford Police Court, on Wednesday, in imposing a fine of £15, with costs on Leslie Watkins, of 162, Wallwood-road, Leytonstone, who was summoned for dangerous driving in Ilford-lane, on June 26th.

Mrs. Charlotte Gibbs, of 153, North-street, Barking, said she was alighting from a tram just past the "Plough" when she was knocked down by a motor car. She had only one foot off the tram and had just left go of the hand rail. She was hurt and was taken to hospital by ambulance.

Another witness, who was walking near the scene of the accident, said he saw a motor car attempting to pass between the kerb and the tram. He saw Mrs. Gibbs knocked down. He estimated the motor car's speed at 30 m.p.h.

Arthur Phillips, of 48, Kingsley-road, Barkingside, conductor of the tram, said that when his tram stopped two people alighted and two got on.

Just as he was going to give the signal to move on he had to wait for Mrs. Gibbs, who was coming from the far end of the saloon. He helped her to the roadway and she got off backwards. As he turned to ring the bell he heard the screeching of brakes and the woman scream. He looked round and saw the woman being pushed along the ground by the motor car.

Watkins said he was attempting to pass between the kerb and the tram, as he thought the people had finished getting off the tram. The lady got off the car when he was a few yards from her.

BANKRUPT COMPANY DIRECTOR.

Seeks to Reduce Wife's Maintenance Order.

Michael Vaughan, of 15, Broomhill-road, Goodmayes, appeared at Stratford Police Court on Thursday to make further representation to the Justices to show reason why they should vary a maintenance order granted to his wife on the grounds that his means had been reduced.

At a previous hearing Vaughan told the Bench that he had been a company director and had lost his position through having to go to prison because he did not keep up payments to his wife in accordance with the terms of the order.

He also said "My wife is maliciously doing all she can to drag me into the gutter, as she threatened to do years ago."

The wife, Mrs. Maude Rebecca Vaughan, of 4, Minster-parade, Upminster-road, Hornchurch, alleged that her husband was deliberately defying the order of the Court.

At the resumed hearing evidence was given by two witnesses to the effect that they had both heard Vaughan state that he did not intend to comply with the order.

Vaughan now said he was bankrupt, and in the hands of the Official Receiver.

The Bench decided to adjourn the application until the bankruptcy inquiry had been held.

FIRE BRIGADE BUSY.

It was not a popular week-end among members of the Ilford Fire Brigade.

They had eight fire calls on the three days and dealt with six accident cases as well as a number of private cases.

Details are given elsewhere.

WELL-KNOWN CRICKETER HURT.

Mr. T. A. Lyon's Eye Injury.

Mr. Arthur Lyon, the well-known Ilford C.C. player, was one of three persons who met with injury or illness on the cricket field during last week end.

While batting for Ilford second eleven against Walthamstow away on Monday, he attempted to pull a fast ball which came up from the edge of the bat and struck him in the eye.

He was wearing glasses, one of the lenses of which was shattered but, owing to the glass being of a special kind no splinter penetrated his eye, though his eyelid was very badly cut.

He was unconscious for several minutes, and was taken to a hospital at Walthamstow and afterwards sent home.

Doctors say his sight is not affected but he is still confined to his bed.

On Saturday a similar accident befell a player on the Ilford Baptist C.C. ground in Horns-road.

The player—Gibbs, of East Ham Brotherhood C.C.—was struck in the eye by a ball rising sharply off his bat and was rushed to the King George Hospital for treatment.

While batting against Barley Mow for Jurgens on Monday, at Newbury Park, Pavitt had to be taken home by car when he found it impossible to continue his innings through sun-stroke.

GREAT EXODUS FROM ILFORD.

Over 20,000 Leave by Train and Coach.

It is estimated that at least 30,000 people left Ilford during the holiday week-end, most of them for their annual vacation and many for the week-end.

And yet the parks and the bathing places and the streets were full of holiday makers who were enjoying to the full the ideal weather which graced the last Bank Holiday of summer.

Cranbrook-road and the High-road wore the aspect of seaside promenades on Monday evening. Girls in flannel trousers and vivid shirts were most conspicuous but their male friends were not far behind, most of them wearing coloured shirts, with no coats over them to prevent the rest of the town getting a treat.

The Bathing Pool in the Valentines Park was probably the Mecca which attracted the greatest number of pilgrims.

On Monday morning it was hardly possible to see the water for bathers, who wore costumes of every shade of colour and contributed to a dazzling effect.

Saturday and Sunday were also busy days at the Pool, and Tuesday and Wednesday did not fall far short.

It is, by the way, surprising that so few Ilford people realise that the Pool is now open till noon on Sundays.

WELL-BEHAVED BATHERS.

Mr. Rouse, the superintendent, had a hard holiday of it but he paid a great tribute to Ilford bathers who, he said, were perfectly well-behaved and gave him no trouble at all in spite of the fact that throughout the holiday he had to impose limits to the length of time bathers stayed in the baths—this to give those waiting a chance.

There were 2,500 bathers on Monday, not a record, but the takings were £30 above record.

Hundreds of families picnicked in the parks, and at least 3,000 watched the Ilford C.C. match at various stages of its progress. Tennis courts, and bowling greens were fully patronised.

THE GREAT EXODUS.

A "Recorder" reporter who sought to discover how many people went outside Ilford for their holiday, was told at the railway station that 17,000 had left for various coast resorts during the week-end.

Margate and Clacton held pride of place with Southend, while Brighton proved a great attraction.

Trainloads of people were conveyed to Grange Hill station for Chigwell Row.

The coach services vied with the trains for popularity. A tour of the principal booking offices disclosed that about 5,000 bookings were made, coast resorts being, of course, the most favoured.

There were long queues outside Ilford station waiting for buses to Chigwell Row and Chingford.

The lake in Valentines Park was thronged with boaters. From 10 in the morning throughout the day the motor boat was kept on the move, and it was very difficult to obtain a smaller craft.

The refreshment buffet had a record day.

BOOKISH BARKING.

One Person in Every Four a Library Borrower.

The record total of 428,814 books were issued from all departments of the Barking Public Library during the year ending March 31st, states the report of the librarian, Mr. F. W. McLaren.

This was an increase of 81,624, or 19 per cent, over the figure for the previous year.

Of the total mentioned 286,864 were issued by the adult lending library; the junior and school libraries came next with 133,314, followed by the reference library with 6,002 and the two branch libraries on the Becontree Estate with 2,634.

The total books circulated by the Barking library since the adoption of the Libraries Acts in 1888 is 3,680,592, of which 69.96 per cent. have been issued during the past nine years, that is, since the opening of the present building.

The total number of books in stock now stands at 37,173.

The number of persons using the Libraries at the close of the year exceeded the previous year's total by 2,752 the numbers for the two years being 15,695 for 1933 and 12,943 for 1932. Of these 9,668 are adult and 6,027 juvenile readers, and, in addition, 3,241 borrowers hold supplementary tickets entitling them to the loan of extra non-fiction books, making the total number of tickets in use 18,936. The percentage of borrowers to the population is 24.14.

The reading rooms have been well patronised although the estimated attendance of 206,624 is slightly lower than the previous year, when 213,688 readers were recorded.

"The Library Committee have, this year, combined with the Ilford and Dagenham Library Authorities in formulating a Joint Hospital Library scheme to supply books to the King George Hospital, Ilford, and Oldchurch Hospital, Romford," the report states. "The scheme, which operates from April 1st, 1933, provides for two of the three authorities to send 100 books each to the King George Hospital. And the other Authority to send 100 books to the Oldchurch Hospital, these books to be changed every four months. Every precaution is being taken to ensure the safe return and cleanliness of the books."

A stone sarcophagus, recently unearthed on the Upney Housing Estate and believed to be about 1,700 years old, is being exhibited in the library.

HE HAD TO WALK FROM SOUTHEND!

Holiday-Maker Collapses in Ilford.

BOY'S FALL FROM TREE.

Ambulances Busy with Week-End Crop of Accidents.

A boy who fell from a tree, and a man who had to walk home from Southend because he had lost his return ticket, were among the accident cases dealt with by the Ilford Council ambulances this week.

The boy was Frederick Everitt (6), of 112, Lawrence-avenue, Manor Park. He fell from a tree in Uphall Recreation Ground on Thursday afternoon and received severe head injuries.

The unfortunate holiday-maker was Leonard Gudlevy (21), of 42, Fortham-road, Upper Holloway.

He had been to Southend during the week-end and had spent all his money and lost his return ticket.

So he set out to walk home. He collapsed in Eastern-avenue at the junction of Beehive-lane on Monday afternoon and was taken to the King George Hospital suffering from exhaustion.

Samuel Parham (61), of 47, Cleves-road, East Ham was knocked down by a motor car in the High-road, near Grove-road, Chadwell Heath, on Friday afternoon and received injuries to the head.

A motor-cycle combination, on which two men were riding, overturned in Eastern-avenue, at Gantshill Cross, on Sunday morning and one of the men Edward Martin (26), of 23, White's-lane, Walthamstow suffered injuries to the head and face.

Two people were hurt in a collision between two cars in the High-road, near Lockwood-road on Sunday morning. Royal West (32), of 229, Blackpen-road, Sidcup, received injuries to the side and shock, and Arthur Morris (35), of 34, Plumstead-road, Woolwich, had his fingers badly lacerated.

Alfred MacDowell 22, Whalebone-avenue, Dagenham was cycling in Eastern-avenue near Happy Valley on Sunday morning when he was knocked down by a motor car and received injuries to the head and foot.

On Monday afternoon in Valentines Park, Ivy Baines (12), of 15, Bonham-road, Chadwell Heath injured her leg when she fell over a wire.

A Hillman coach conductor—George Sudbury (24), of 29, Sidmouth-street, Kings Cross received severe injuries on Tuesday afternoon when, in the High-road, near Grove-road he put his head out of a window of the coach and struck it on a tram standard which the coach was passing.

All the injured persons were taken to King George Hospital.

Two occupants of a motor-cycle combination were hurt when the machine skidded and overturned in Fencepiece-road, at the junction of New North-road on Monday. Harry Galley (45), of 2, Dalop-cottages, New North-road, Barkingside, and George Gregory (50), of 70, Heath-road, West Ham, both received injuries to the head.

On Monday evening George Walkinshaw, of 1, Leicester-gardens, Seven Kings, received head injuries when he was knocked down by a motor car near Newbury Park Station.

INJURED BY MOTOR CAR.

Richard Jix, of 121, Heath-road, Chadwell Heath, was crossing the High-road, Chadwell Heath, on Saturday, when he was knocked down by a motor-car driven by Mr. W. J. Evans, of Bournemouth.

Mr. Jix received injuries that necessitated his removal in the Dagenham ambulance to Oldchurch Hospital, Romford.

ALLEGED SUSPECT DISCHARGED.

Dagenham Man Given Benefit of Doubt.

Thomas Charles Morris, aged 18, a press operator, of no fixed abode, was charged at Stratford Police Court on Wednesday with being found for an unlawful purpose in the canteen of Messrs. Pritchard and Golds factory, Chequers-lane, Dagenham Dock, and also with being found in possession of housebreaking implements.

P.C. George Fuller, 912K, said he was called to the canteen early Wednesday morning where he saw accused detained by a watchman. Witness asked him what he was doing there and he said "Just having a look round." When told that he would be taken into custody he made no reply. When searched only a pen-knife and a propelling pencil were found on him. After witness had taken prisoner to the police station he went back to the canteen, where he found a sheath knife and a pair of scissors, which accused, later, admitted to be his property.

Accused said he was crossing the field at the rear of Messrs. Pritchett and Gold as it was a short cut to where he wanted to get. He knew he should not have entered the canteen but he was not there for any ulterior motive.

The clerk (Mr. L. H. Walden): You are on probation?

Accused: Yes.

Mr. F. W. Fox, probation officer, said accused had reported to him regularly and was generally well behaved. He did not live with his parents, but in a tent near Dagenham Dock.

Morris was given the benefit of the doubt and discharged on the understanding that he carried out his obligations under the existing period of probation.

AN OLD ILFORD SCHOOL

Closing After Career of 39 Years.

Dear Sir,—May I record among the many interesting items which constantly appear in your columns, the passing of an old Ilford school? This school has undoubtedly played its part in the town's affairs.

Almost 39 years ago Mrs. A. M. Barnes opened a preparatory school in Woodlands-road and during this long period she has personally conducted its affairs in a most conscientious and efficient manner, as many of her old pupils would willingly testify.

Ill health has now compelled her to close the school. I am sure that you will agree that Mrs. Barnes is worthy of this small tribute.—Yours faithfully,

W. R. I.

£30,000,000 FOR ESSEX HEALTH INSURANCE.

Dear Sir,—With reference to last week's article on the Essex Insurance Committee's coming-of-age, I am sorry if my notes stated that £30 million had been paid to the doctor during the 21 years.

This is not correct: it should be £3 millions. The total benefits, including payments to doctors, chemists, sick pay and benefits arising from the various valuation schemes, would approximately be the larger sum.—Yours faithfully,

YOUR CORRESPONDENT

SUNDAY IN THE PARK.

Dear Sir,—Thanks to the progressive Borough Council, we partake our tea in the Valentines Tea House on Sunday, and rest our limbs in a nice new Council park chair.

Now what about a row on the lake to expand our chest on Sunday. Are the ducks only to enjoy the water?

There are quite enough clouds (economic and otherwise) over our heads all the week. Surely the local religious corporations cannot restrict our pleasures and happiness by still keeping that cloud of dullness hanging above us on the seventh day.—Yours faithfully,

OLD ANTI-RUT.

WYCLIFFE YOUNG PEOPLE'S INSTITUTE.

An interesting address was given by Mr. A. J. B. Haynes, of Eastern-avenue Methodist Church, at the meeting of the Wycliffe Young People's Institute on Sunday. The solos, "I will sing of Thy mercies," and "Thanks be to God," were well rendered by Mrs. Marjorie Wilmott.

Letters to the Editor.

ILFORD'S TUBE—WHEN?

"Something More Than a Dream Before Long."

DECENCIES OF TRAVEL.

Dear Sir,—I read with much interest, and with some amusement, the letter which appeared in your last issue over the name of "Patience." Of course, I have good reason to know something of the alertness and straining eagerness of the "watchdogs" on the Tube Committee who are resident in the North Hainault Ward. I shall not be allowed to slumber nor sleep on my tedious daily journey from and back to Ilford on the L.N.E.R. while they bark so persistently and ferociously.

I wish to assure the residents of North Hainault and my friends on the Tube Committee that matters are not being allowed to drift. They will, however, appreciate that as the new Transport Board has but recently come into being a short time must necessarily elapse before we can reasonably subject it to any sort of pressure. That does not mean a policy of laissez faire; on the contrary, much has already been done.

On the suggestion of Sir George Hamilton I got into direct touch with Lord Ashfield during the very first week of the Board's existence. We were anxious that every member of the Board should receive without delay a copy of our L.N.E.R. report, also a copy of our Tube Report. Acting on instructions received from Lord Ashfield, I posted the necessary copies addressed to him personally, and I had his definite undertaking that they would be placed in the hands of his colleagues on the Board without delay. I may add that I took the precaution of enclosing to him at the same time a copy of the "Ilford Recorder" of the 16th March, which contained the full report of that eventful meeting with the chiefs of the London North Eastern Railway when Lord Ashfield himself was present.

I have every confidence that Lord Ashfield and his Board will not fail us, and I quite expect that before long the tube for Ilford will be something more than a dream. I would, therefore, counsel "Patience" to be patient for a month or two longer.

THE NEW L.N.E.R. TRAINS.

Just a word or two on another matter. We read in the "Ilford Recorder" last week the interesting news that an experimentally re-conditioned and re-upholstered train had made its appearance on the Ilford suburban service. The railway company are anxious that all our members, and indeed the whole of the travelling public of Ilford, should see that train and pass their judgment on it. They have, in fact, suggested to me that the train might be viewed at Ilford Station on an evening mutually convenient. I hope to be in a position to announce the date in your next issue.

Meantime a very large number of those travelling to and from the City will have tested the comfort of it for themselves. I may say that I have travelled in it myself from Bow to Ilford this evening. I stood on Ilford platform and watched it as it moved out. I saw something then which filled me with disgust.

There was one compartment with one occupant, who was in the form of a man. He sat on one side with his two feet planted on the seat on the other side. And we complain of filthy carriages!

Words fail me. I only wish I could have been near that man or that I knew who he was. What I do say is this, that that sort of thing must be stopped, and the travelling public of Ilford must see that it is stopped. I call on every member of our Association and the great body of City workers who use the L.N.E.R. service to co-operate with the railway company in a determined effort once for all to preserve the ordinary decencies of travel. We must not hesitate to shame publicly, if that is possible, these people who have absolutely no regard for the rights, convenience and comfort of others.

I have already suggested to the railway company that a short polite but unambiguous request should be shown in printed form in some conspicuous place in every compartment, to the effect that seats are not intended for feet, whether they be small and daintily covered or large and filthily shod. I feel that by so doing the glance of the eye of a fellow passenger from such a notice directly to the offender would be more effective than any verbal correction. Perhaps in time all decently-minded people would thus be able to convey to the most unruly that such things are simply not done by self-respecting railway users.—Faithfully yours,

DAVID HUTCHISON,
Hon. Sec.,
Ilford and District Railway Users' Association.
23, Audley-gardens,
Seven Kings.

Chafing at Delay.

Dear Sir,—I have read the letter of "Patience," in your last issue, wherein he speaks of the shouting and tumult of the Town Hall meeting on the question of travelling facilities for residents of Ilford and district. I especially notice that he refers to the North Hainault Ward Committee and the so-called "watchdogs" of the Railway Users' Association. He concludes by asking what steps are being taken to give more information to the public with regard to the position up to the present.

As one who has suffered for many years the inconvenience and annoyance of the much overcrowded trains, both to and from London, I can most sincerely sympathise with those who have to do so during the present heat wave.

Outside the Ilford station one evening of last week on a day when the point of 90 in the shade had been reached, I met a friend who had just come down from Liverpool-street by the five something train. He was almost gasping for breath, and all he could say for some moments was: "Phew! Phew! Phew!" When he had recovered sufficiently to speak, his first remark was: "What about the tube?" And what about anything you like to prevent such a condition of things as this—at the same time tugging at his saturated collar and tie.

"All day in London," he went on, "nearly suffocated—London at 90 in the shade, and then the supposed comfort of the second-class carriage for the journey home, with no less than six seated on each side and eight others standing—20 persons, where there should be only room for 12. Not only is it disgusting—it is also cruel."

This I had to listen too, with many other remarks that I need not trouble you with, but at the same time I was hoping that perchance someone of the Ilford and District Railway Users' Association would be near enough to hear what was said.

At any rate, I feel that such a time as that would be ideal for holding another town's meeting and give the people the chance to speak as they feel with regard to Dilly and Dally, or whom it might be who are holding up the schemes that have been sent forward. It should be a splendid opportunity for those who wish to help themselves by joining the Association and thereby strengthening the hands of the executive.

There should be no further delay in these matters, and I feel that "Patience" could have said more than he did. He could have sailed nearer the truth and called himself "Impatience," for however one can be patient under such conditions I fail to see.—Yours, etc.,

"IMPATIENCE."

IN THE COURTS.

AFTER THE HOLIDAY.

Tuesday's Reckoning Before the Bench.

Several cases of Bank Holiday drunkenness were dealt with by the Justices at Stratford Police Court on Tuesday.

"LIKE A MANIAC."

Told by Mr. W. A. Hurry (chairman) that as he could find the money with which to get drunk he could pay the fine, Henry Guy, a labourer, aged 45, of 22, Orchard-avenue, Barking, was not given time in which to find 40s. he was ordered to pay for assaulting a police constable by biting him, and 10s. for being drunk, and 10s. 6d. the doctor's fee incurred.

Guy was stated to have served a month's hard labour in 1927 for assaulting an officer while drunk.

"He was like a maniac," said P.C. Hope, who arrested him, "all the way to the station he was scratching like a mad thing."

Mr. Hurry: He did not know what he was doing?—No.

Guy said he had no clear recollection of what happened. He believed he had a broken arm as he could not lift it. He also had some teeth broken. He believed he was waiting for his wife to come back from holiday.

"WANTED TO FIGHT EVERYBODY."

Charles Stringer, labourer, aged 53, of 15, High-street, Barkingside, was fined 10s. or 7 days for being drunk and disorderly.

"I was only having a few words with my wife," he told the Bench, "and the constable came into the house."

The constable said to the Bench: "I was called to the house and the prisoner wanted to fight everybody. His wife and children were afraid of him and could not restrain him. They were afraid of him."

Mr. Hurry: Was he drunk?

P.C. Wood: He was very drunk.

A COSTLY SLEEP.

Thomas Keene, labourer, aged 26, of Perth-road, Barking, was fined 10s. for drunkenness. He was found asleep on the footpath and was taken to the police station by P.C. Harris.

TENANT ASSAULTED BY SUB-TENANT.

Wife Advised to Let Husband Pay Rent.

A squabble between a tenant and sub-tenant had a sequel at Stratford Police Court on Thursday, when Charles H. Jones, of 127, Keith-road, Barking, summonel Edith Baker, of the same address for assault.

Jones said Mrs. Baker and her husband were his sub-tenants, and on July 19th he took the latch key away from defendant and she assaulted him, breaking a tooth and injuring his nose. He could do little to defend himself as he was exhausted. He managed to pick up a chair and put it on the table as a means of protection, but defendant picked it up and would have hit him with it, but for a child entering the room.

In reply to Capt. A. Eve (chairman), complainant said there had been no trouble since. He had repeatedly given the Bakers notice to quit.

Mrs. Baker said she offered Jones 7s. for rent, part of 15s. 5d. owing, and he would not take it. He was in her kitchen at the time and he went to the mantelpiece and took the latch key. She tried to get the key back. She was anxious to get fresh accommodation, but having a child she was handicapped in getting rooms.

The case was dismissed, Jones being admonished by the chairman to leave the Bakers in peace and not to interfere with them in anyway. Mrs. Baker was advised to let her husband have all the dealings with Mr. Jones.

64TH CONVICTION.

Man of Seventy With Terrible Record.

Charles Smith, aged 70, a labourer, of no fixed abode, was convicted for the 64th time at Stratford Police Court on Saturday, when he was charged with stealing a leather music case, valued at 4s. 11d., the property of Samuel Reed, fancy goods dealer, of 16, East-street, Barking.

Accused was seen on Friday morning to take the case from outside prosecutor's shop, where it was exposed for sale. He walked off with it and boarded a tram. He placed the case on a seat and sat on it.

Mr. Reed, who had been told by a little girl of what had happened, boarded the tram and told Smith that he had reason to believe that he had stolen the case.

Accused, who pleaded guilty, said he was making his way to the country, where he hoped to get work in the fields.

Det. Moseley said all the previous convictions were in respect of similar thefts. No goods were safe outside a shop while Smith was about.

Accused was ordered six months hard labour.

ILFORD WOMAN FINED FOR FRAUD.

Obtained Meals by Means of "Old Trick."

Freda Maud Irison, aged 32, a single woman employed by the People's Dispensary of Sick Animals, of 111, Courtland-avenue, Ilford, was fined £5 or 31 days' imprisonment at Stratford Police Court on Friday, when she was charged with defrauding Messrs. J. Lyons, caterers, in respect of non-payment for food on three occasions at their Walthamstow branch.

Accused pleaded guilty.

For the prosecution it was stated that all the offences took place at the same shop and the methods used were identical. It was prisoner's habit to go to a table and have a meal, afterwards going to the toilet rooms. On leaving she would go to another table and be served with a drink or an ice to the value of 2d. On each occasion she would go to the cash desk and pay the smaller bill instead of the one for the meal.

Ald. B. S. J. Pitt (chairman): It is an old trick.

Frederick O. Stevens, chief inquiry officer of Messrs. Lyons, said he stopped the accused as she left the shop the previous day, and on being questioned replied: "I am sorry. I will never do it again."

Mr. Stevens said he believed accused had been defrauding the firm for a long time past. She had told him that she earned £2 2s. a week.

In answer to the chairman accused said she had no reason for defrauding the company. It was "just a lapse of morals," and she would not do it again.

Alderman Pitt: You seem to have been doing this systematically.—I did it three times, yes.

Alderman Pitt: The inference is that you have done it more than that. It was a deliberate act. If you were a woman in a poor position it would be a different matter altogether.

STOLE FROM BROTHER.

Barkingside Youth Remanded

"I am very sorry. I don't know what makes me do these things."

This statement was made by Edwin Thomas Howe, aged 19, a shopboy, of 15, Addison-road, Barkingside, who was charged at Stratford Police Court on Saturday, with stealing a 10s. note belonging to his brother, Alfred Joseph Howe.

The prosecutor said he and his brother slept in the same bedroom. On Thursday he missed a 10s. note from his trousers pocket and he told the police.

Mr. W. Dooly (deputy clerk): Have you lost money before?—Yes, many times, otherwise I would not be here against him.

Det. Ellis said that prisoner had been in trouble before in connection with theft. He was at present under the supervision of a Court officer.

A remand was ordered.

WIRELESS "PIRATE" FINED.

James Alfred Brooksband, of 127, Tilney-road, Dagenham, was fined 40s. and 10s. 6d. costs at Stratford Police Court, on Tuesday, for working a wireless set without a licence.

LOST CONTROL OF HIMSELF.

Thought Daughter Was In Closed Cinema.

GIVEN BENEFIT OF DOUBT.

Seen late at night banging on the doors of the Empire Cinema, Ilford-lane, in the effort to effect an entry, because he thought his daughter was inside, Arthur George Tyrell, aged 59, cellarman, of 92, Hampton-road, Ilford, was charged at Stratford Police Court, with being guilty whilst drunk of disorderly behaviour.

P.c. McEwan said he was off duty in plain clothes in Ilford-lane on Thursday night when he saw the accused banging on the doors of the Empire Cinema, and a crowd was attracted. When he asked prisoner what he was doing, he said, "My daughter is in there." He asked accused to stop banging on the doors and to behave himself. He would not. After satisfying himself that the cinema was securely fastened and that nobody was on the premises, witness told him he would be taken into custody. Accused smelled very strongly of drink and in his opinion was drunk. Prisoner was very excited all the time.

Prisoner said he went to the cinema to meet his daughter. After he had had his supper and she had not returned he thought he would stroll round and meet her as he had done before. When he reached the cinema he saw there was a light in the office. Thinking that his daughter was inside, he banged on the doors to try and get in. Getting no reply he tried the side door but again could get no reply. He thought he was justified in stopping there waiting for his daughter to come out. Naturally as he was employed in the wine and spirit trade his clothing smelt of drink. He himself, had not had anything to drink.

Prisoner added that he had lived in Ilford for 29 years and had always been respected. He rather resented the constable catching hold of him.

Mr. W. J. O. Sheat (chairman): What do you think the police are for?—I can see now that he was doing his duty.

Miss Ethel Margery Tyrell said she prepared her father's supper at 10.45 and she left home to keep an appointment with a female attendant at the cinema. She also had to see the manager. She arrived at the cinema a few minutes before 11 and left about 11.30. She went straight home. As her father had been to the cinema for her when she was employed there she went back again to look for him. He only had tea with his supper and there was no drink in the house.

When she went to the cinema on the second occasion, she saw the light in the office which should have been switched out. She went round and told the manager to save him from being knocked up by the police.

Dismissing the charge on payment of costs, Mr. Sheat said "It is obvious that you (accused) lost entire control of yourself. There are officers ready to help you and instead of asking their help, you add to their responsibilities by causing a disturbance. We will give you the benefit of the doubt in not being drunk, but do not be so foolish again."

WIFE RESCUES HUSBAND WITH CHOPPER.

Boy With Bow and Arrow Causes Neighbours to Fight

A fray between neighbours in which a wife came to her husband's rescue by striking his assailant with a chopper was described at Stratford Police Court, on Thursday, when William Charles Smyth of 23, Croppath-road, Dagenham, summoned Albert Redpath, of 25, Croppath road, for assault.

Complainant said the trouble started through defendant's boy threatening his little girl with a bow and arrow. He (complainant) saw the boy hold the bow and arrow to the face of his child and he went out of his house to remonstrate with the boy. While he was speaking to the child defendant came out of his house and asked him what he was doing. He told Redpath what had occurred and as he went to re-enter his house, Redpath, so he alleged, pulled him round and punched him hard on the side of the head. He was then forced against wooden railing and was knocked about by defendant, who had become a madman. He was knocked unconscious and he remembered no more until he came to on the couch in his front room. Because of his injuries he had been receiving medical treatment.

Mrs. Mabel Smyth, wife of complainant, said she was with her husband when Redpath's boy threatened their child. She saw defendant "lamb" into her husband and she ran into the garden and asked a neighbour to stop the fight, but he walked into his house and took no notice of her entreaties. She was scared and seizing a chopper from the scullery she ran to the street and struck Redpath with it and made him release her husband.

Redpath did not deny the assault and declared that he had great provocation.

All parties were bound over to keep the peace for 12 months in £12, the chairman (Capt. A. Eve) remarking that he could quite understand a wife seeking to protect her husband, but she must not do it with a chopper.

DROVE PUPIL'S CAR FOR TRIAL RUN.

Case Against Dagenham Man Dismissed.

A car driving instructor who drove his pupil's car without the owner's consent, was charged with the offence on Monday at Stratford Police Court.

The accused was W. O. Callogan, aged 30, foundry hand, of 48, Crosby-road, Dagenham, who was also charged with driving without a licence or an insurance certificate.

Thomas Andrews, hairdresser, of 191, Ballards-road, Dagenham, said he had a motor car, and as he was not an efficient driver the accused was teaching him. Something went wrong with the car on Friday, and as he wanted to go to Brighton in it on Monday, he gave prisoner the key of the garage to enable him to put the car in order. He did not see prisoner again until he was arrested.

Police evidence showed that the garage door had been left open. Accused was stopped by the police motor patrol, and he agreed that he had taken the car out without Mr. Andrews permission.

Prisoner told the Court that there was a defect in the car, and as it was wanted for Brighton on Monday, he took it out for a trial run. "It was as much for the benefit of the owner as for me," he said.

Mr. T. Philpot (chairman) said the Bench believed accused's story, but he would have to be more careful in future.

The case was dismissed on payment of 12s. costs.

GAS DEATH THROUGH BUSINESS WORRIES.

Depression through business worries and ill-health are presumed to have been the cause of the gas death of Ernest Harriman (69), of 8, Chaucer-gardens, Ilford, on Wednesday of last week.

An inquest was held at the Ilford Town Hall, on Friday, by the Coroner (Dr. A. Ambrose).

Frank Harriman, of 24, Widdecombe-gardens, Ilford, said the dead man was his brother, whom he had not seen for year. He had had a business at Church End, but the lease expired. Before that he had a serious operation. He took a business at Ilford, and apparently it had got on his mind and depressed him.

P.C. G. Clayton, of J Division, said he was called at 9.30 a.m. on Wednesday of last week and, looking through a window saw a man on the floor of a room. He went in and turned off the gas and sent for a doctor.

Dr. Robt. John Chatty said he found Harriman dead, death being due to coal gas poisoning.

A verdict of "death from coal gas poisoning, self-administered," was recorded.

ILFORD MAN LEAVES £16,000

Mr. William Nathaniel Sparks, of Ilford and Limehouse, marine surveyor and barge builder, who died recently at the age of 85, left £16,103 (net personalty £10,826).

MOTOR-CYCLIST'S DASH TO DEATH.

Speed of 60—65 Miles an Hour?

CORONER TELLS WITNESS HE WILL BE THE NEXT.

Obstructing Bushes in Woodford Avenue.

"The excessive speed" of a motor cyclist, who was stated to have been driving at 60 to 65 miles an hour before a crash in which he met his death, was referred to at the inquest, held at the Ilford Town Hall on Friday, on Frederick George Carter (24), of 2, Vale-gardens, Finsbury Park.

Comment was also made on the bushes down the centre of Woodford-avenue which were said to obstruct vision.

The coroner (Dr. A. Ambrose), sat with a jury, and after the proceedings "lectured" another motor cyclist who had admitted a speed of 45 to 50 miles an hour.

Mr. D. O'Malley was for the driver of the car.

William Norwood, of 3, Vale-grove, Finsbury Park, identified the dead man as his brother-in-law who, he said, had been riding a motor cycle for three years. He was in good health.

Leonard Albert Little, of "El Nish," Grange-crescent, Chigwell, said he was in Collinwood-gardens at 8.40 p.m., on the day of the accident and was sitting in a car facing Woodford-avenue. He saw a car approaching from the cut-out towards Collinwood-gardens, and when it approached the crown of the road a motor cyclist appeared, travelling from the direction of Woodford. The car collided with the motor cycle broadside on, turning the motor cycle completely round and throwing the motor cyclist on to the pavement on the Woodford side of Collinwood-gardens.

SKID MARK OF 45 FEET.

It was difficult for him to judge the speed of the car, but it was going very slowly. He put the speed of the motor cycle at about 35 miles an hour. He heard no horns sounded.

Mr. O'Malley: Do you know there was a skid mark of 45 feet made by the motor cycle.

Witness: I was so informed afterwards.

Replying further to Mr. O'Malley, witness said that if the motor cyclist had swerved to his near side he would have been all right.

Answering a juryman witness said he heard that the accident was due to the trees in the centre of Woodford-avenue. He went there the day after with a car and he could see all right when he got to the very edge of the cut-out on to the road.

Mr. Vials (the juryman): Otherwise you could not see any traffic approaching?—Not unless you get right to the edge of the cut-out.

SPEED OF 40 TO 45 MILES AN HOUR.

William Henry Scanlan, of 10, Wordsworth-avenue, South Woodford, said he was in a car and was stopped at Beechwood-gardens, several yards on the Woodford side of Collinwood-gardens. He saw a motor cyclist coming from behind him at a speed of about 40 to 45 miles an hour.

He saw the car emerge from the cut-out but he could not see it until the front wheels actually came out because of the trees.

The motor cyclist swerved to the near side and braked but the collision occurred.

Replying to Mr. O'Malley, witness said the motor cyclist was on his off-side when he passed him. This, because of the shrubs, would prevent him seeing the car as quickly as he would have done had he been on his near side.

SIXTY MILES AN HOUR.

The motor cyclist could have got past the car on his near side if the car was stopped.

John William Prior, of 30, Selsoe-road, Woodford Green, said he was proceeding along Woodford-avenue, towards Southend. He was a mile from the scene of the accident when the motor cyclist passed him. He (witness) was doing 45-50 miles an hour and the motor cyclist was going at "a terrific speed—60 to 65 miles an hour."

William Hudson Wakefield, of 97, Collinwood-gardens, driver of the car, said he was turning into Collinwood-gardens. As he turned into the cut-out in third gear, he stopped because a car was going across. He looked up the road to his left for a distance of about 60 to 75 yards. The bushes did obstruct vision at that point.

He saw nothing and came on to the crown of the road. As he looked to his left again he saw a motor cyclist coming straight towards him and about 50 feet away. He stopped because he could not have got away in time to let the motor cyclist go behind him. The bumper bar of the car struck the motor cycle. When his car pulled up the front wheels were just over the crown of the road and there was room for the motor cyclist to go in front.

The Coroner: Why did he not do so?—He lost control.

He had been driving for three or four years!—The reason I say that is that he looked up as I sounded my horn, put his brake on and then yelled and put out his right hand. This would release one of the brakes.

CAR KNOCKED SIDEWAYS.

Replying to Mr. O'Malley, witness said the motor cycle knocked his car to the side of the road.

Answering Mr. Vials (a member of the jury), witness said he had driven down Collinwood-gardens every day for two and a quarter years. He had been driving eight and a half years and the only summons he had had was dismissed on payment of costs.

Dr. James Robinson, of the King George Hospital, said Carter was conscious when admitted but had a bad injury to the right leg. An operation was performed under an anaesthetic.

Later his breathing became very difficult and he died at 4.10 on Tuesday morning. He had a bruise on the head and death was due to haemorrhage of the brain and shock following the accident.

Addressing the jury the Coroner said the bushes probably somewhat obstructed the view of the man on the bicycle and the man in the car.

The jury returned a verdict of accidental death and said no blame attached to the driver of the car.

"The other man," they said, "was travelling at a most excessive speed."

The Coroner: I want a word with Mr. Prior.

Mr Prior stood up and the Coroner said, "You will be the next, I suppose, if you drive along at 45 or 50.

Mr. Prior: I have never touched 60.

The Coroner: You had better not touch 40

Mr. Prior: Where I was driving there were no side roads.

The Coroner: You boys riding at these reckless speeds will do away with yourselves.

MAN'S COLLAPSE AT WORK

Death at Ford Works.

How a man collapsed and died while plastering at Ford Works, on July 31st, was described to the Coroner (Dr. A. Ambrose) at an inquest held at the Ilford Town Hall on Friday, on Joseph Fisher (56), of 3, Kendal-avenue, Barking.

The widow stated that her husband went to work at 7.20 on July 31st, and appeared to be in good health.

William Riley, 14, Beckway-street, Walworth, said he was working with Fisher at Ford Works. They were up on a scaffolding. The job was not particularly heavy. At 3.30 Fisher gave a deep sigh and sank down on the platform. He had made no complaint of the heat or of pain.

Medical evidence showed that a postmortem examination revealed disease of the arteries of the heart, death being due to hardening of the arteries.

A verdict in accordance with medical evidence was recorded.

SCOUT NOTES.

The Jamboree in Full Swing.

A MIGHTY SPECTACLE.

Godollo: by air mail.

WHAT a show this is! What a welcome we have had!

The contingent of 2,000 which arrived on Monday had a wonderful reception—from the frontier right along the line to Budapest and Godollo the peasantry lined the side of the railway cheering them on (some of these good folk had been up since 4 a.m. to see the three trains through); and once Budapest was reached the reception was on the grand scale.

It has not taken long to settle in and find that language difficulties amount to nothing when there is a Scout smile and a friendly greeting a thousand miles from home.

THE GRAND OPENING.

The opening ceremony was a splash of colour which has succeeded in eclipsing even Arrowe. The crowded stands at the side of the gentle slope, the dense forest away in front with the white and gold altar standing out, the flutter of flags of all nations at the Jamboree on their flagstaffs all round the Rally Ground, and the huge crucifix over to the right. What a picture! But what a picture when each side of the centre stand, the Scouts of all nations marched across the Rally Ground to take up their positions. Soon the forest was edged with a fringe of crowded colour.

To the strains of the Hungarian national anthem the Regent of Hungary and the Chief Scout, Lord Baden-Powell, rode in on horseback, with an escort of cavalry. Slowly they rode along the winding line of Scouts in the distance, at times disappearing from view from the crowded stands flags slowly dipping in salute as they passed along. Then from far on the right the Chief and the Regent crossed the Rally Ground at a canter to pull up at the saluting base.

From the base the Regent of Hungary welcomed the visiting Scouts to Hungary. "You have come to Hungary," he said "from all parts of the world to testify to the magnificent and uplifting power of brotherhood represented by Scouting. The noble ties of friendship will, I believe, become stronger among you through the Fourth World Jamboree, I am convinced that the Jamboree will do much towards the promotion of human goodwill and peaceful co-operation for the general good of humanity."

THE CHIEF'S WELCOME.

Then the Chief Scout's voice was carried by loudspeakers to the farthest corners of the ground as once again he gave his message of greeting to his followers from all over the world.

"It is a real joy to me to see you all again, assembled here on the hospitable soil of Hungary.

"His Highness the Regent has done a very high honour to us and through us to our whole Movement by coming here in person to greet us. Further than this, he has also granted us the use of this beautiful camp for our camping ground.

"You would naturally want to show your gratitude to him by cheering His Highness and Count Teleki, but there is something they would value more highly. It is up to all of us to show him, by our conduct here, that we do fully appreciate the honour he has done to us and the belief he has in us.

"You have come together here to make personal friendships with your brother Scouts of other nations as peace-makers in the world. There is no time to waste. Make the most of the few hours you are here in getting into touch with the other fellows.

"YOU ARE THE FUTURE MEN."

"I hope that each one of you has a notebook in which to enter the names and addresses of the new friends you make each day, so that when you are back home again you can continue and keep up the friendship by letter and, if possible, by exchanging visits. I want to see men of all countries at peace with one another. You are the future men of your countries—so be friends.

"You will notice that I haven't brought the rain to-day!

"See all you can of this wonderful country while you are here, and, above all, make friends. Good luck, and good camping!"

THE MARCH PAST.

The band struck up and slowly from the left came the Hungarian Boy Scouts' national flag leading the march past. France headed the long line; Belgium followed, headed by two Scouts in peasant's costume; Roumania; Armenia; Syria in picturesque Bedouin head-dress; America replete with Stars and Stripes; Denmark with the old Norse horns of Jamboree memory; Latvia, each with a miniature flags; Iceland; Estonia, Norway with flags again; Holland; Lettland; Japan a little band of venturers from the East; and then came the British Empire, 2,000 strong, England and Northern Ireland giving three hearty British cheers as they went by in their six divisions, Wales with a Cymric yell, the Irish Free State's pipe band bringing them a wonderful reception. Of the oversea branches, British Scouts in Cairo (waving bunches of papyrus grass), British Guiana, Canada, Newfoundland, Ceylon, South Africa, New Zealand, Gibraltar, India, Jamaica, Trinidad, Malta and Palestine were represented.

The balloon went up with a vengeance as Sweden went by—each line had red, green and white balloons (the Hungarian colours) in their hands which they let loose to sail away on the strong wind as they passed the base. Czecho-Slovakia followed with some of their number in peasant costume; Poland added to their usual peasants with a mass of red and white flags, a Troop mounted on cycles and motor-cycles and fishermen with their nets. Then passed Yugo-Slavia; the Russian National Scouts; Sweden; Austria's host with their band with queer wooden instruments; Egypt; Iraq; Switzerland; Greece; Portugal and Siam.

To finish up the mighty procession came our Hungarian hosts, 8,000 strong, their grass plumes waving in the breeze giving them the appearance of knights of old, and accompanied by the camp fire brigade and fire engine (all Scouts).

As the nations passed by the Chief Scout they massed again in the distance on the far side of the Rally Ground, but as Hungary passed they formed up behind the bands in front of the stand.

THE CLIMAX.

Before the march past had finished came the most inspiring sight eyes can see—the 20,000 Scouts at the Jamboree from 34 countries rushing up the hill to rally to their Chief—the whole ground a swarm of vital youth. It was worth while travelling a thousand miles for that moment.

It was a climax upon climax as the Chief stepped from the saluting base into his car—the crowd surged forward with a mighty cheer as he rode off standing so that all could see.

A BABEL OF PRAISE.

Few religious services can have been as multi-lingual as the opening services on the first day of the Jamboree. At the Mass and Blessing of the flags on the Rally Ground the Bishop Shvoy, himself a Scouter, gave his address in English, Hungarian, French and German.

At the Protestant Service conducted by the Rev. M. P. G. Leonard the service sheets were printed in English, Hungarian, French and German, and as a result the hymns were sung and the Lord's Prayer recited by each Scout in his own native tongue. "Pat" himself confesses that he has rarely been so impressed as when the babel of tongues was united in praise.

SETTLING DOWN.

And now the camp is settling down to its greatest task—fraternising—and right well it is being done. Smatterings of French and German are mingling with the English boy's conversations, and as far as the staff is concerned it is not uncommon for a Hungarian to turn from a conversation with an Englishman and give instructions to an assistant in English. But the prize must go to the English boy who for half an hour managed to deceive all and sundry as to his true nationality. Another camp prize must surely go to the Scout who burst in upon another Scout with a story of an adventure he had had. His colleague was wearing nothing but shorts and shoes. He rattled off his story and suddenly stopped "You do speak English, don't you?" he queried in a moment of doubt. The answer was short and to the point: "Blimey, what do you take me for?"

To tour the camp is quite a problem, so vast it is, cut here and there by woodland, with the trim and newly decorated town of Godollo nestling into one side. But the tour is made worth while by the splendid decorations around indicative of the country's nature or the town's industry.

WALKING.

ROAD-WALKING IN ESSEX.

How F. E. Roberts Won Two Trophies Outright in Six Years.

(By J. B.).

THE fact that the Essex County Cycling and Athletic Association reached its Jubilee year, on May 2nd last, adds considerably to the interest of all events for which they are responsible, and the executive committee is naturally anxious that each of the 1933 fixtures shall in every respect be worthy of such an important occasion. At the moment the attention of officials is concentrated on the long distance road-walking championship, which is due for decision on Saturday next.

This race which will again start from the headquarters of the Valentines Sporting Club (Ilford), at the "Cooper's Arms," Chadwell Heath, and finish at the Pier, Southend-on-Sea, will be the thirteenth of the series, the history of which like that of most big sporting events contains much of varied interest.

It was twenty-four years ago that the first recognised county long-distance championship was held, and this came about when on 1st May 1909 the Southend Harriers promoted an event which was open to all amateur walkers possessing an Essex qualification. On this occasion the course was from Barking to Southend via Chadwell Heath (4½ miles), Romford (8½ miles), Brentwood (12¾ miles), Chelmsford (23¾ miles), Billericay (32 miles), Wickford (38½ miles), Rayleigh (43 miles), Leigh (48½ miles) and so eventually to Southend, making a total distance of 51 miles 5 furlongs 111 yards.

This route was followed in all races from that time up to 1914, so that the distance in those days was considerably longer than that introduced with the post-war revival, and which is still in vogue today.

R. A. JONES' TROPHY.

In 1909 the premier award was the "R. A. Jones" trophy, which could be won outright with three consecutive victories or an aggregate of four wins irrespective of their order.

In addition to that a gold medal was also presented to the winner, whilst a silver medal and a bronze medal went to the second and third men respectively. For this first race there were 21 starters, of which 18 finished, and the Woodford Green A.C., who were the team champions as recently as 1931, were prominent even in those early days. Twenty-four years ago there were no team honours to be gained, but the Woodford Club supplied the first man home in F. E. Roberts who completed the 51 miles in 8 hrs. 39 mins. 55 secs., with J. A. Clark, of the Essex Beagles, second in 8 hrs. 46 mins. 21 secs.

For the year 1910 the same conditions and course used for the maiden event again applied, and the Southend Harriers once more organised the race. That year the race was held on May 14th, but fewer competitors took part, notwithstanding the fact that, in addition to the awards for the first three men home, silver medals were awarded to those beating 10 hours for the 51 miles, and bronze medals offered for a second-class time standard.

Only nine men finished the distance on this occasion, and of this select few F. E. Roberts was again first, although his time of 8 hrs. 59 mins. 40 secs. was nearly ten minutes' slower than his previous effort. Second to him this time was another Woodford Green walker, in H. Parker, whose return was 9 hrs. 13 mins. 23 secs., whilst F. R. Wilson, of the promoting club, was third, in 9 hrs. 41 mins. 17 secs.

TROPHY WON OUTRIGHT.

The third race of the series, viz. that of 1911, was also held in May, and F. E. Roberts who was again the winner, gained a comfortable victory in 8 hrs. 37 mins. 9 secs., and so made the "R. A. Jones" trophy his own property after only three years of competition. In this particular race a new name, in C. A. Wilson, was placed second on the list, with a time of 9 hrs. 14 mins. 2 secs., while F. R. Wilson was again third, in 9 hrs. 58 mins. 48 secs.

The year 1912 saw the birth of a new club, which, formed largely by the efforts of F. E. Roberts, took as its nomenclature the title of the Essex Walking Club, and it was this organisation which made itself responsible for the promotion of the fourth race of the series.

A new trophy was forthcoming from Baron de Forest, and the race was opened to all comers, although only those with the necessary county qualification were allowed to compete for the honour of calling themselves the champion of Essex. Other awards this year included gold medals of varying values for first, second and third places, gold "standards" for beating 9½ hours, silver "standards" for those finishing in 10 hours, and bronze "standards" for the 11 hour limit.

Beyond that certificates were given to all who finished the course, regardless of the time taken.

FOURTH SUCCESSIVE WIN.

Again some new names found places among the first three to finish, but F. E. Roberts, who was now walking for the new Essex Walking Club, was once more on top, with a return of 8 hrs. 37 mins. 47 secs.

V. R. Scoltock (Woodford Green A.C.) was second in 9 hrs. 38 mins. 7 secs., whilst E. H. Schofield, an unattached athlete, came third in 9 hrs. 58 mins. 14 secs.

April 6th was chosen as the date of the 1913 walk, the Essex Walking Club again acting as promoters, but the entry had diminished a good deal, and only nine men were once more left to complete the journey.

Scoltock, who was second in 1912, was forced to retire at Brentwood, and F. E. Roberts, who had, at that period, been setting up some first rate times in the North, again won without ever really being challenged. His time for this trip was 8 hrs. 46 mins. 15 secs., as opposed to the 9 hrs. 5 mins. 42 secs. taken by C. A. Wilson, who once more found himself filling second place.

ILFORD MAN THIRD.

The third man home in this race was an Ilford man, in C. J. Culling, now prominently associated with the Valentines Sporting Club and his time was 9 hrs. 12 mins. 11 secs.

ROBERTS WINS AGAIN.

In 1914 the race was no longer an "open" event, but members of the Essex W.C. who did not happen to possess an Essex qualification were allowed to compete, and it was in this category that J. H. Van Meurs fought hard with F. E. Roberts, but in a final effort Roberts led by 21 minutes, and in scoring his 5th consecutive success set up a new record for the course, with a time of 8 hrs. 28 mins. 42 secs., and also, having won it on three consecutive occasions, made the "Baron de Forest" trophy his own.

Van Meurs finished second in 8 hrs. 30 mins. 59 secs., and within the next ten minutes C. C. Russell and B. Still claimed third and fourth positions respectively. Thus we had the position of a quartette from the Essex Walking Club filling the first four places, which would have made a splendid record had there been a team championship in those days. C. J. Culling, the Ilford walker, was again one of the "field," but returned a much slower time and finished seventh in the list.

POST-WAR EVENTS.

The advent of the war interrupted the series in common with other sporting fixtures, and it was not until 1927 that the Essex County Cycling and Athletic Association, the governing body of athletics in Essex, decided to revive the event.

A new course was planned, that from Chadwell Heath to Southend-on-Sea, and the great feature of the new series was the introduction of a team championship, to be held in conjunction with the individual event.

The next course was by way of Romford, Brentwood, Shenfield, Billericay, Wickford, Rayleigh, Hadleigh and Leigh, thus reducing the distance to the present 32 miles 7 furlongs, but in the first of these post-war races, held on 23rd April, 1927, the ultimate winner took the new arterial road at Rayleigh, and the whole race through this mishap, had to be diverted down the Southend High-street, instead of finishing along the front.

Ever since then, however, the proper course has been followed.

The individual result of this race was: 1, F. E. Rickards ("K" Division Police), 5 hrs. 2 mins. 14 secs; 2, E. T. Smith (Loughton A.C.), 5 hrs. 12 mins. 19 secs; 3, R. P. Nicholls ("K" Division), 5 hrs. 19 mins. 35 secs., whilst in the team race in which three men from each club count, "K" Division Police, filling first, third and fourth places, won with the remarkably low score of eight points. Loughton A.C., with 14 points and Woodford Green A.C., with 26 points, were second and third respectively.

The race held on 19th May, 1928, was marred by an exceptionally heavy thunderstorm, but despite this very disconcerting factor, only two of the twenty-eight who started failed to finish.

F. Rickards ("K" Division), with time of 5 hrs. 8 mins. 59 secs., was again first home, followed by his colleague, W. Batson, in 5 hrs. 10 mins. 1 sec., with L. G. Sandy (P.L.A. Police) third in 5 hrs. 11 mins. 59 secs. R. P. Nicholls was fourth this time, and after this batch of policemen came two members of the Valentines Sporting Club, in H. W. Kemp and C. R. Woodward, who completed the first half-dozen home. Valentines also came into the picture somewhat as a team, finishing third to "K" Division and P.L.A. Police.

SANDY'S FIRST WIN.

In 1929, owing to the clashing of other big fixtures, the Essex championship was not held until June 15th, but fortunately the postponement brought better weather conditions, and there was an entry of 51, which included members of six different teams. Twenty-eight actually started, and of these twenty-two finished the distance, L. G. Sandy (P.L.A. Police) recording his first win in 5 hrs. 16 mins. 37 secs.

D. Gum (Essex Beagles) was second, a little less than four minutes behind Sandy, whilst five minutes or so later F. Rickards came home third. The P.L.A. Police were successful in the team championship that year, also with the excellent score of eight points, whilst Essex Beagles were second, and Valentines third again.

Six teams again competed on the 16th August, 1930, and this time Valentines Sporting Club not only won the championship with their "A" team, but filled third place with their second string, the only other club to find a place being Essex Beagles.

Neither D. Gum (Essex Beagles) or A. H. G. Pope (Woodford Green), both of whom were expected to do well, were able to start, and it is probable that the absence of the latter cost Woodford the title, as, whilst they provided the first two men in the individual race, they were unable to finish a third man to complete the scoring team. Two previous winners of the race, in L. G. Sandy and F. Rickards, were included in this year's "field," but neither were really fit on that day, and both retired at about the half distance. There was also a scorching sun to contend with, and of the 29 starters, only 14 managed to finish, the first half dozen of whom were:—1, H. G. Porter (Woodford Green), 5 hrs. 23 mins. 10 secs.; 2, T. W. Richardson (Woodford Green), 5 hrs. 28 mins. 55 secs.; 3, H. W. Kemp (Valentines), 5 hrs. 41 mins. 42 secs.; 4, T. A. Snell (Essex Beagles), 5 hrs. 42 mins. 2 secs.; 5, C. R. Woodward (Valentines), 5 hrs. 45 mins. 30 secs.; 6, A. G. Thayer (Valentines), 5 hrs. 49 mins. 44 secs.

RECORD ENTRY.

On 15th August, 1931, the event was particularly outstanding if only for the fact that the 69 entries received was a record for the whole series, and the 43 competitors who made up the "field" still provided a record in the history of the race.

D. Gum, of Essex Beagles, after a hard race with H. G. Porter, the previous champion, won with a return of 5 hrs. 14 mins., 34 secs., Porter (of Woodford Green) being second in 5 hrs. 21 mins. 40 secs., and H. W. Kemp (Valentines) third, in 5 hrs. 21 mins. 48 secs.

In the team race Woodford Green wrested the title from their close rivals of Valentines, the result being:—1, Woodford Green A.C., 11 points; 2, Valentines, 17 points; 3, Essex Beagles, 22 points; 4, Dagenham Harriers, 50 points.

Last year's race was held on 20th August, and D. Gum, who has already distinguished himself this year by winning, as recently as June, the 104 miles race from London to Brighton and back again won the individual title, his time then being 5 hrs. 29 mins. 35 2-5 secs. The second man home was T. W. Richardson (Woodford Green), whose time was 5 hrs. 48 mins. 40 secs., while the third man to finish was J. W. Gum, a brother of the winner, who took 5 hrs. 54 mins. 13 secs. for the journey. Something of a surprise was forthcoming in the team race, for, whereas Woodford Green and Valentines were generally regarded as the favourites, all calculations were upset by the Gums, who had much to do with the success of the Essex Beagles.

Strangely enough the Beagles had never, until then, won the championship, but their victory on this occasion was well merited, the result being:—1, Essex Beagles, 11 points; 2, Valentines 17 points; 3, Woodford Green 22 points.

Now I return to my starting point, viz., next Saturday's fixture. At the moment it is difficult to point to a likely winner, but there is no doubt that the three clubs that have been so prominent in recent years, viz., Essex Beagles, Valentines Sporting Club and Woodford Green, may be counted upon to make a race of it, and the fight for the honours as jubilee year champions is certain to be a keen one.

THE PERFECT HOUSE COAL

Modern grates demand a very different kind of coal to the coal that was "good enough" for the old-fashioned grates. Oxcroft is the ideal coal for modern houses—its radiant heat and the full even burning gives you advantages of modern grate construction, while the fact that it leaves little ash makes Oxcroft economical and labour-saving. Give Oxcroft a trial—and prove its superiority for yourself.

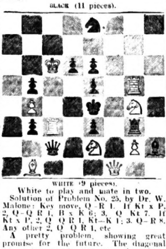
Problem No. 26, by L. Chaplin (Romford).

BLACK (11 pieces).



WHITE (9 pieces).

White to play and mate in two.

Solution of Problem No. 25, by Dr. W. Malone: Key move, Q—R 1. If Kt x P, 2, Q—Q R 1, B x K 6; 3, Q Kt 7. If Kt x P, 2, Q Q R 1, Kt—K 1; 3. Q—R 8. Any other 2, Q Q R 1, etc.

A pretty problem, showing great promise for the future. The diagonal queen movements are very ingenious. Correct solutions received from: E. W. Fryd, D. H. Hersom, J. J. Henderson, W. G. Collins, E. G. Vandy, R. A. White, Henry J. Martin J. Sampson, Don. Antonio Fernandez Trelles.

Mr. L. Chaplin, of Romford, whose problem we give this week, is a new "Recorder" contributor. Take this opportunity of welcoming him, and adding his name to our growing list of local composers.

BRITISH LADIES' CHAMPIONSHIP.

Miss Fatima comes from India, where she is regarded as the strongest lady player. This is her first attempt on the British championship. She looks like winning it, her score at the moment being 6½ points out of a possible seven. Much depended on her game with Mrs. Wheelwright, the score of which we give below. These two ladies were level at 5½ points each, but by winning this game Miss Fatima established a clear lead.

(a) Kt—R 4 seemed to presage P—B 5. Why retract?

(b) Black is now definitely in trouble. Kt—B 2 might temporarily delay matters, but it is only a question of time before White breaks through.

(c) What I like about the ladies is their optimism. While the men will sit and fume for hours over the loss of a pawn, a few pieces minus, more or less, never seems to worry the ladies a little bit.

(d) The end of the clearance sale.

(e) Not due to the heat wave. The explanation is that at move 29 Mrs. Wheelwright thought she could play Q—B 8 ch and partly placed her Queen on that square, before realising her error. She therefore took the very sporting course of inflicting the full penalty on herself.

ILFORD ALLOTMENT SOCIETY'S OUTING.

Presentation of Mayor's Challenge Cup.

On Bank Holiday Monday, about 170 members and families of the Ilford Allotment Society left Ilford Broadway in motor coaches for the beautiful estate of "Greenland," Hambleden, near Henley-on-Thames, where, by permission of Viscount Hambleden, they spent a wonderful day inspecting the gardens, conservatories, orchard, park and farm, and wandering at will through the lovely walks along the banks of one of the most picturesque reaches of the River Thames.

Luncheon and tea were served in the racquets court. After tea, in the absence of the chairman of the society, Mr. W. Gillard (who had broken his holiday to be with the party, but left early), the duty fell to Mr. Charles, the vice-chairman, of presenting the "Clark" Challenge Cup to the winner, Mr. E. Burge.

Mr. Charles said most of the members knew that the cup had been given to the society by the Mayor of Ilford (Alderman C. W. Clark), to be held for one year by the member who was judged by the committee to have the best kept allotment. In a society where there were so many plots of the highest order, the duty of awarding the cup was no light one for the committee, but he thought none would say that Mr. E. Burge had not well deserved the award, as the excellence of his cultivation and the general up-keep of his allotment were generally admitted.

Mr. Burge expressed the pride he felt as the first holder of the cup, and suggested that he who would wrest it from him would have to do something very special in the way of allotment cultivation.

Mr. Charles, proposing a vote of thanks to Lord Hambleden, said the society had had successful outings before, but never had the weather conditions been so ideal, the drive down more beautiful, or the place visited more worthy of inspection, both for cultivation and scenic display.

Mr. W. F. Chappell seconding, said the personal touch which his lordship had shown in meeting them on arrival to welcome them to his glorious estate, and placing no restrictions on their visit, had greatly added to their enjoyment.

Mr. Chappell also tendered the thanks of the company to Mr. Vaughan and Mr. Clarke, on whom most of the work of arranging the outing had fallen. It was the hobby of these two gentlemen to spend all their spare time in working hard for the benefit of the Ilford Allotment Society, he said, and they had the thanks and appreciation of all the members.

The party left the estate at six o'clock, and spent some time in the town of Henley before making the return journey to Ilford.

UNCLE PETER'S LETTER.

Two Baby Peterkins Join Our Club.

MUCH NEWS FROM MEMBERS.

My dear little nephews and nieces,

You will see, this week, that I have only answered letters which reached me by Friday morning. That was because it was Bank Holiday week. But I hope that new members whose entry forms reached me on Saturday, and Peterkins who sent letters, will watch for their names next week. They'll all be in our corner quite safely then.

Peterkin is telling you about all the Bank Holiday excitement in our family—and there was plenty of it, I can tell you! So don't miss his letter, what ever you do, because he'd be broken-hearted.

I'm going to tell you about one or two exciting pieces of news that members have sent me, this week. Some of this news I have taken out of the Saturday letters although I didn't have time to answer them separately.

First of all I must tell you how pleased I am that we've been having such a wonderful lot of new Peterkins joining our club. You'll see the full list of names, of course, in the New Members' paragraph. But I think all our Peterkins will be extra specially interested to hear that we've had two baby Peterkins join, this week. They are not twins and they don't know each other—at least, not as yet.

The first is Baby Joan Dorothy King, who is eight weeks old. She is the baby sister of little June King, one of our Ilford Peterkins and June tells me that Baby Joan is fair, like she is, and chubby, just like a nice little soft ball. When Baby Joan was only 18 days old, they had their photograph taken together. Baby Joan's name isn't among our new Peterkins, this week, but it will be there next week, because the letter only reached me on Saturday.

The other baby Peterkin is even younger than little Joan. He is only four weeks old and his name is Baby Vernon John Stolwood. He is the little nephew of a Romford Peterkin, Gwen Peters. Gwen of course, is very proud indeed of him and our Gwennie says that some people have all the luck!

I know you'd all like me to send your love and good wishes to both the babies!

I've told you a lot about our Peterkins winning scholarships, this year. I know you'll all be very pleased to hear that one of our Peterkins, Joyce Goodwin, Eileen's sister, not only won a scholarship to the Romford County High School, but gained the first place on the list. By doing this she won a special prize, the "Sweet Scholarship," which means that she received last Thursday, a cheque for £5 from the governors of the school. Now isn't that just great! I've been telling Peterkin and Gwennie that it's about time they started bringing home cheques for five pounds to their poor, hard-worked uncle. As a matter of fact I thought of writing to Joyce's mother and seeing if she'd like to make an exchange—but I'm afraid it would be too late now. Still, I think I'd better send hearty congratulations from us all to Joyce.

Another piece of good news is that Joyce Parrish, who was ill some time ago, is home again from the Convalescent Home she went to at Worthing, and feeling really nice and well again. Joyce had a lovely holiday, and went from Worthing to Littlehampton where she had another little holiday with her mother. Just see how some of my Peterkins know how to manage things! She had our corner sent to her every week and thought of us all the time. So that was splendid wasn't it!

I've had quite a lot of news from other Peterkins about their holidays. Jean Taylor is going to Folkestone, I remember, and Ruby Smith to Gorleston. But I mustn't tell you about them all, because my letter is growing long already. Still, we hope they all have a really lovely time and come back like nice, brown gypsies.

But one of our Romford members seems to be going to have such an exciting time that I must find a little space to tell you about it. She is Irene Howland, and she tells me that she is going on tour with a stage company, and she is going to wear her badge all the time, and have our corner sent to her each week! Now what do you think of that! I think it sounds most exciting, and so do Peterkin and Gwennie. Irene doesn't tell me in her letter just where she's going, or quite what part she is going to take. I've been guessing that she'll be going to some seaside places to help to entertain the people. But I can't be quite sure I'm right until I hear more about it from Irene. But if any of you go to a seaside place and see a little girl wearing a Peterkin badge taking part in a concert or a play, be sure and ask her if she's Irene.

And now I mustn't write another line! Lots of love to you all.

UNCLE PETER

PETERKIN'S LETTER.

Our Bank Holiday Adventures

My dear cousins,

Did you all have a nice Bank Holiday? We do hope you all did, because Gwennie and I had a marvellous time with all sorts of adventures. We actually travelled all the way from Ilford to Clacton in a train by our two selves, without any grown-up people at all with us! And it was wonderful!!

We took Tinker with us, too—or rather he insisted on coming with us, which was very wrong of him. But instead of being thoroughly ashamed of himself, he's going round with his nose and tail stuck up in the air as if he'd done something clever. And as a matter of fact, Gwennie and I privately believe that he considers that all the credit for the success of our holiday, our good journey and the lovely sunshine we had, rightly belongs to him. Still, I'd better begin my story from the beginning, hadn't I!

Of course our invitation to Clacton came from our Aunt who lives there—I expect you'll all remember her the mother of our cousins, Geoff, and Vera. But our Aunt is always very busy at this time of the year, like most people who have a farm. So she was rather late in writing to ask us to Clacton. If she had written two or three days earlier, I expect we should have gone down to Clacton in charge of a grown-up person—Mrs. Brown or Uncle Peter—and not had any adventures at all. But fortunately our Aunt didn't send her letter till Thursday, and Uncle Peter had already arranged for Mrs. Brown to go to visit her niece at Stratford, and saved up some special work he wanted to do at the Bank Holiday.

At first he thought we couldn't possibly go, because there wasn't anyone to take us, for one thing, and another reason was that even if he left his work to take us, there wouldn't have been anyone at home to feed Wuzzy and Finny and Swimmy.

We were awfully disappointed, especially as the weather looked as if it were going to be nice, and we had just about made up our minds that it couldn't be helped when Uncle Peter suddenly said "It is a pity you children can't be got down there somehow. I'd really have had a chance to get some work done if I could have had the house to myself and properly quiet for once!"

I didn't think it was very nice of him to put things that way, after all the help we give him in the writing of the club corner each week. I'm sure he wouldn't do it nearly so nicely if he didn't have us to give him ideas. I was just about to say so, but Gwennie tugged my coat as a sign to be careful what I said. And then, in that very innocent tone of hers, which is always a sign that she has got some plan in her mind she said, "Yes, Uncle! It would have been nice for you to have had all the house quiet. You'd have been able to do your work in ever such a little time. Peterkin and I will try not to make too much noise, but it's awfully hard to be really quiet at a Bank Holiday time!"

"I've no doubt it is," Uncle Peter replied rather gloomily.

"Uncle," Gwennie went on, as if a new idea had suddenly come to her, "do children ever travel on trains by themselves?"

Uncle Peter sat up.

"Now that's an idea!" he said. "I wonder if I dare trust you! After all, there are children younger than you who travel to school every day by train!"

I really do think Gwennie's clever sometimes! Uncle Peter absolutely fell for the idea the more he thought about it.

"Of course I couldn't let you take Tinker with you," he said. "That would be too much responsibility for you and he might lead you into some mischief."

Gwennie and I would have liked to have taken him, but with the thought of the adventure of travelling all by ourselves in our minds we were not going to make a fuss about details. But Tinker is as good at making plans as Gwennie. What he did I must tell you next week, because I've used up all my space now.

Goodbye, with lots of love from us both.

Your affectionate cousin,
PETERKIN.

REPLIES TO LETTERS.

ILFORD.

Joan Munnery.—I am delighted to hear you are so much better now, my dearie, and you must look after yourself ever so carefully and not get ill again. I think you did the competition very nicely, Joan. Lots of love.

Eric Wyncoll.—Bravo, Eric! You did both competitions well!

Sheila Marshall.—Well, I am late wishing you many happy returns, my dear! I am so sorry I forgot. Somehow we had overlooked putting your name in our big birthday book, so there was nothing to remind me. Gwennie has written it in now, in her best hand writing, so there won't be any excuse if I make a mistake again. I thought the way you arranged your competition was an excellent idea.

Ruby Smith.—I thought your competition was really beautifully set up and I much admired your printing. Have a really jolly holiday! I think you'll find Gorleston is a most interesting place and if you get a chance, you should go up the river and see the city of Norwich.

Jean Taylor.—I was ever so pleased to hear from you again, Jean, and I hope that you have a splendid holiday at Folkestone. I shall be telling you all about my holiday, I hope before many weeks have passed. I'm glad you liked the competition. Love from us all.

Fred Payne.—Your card came just in time last week, for me to mention the good news in my letter, though it was not in time for me to give you an individual answer. We all wish you a thoroughly happy career at your new school, and send you our hearty congratulations.

Joyce Parrish.—I am delighted to hear you had such a lovely holiday at the convalescent home and I hope you have come home ever so well and strong again. I'm ever so pleased to hear that your mummy sent our corner to you each week, so that you were thinking of me all the time. All the family sends you lots of love, my dearie.

Iris Anscombe.—I think I must have been very excited about something the week you sent in Ivor's name, because I've looked through the paper ever so carefully and I can't find it either! So please will you send it in to me again. I'm ever so pleased to hear your brother's name is among the new members this week. Hasn't it been hot? I wonder if you've nearly melted. Lots of love from us all.

(Replies to letters received by Friday, August 4th.)

MARGARET JACKSON'S COMPETITION.

Prize-winners Who Found the Jumbled Words.

I think Margaret Jackson would have been very pleased this week, if she could have seen how popular her competition was, and how many members entered for it.

As a matter of fact I think I made the Junior Section just a wee bit too easy because there were quite a lot of members who found every word correctly, and I had the greatest difficulty in deciding which were the neatest and best arranged answers in the batch. There were, in fact, some of the juniors who managed to solve the senior's puzzle as well as their own. But as I only asked for one answer, I had to give the prizes on the merits of one solution only, though I was pleased to see how well they did the more difficult one.

The Senior's puzzle was a good deal more difficult and there were a smaller number of members who solved it correctly. So judging was not quite so difficult, though there were still a few members who made me wish I had some more prizes to give away.

Now here are the answers to the puzzles and the names of the prize-winners:—

SENIORS.

The jumbled words in the senior's puzzle were: Rajah, Tiger, Polka, Logic, Niche.

The first prize I awarded to:

RUBY SMITH (14), 6, Morley-road, Chadwell Heath, who wrote the puzzle and the solution out in beautiful, old English lettering and arranged a neat and effective border round the whole. Ruby certainly deserves her prize for the time and care she must have taken to prepare such a neat answer.

I had a little difficulty in deciding which of two answers deserved the second prize. They were both sent in by thirteen-year-old girls. I finally decided in favour of the one sent by MOLLY TANNER (13), 85 York-road, Ilford. It was beautifully neatly written, with every comma and full stop in the right place.

The other answer, which nearly won a prize, came from a new member, Olive Simpson, and was a splendid first attempt. I hope we shall hear more of Olive in weeks to come. Reg. Pottle, who had been carrying off a lot of prizes lately, also sent in an answer worthy, I think, of special mention.

JUNIORS.

The words in the junior's puzzle were: Red, Cod, Dog, Fir, Fig.

I awarded the first prize to

ANGUS BRADSHAW (5), 10, Liliput-road, Rush Green, Romford, one of our new Peterkins. He printed his answer excellently for so young a Peterkin, first in pencil and then marked over the outline in ink. I am quite sure his answer must have cost him a lot of time and a lot of effort.

When I came to decide who should have the second prize, I finally picked out three answers which were so near to being equal in merit, that I decided at last to give the prize to the youngest competitor in the trio, who happens also to be a new member. She is

EILEEN KETTERIDGE (8), 29, York-road, Ilford. Her answer was beautifully printed without a fault of any kind.

The two members who came so close on her heels, were Joyce Waite (9), and Kathleen Griffiths (11). But I think there were one or two others who also deserve special praise. Sheila Marshall arranged her words into a little story, with drawings to illustrate each one (you have given me an idea for a competition I shall set one of these fine days, Sheila!). Francis Brightwell who is only nine, managed to solve correctly both the senior and the junior puzzle. So did Mary Nelson (11) and Eric Wyncoll (11). David Nelson's answer was outstandingly good for a seven-year-old. And Eric Hill, Joan Bingham, Barbara Freshney and Ruby Parkins all sent in particularly promising answers.

CAN YOU SOLVE OUR CROSS-WORD PUZZLE?

Be Sure and Enter for This Week's Competition.

I am sure a lot of our Peterkins will be delighted to see that Uncle Jewell gave up his Bank Holiday to thinking out a cross-word puzzle and drawing it out carefully for you.

I hope you'll all put your thinking caps on, and see how many of the answers you can find. Fill them in neatly and don't forget that when I have several correct answers, I always give the prizes to the neatest, most careful answers.

Be sure and put your name, age and address on your answers, and send them in to me not later than the first post on Thursday, August 17th. If you are not already a member of the club, and would like to try the competition, fill in a membership form and fasten it to your answer.

YOUR HOT TIRED FEET

Instant blessed relief

Do you feel you could scream with pain when anyone accidentally touches your feet? Do you find it uncomfortable to wear shoes? When you are out—supposed to be enjoying yourself—do you long for the moment when you can get home and give your poor feet a rest? Here is relief for you—instant glorious relief. Add Condy's to tepid water—a tablespoonful to a quart—and stand your feet in it. Oh the wonderful ease as Condy's draws all the pain and burning out of your feet. Any unpleasant odourousness due to perspiration disappears. Acts like magic. Your feet even look different. They are no longer throbbing and chafed but cool and comfortable. Swelling is reduced. Shoes slip on easily. There is no softness or flabbiness; your feet are hardened, foot muscles braced. Condy's only has this effect for the following scientific reason: Condy's in water makes active oxygen. It is the active oxygen which has such a wonderful effect on your feet. Condy's is odourless, nonpoisonous and may freely be used by the daintiest lady. Ask any chemist for Condy's Fluid, 1/6 bottle. (F4)

THE STORY SO FAR.

ANGRY over the determination of Galahad Threepwood not to permit publication of the indiscreet reminiscences he has written, Lord Tilbury, head of the Mammoth Publishing Company, vents his spleen on Monty Bodkin, an assistant editor, who has inserted an injudicious paragraph in "Just Tots."

Monty is fired and leaves the office disconsolately with a month's salary in his pocket. Monty, who must prove his capacity to hold a position for a full year if he is to win the hand of Miss Gertrude Butterwick, decides to apply for a new post as secretary to Lord Emsworth at Blandings Castle, although there are complications in the way. Sue Brown, a pretty chorus girl to whom Monty was once engaged, is now going to marry Ronald Fish, a nephew of Lord Emsworth's, and is staying at Blandings. The real difficulty is, however, that Lord Emsworth, who goes in heavily for the raising of prize pigs, suspects his neighbour, Sir Gregory Parsloe-Parsloe, of a desire to steal or dope his prize specimen, the Empress of Blandings; and Sir Gregory is Monty's uncle. Nevertheless, Sir Gregory persuades Lady Constance Fish, Lord Emsworth's sister, to appoint Monty as the earl's secretary.

Sue, hearing of Monty's impending arrival and fearing the jealous disposition of her fiance, runs up to London, where she meets Monty for lunch and warns him not to acknowledge any previous acquaintance. Unfortunately, Lady Julia Fish, Ronald's mother, journeying to Blandings with grim determination to break off her son's engagement, sees them together and then reports the incident to Ronald.

Now read on.

NOT many minutes had passed since Ronnie Fish had been urging his mother to smile. With these words she had done so, but the fulfillment of his wish brought him no pleasure. The pink of his face deepened. There had come a tightness about his mouth. He had changed his mind about the desirability of keeping the scene light.

"Do you mind if I just get this straight?" he said coldly. "A moment ago you were talking about girls who ran off and had affairs, and now you tell me you have met Sue."

"Exactly."

"Then you—had Sue in mind?"

"Exactly."

Ronnie laughed unpleasantly.

"On the strength, apparently, of her having gone up to London for the day—to do some shopping or something, I suppose. I wouldn't call this your ripest form, mother."

"On the strength, if you really wish to know, of seeing her and young Monty Bodkin lunching together at the Berkeley and finding them together on the train ——"

"Monty Bodkin!"

"——where they had the effrontery to pretend they had never met before."

"She was lunching with Monty?"

"Lunching with Monty and ogling Monty and holding hands with Monty! Oh, for heaven's sake, Ronnie, do use a little intelligence! Can't you see this girl is just like the rest of them? If you can't, you really must be a borderline case. Young Bodkin came here today to be your uncle's secretary. Two days ago he had some sort of employment with the Mammoth Publishing Company. He told me on the train that he had resigned. Why did he resign? And why is he coming here? Obviously, because this girl wanted him here and put him up to it. And directly she hears it's settled, she takes advantage of your being away to sneak up to London and talk things over with him. If there was nothing underhand going on, why should they have pretended that they were perfect strangers? No, as you said just now, I am not dancing round and strewing roses out of a hat!"

She broke off. The door had opened. Lady Constance Keeble came in.

DETECTING THE ATMOSPHERE.

IN the doorway, Lady Constance paused. She looked from one to the other with speculation in her eyes. She was a veteran of too many fine old crusted family rows not to be able to detect a strained atmosphere when she saw one. Her sister Julia was clenching and unclenching her hands. Her nephew Ronald was staring straight before him, red-eyed. A thrill ran through Lady Constance such as causes the war horse to start at the sound of the bugle. It was possible, of course, that this was a private fight, but her battling instinct urged her to get into it.

But there was in Lady Constance Keeble an instinct even stronger than that of battle, and that was the one which impelled her to act as critic of the sartorial deficiencies of her nearest and dearest.

Years of association with her brother Clarence, who, if you took your eye off him for a second, was apt to come down to dinner in flannel trousers and an old shooting-jacket, had made this action almost automatic with the chatelaine of Blandings.

So now, though eager for the fray, it was as the critic rather than as the warrior queen that she spoke:

"My dear Ronald! That tie!"

Ronnie Fish gazed at her lingeringly. It needed, he felt, but this. Poison was running through his veins, his world was rocking, green-eyed devils were shrieking mockery in his ears, and along came blasted aunts babbling of ties. It was as if somebody had touched Othello on the arm as he poised the pillow and criticised the cut of his doublet.

"Don't you know we have a dinner party to-night? Go and put on a white tie at once."

Even in his misery, the injustice of the thing cut Ronnie to the quick. Did his aunt suppose him ignorant of the merest decencies of life? Naturally, if he had known before he started dressing that there was a big binge on, he would have assumed the correct costume of the English gentleman for formal occasions. But considering that he had been told only about two minutes ago ——

"And a tail coat."

It was the end. If this woman's words had any meaning at all, it was that she considered him capable of wearing a white tie with a dinner jacket. Until this moment, he had been intending to speak. The thing had now passed beyond speech. Directing at Lady Constance a look which no young man ought to have directed at an aunt, he strode silently from the room.

Lady Constance stood listening to the echoes of a well-slammed door.

"Ronald seems upset," she observed.

"It runs in the family," said Lady Julia.

"What was the trouble?"

"I have just been telling him that he is off his head."

"I quite agree with you."

"And I should like now," said Lady Julia, "to apply the same remark to you."

She was breathing quickly. The china blue of her eyes had an enamelled look. It was thirty-five years since she had scratched Lady Constance's face, but she seemed so much in the vein for some such demonstration that the latter involuntarily drew back.

"Really, Julia!"

"What do you mean, Constance, by inviting that girl to Blandings?"

"I did nothing of the sort."

"You didn't invite her?"

"Certainly not."

"She popped up out of a trap, eh?"

Lady Constance emitted that sniff of hers which came so near to being a snort.

"She wormed her way into the place under false pretences, which amounts to the same thing. You remember that Miss Schoonmaker, the American girl you met at Biarritz and wrote to me about? You gave me the impression you hoped there might eventually be something between her and Ronald."

"I really can't understand what you are taking about. Why need we discuss Myra Schoonmaker?"

"I am trying to explain to you how this Brown girl comes to be at the castle. About ten days ago I was in London, and I met Ronald in his car with a girl, and he introduced her to me as Miss Schoonmaker. I had no means of checking his statement. It never occurred to me to doubt it. I assumed that she really was Miss Schoonmaker, and, naturally, invited her to the castle. She arrived, and she had not been here twenty-four hours when we discovered that she was not Miss Schoonmaker at all but this chorus girl of Ronald's. Presumably, they had planned the thing between them in order to get her here."

"And when you found out she was an impostor, you asked her to stay on? I see."

* * *

Lady Constance flushed brightly.

"I was compelled to allow her to stay on."

"Why?"

"Because —— Oh, Clarence!" said Lady Constance, with the exasperation which the sudden spectacle of the head of the family so often aroused in her. The ninth earl had selected this tense moment to potter into the room.

"Eh?" he said.

"Go away!"

"Yes," said Lord Emsworth, "lovely."

As so frequently happened with him, he was in a gentle trance. He wandered to the piano, extended a long, lean finger and stabbed absently at one of the treble notes.

The sharp, tinny sound seemed to affect his sister Constance like a pin in the leg.

"Clarence!"

"Eh?"

"Don't do that!"

"God bless my soul!" said Lord Emsworth querulously.

He turned from the piano, and Lady Constance was enabled to see him steadily and see him whole.

The sight caused her to utter a stricken cry.

"Clarence!"

"Eh?"

"What—what is that thing in your shirt front?"

The ninth earl squinted down.

"It's a paper fastener. One of those brass things you fasten papers with. I lost my stud."

"You must have more than one stud."

"Here's another, up here."

"Have you only two studs?"

"Three," said Lord Emsworth, a little proudly. "For the front of the shirt, three. Dashed inconvenient things. The heads come off. You screw them off and then you put them in and then you screw them on."

"Well, go straight up to your room and screw on the spare one."

It was not often that Lord Emsworth found himself in the position of being able to score a debating point against his sister Constance. The fact that he was about to do so now filled him with justifiable complacency. It seemed to lend to his manner a strange, quiet dignity.

"I can't," he said, "I swallowed it."

Lady Constance was not the woman to despair for long. A short, sharp spasm of agony and she had seen the way.

"Wait here," she said., "Mr. Bodkin is sure to have dozens of spare studs. If you dare to move till I come back ——"

She hurried from the room.

"Connie fusses so," said Lord Emsworth equably.

He pottered back to the piano.

"Clarence," said Lady Julia.

"Eh?"

"Leave that piano alone. Pull yourself together. Try to concentrate. And tell me about this Miss Brown."

"Miss who?"

"Miss Brown."

"Never heard of her," said Lord Emsworth brightly, striking a D flat.

"Don't gibber, Clarence. Miss Brown."

"Oh, Miss Brown? Yes, Yes, of course. Yes. Miss Brown to be sure. Yes. Nice girl. She's going to marry Ronald."

"Is she? That's a debatable point."

"Oh, yes. It's all settled. I'm giving the boy his money and he's going into the motor business and they're going to get married."

"I want to know how all this has happened. How is it that this chorus girl ——"

"You're quite right," said Lord Emsworth cordially. "I told Connie she was wrong, but she wouldn't believe me. A chorus girl is quite different from a ballet girl. Galahad assures me of this."

"If you will kindly let me finish ——"

"By all means—by all means. You were saying?"

"I was asking you how it has come about that everyone in this madhouse appears to have accepted it as quite natural and satisfactory that Ronnie should be marrying a girl like that. She seems to be an honoured guest at the castle, and yet, apart from anything else, she came here under a false name ——"

"Odd, that," said Lord Emsworth. "She told us her name was Schoolbred, and it turned out she was quite wrong. It wasn't Schoolbred at all. Silly mistake to make."

"And when that turned out, may I ask why you didn't turn her out?"

"Why, we couldn't, of course."

"Why not?"

"Well, naturally, we couldn't. Galahad wouldn't have liked it."

"Galahad?"

"That's right. Galahad."

Lady Julia threw up her arms in a passionate gesture.

"Is everybody crazy?" she cried.

Lady Constance came hurrying back into the room.

"Clarence!"

"You all keep saying 'Clarence!'" said Lord Emsworth peevishly, "'Clarence—Clarence.' One would think I was a Pekingese or something . . . . Well, what is it now?"

"Listen, Clarence," said Lady Constance, speaking in a clear, even voice, "and follow me carefully. Mr. Bodkin is in the North Room. You know where the North Room is? On the first floor, down the passage to the right of the landing. You know which your right hand is? Very well. Then go immediately to the North Room, and there you will find Mr. Bodkin. He has studs and will fit them into your shirt."

"I'm dashed if I'm going to have my secretary dressing me like a nursemaid!"

"If you think that with sixteen people coming to dinner, I am going to trust you to put in studs for yourself ——"

The door closed. Lady Julia came out of the frozen coma into which her brother's words had thrown her:

"Constance!"

"Well?"

"Just before you came in, Clarence told me that the reason why this Brown girl was allowed to stay on at the castle was that Galahad wished it."

"Yes."

"An we must all respect Galahad's wishes, must we not? I don't suppose," said Lady Julia, mastering her complex emotions with a strong effort, "that there are forty million people in England who think more highly of Galahad than I do. Tell me," she went on with strained politeness, "if it is not asking too much, how, exactly, does he come into the thing at all? Why Galahad? Why not Beach? Or Voules? Or the boy who cleans the knives and boots? What earthly business is it of Galahad's?"

* * *

Lady Constance was not by nature a patient woman, but she could make allowances for a mother's grief.

"I know how you must be feeling, Julia, and you can't be more upset about it than I am. Galahad, unfortunately is in a position to dictate."

"I cannot conceive of any possible position Galahad could be in which would permit him to dictate to me, but no doubt you will explain what you mean later. What I would like to know first is why he wants to dictate. What is this girl to him, that he should apparently have constituted himself a sort of guardian angel to her?"

"To explain that, I must ask you to throw your mind back."

"Better not start me throwing things."

"Do you remember, years ago, Galahad getting entangled with a woman named Henderson, a music-hall singer?"

"Certainly. Well?"

"This girl is her daughter."

Lady Julia was silent for a moment.

"I see. Galahad's daughter too?"

"I believe not. But that explains his interest in her."

"Possibly. Yes, no doubt it does. Sentiment is the last thing of which I would have suspected Galahad, but if the old love has lingered down the years, I suppose we must accept it. All right. Very touching, no doubt. But it still leaves unexplained the mystery of why everybody here seems to be treating Galahad as if his word was law. You said he was in a position to dictate. Why?"

"I was coming to that. The whole thing, you see, turns on whether Clarence lets Ronald have his money or not. If he does, Ronald can defy us all. Without it he is helpless. And in ordinary circumstances you and I know that we could easily reason with Clarence and make him do the sensible thing and refuse to release the money."

"Well?"

"Well, Galahad was clever enough to see that too. So he made a bargain. You know those abominable Reminiscences he has been writing. He said that if Ronald was given his money, he would suppress them."

"What?"

"Suppress them. Not publish them."

"Is that what you meant when you said that he was in a position to dictate?"

"Yes. It is sheer blackmail, of course, but there is nothing to be done."

Lady Julia was staring, bewildered. She flung her hands up to her carefully coiffured head, seemed to realize at the last moment that a touch would ruin it, and lowered them again.

"Am I mad?" she cried. "Or is everybody else? You seriously mean that I am supposed to acquiesce in my son ruining his life simply in order to keep Galahad from publishing his Reminiscences?"

"But, Julia, you don't know what they're like. Think of the life Galahad led as a young man. He seems to have known everybody in England who is looked up to and respected to-day, and to have shared the most disgraceful escapades with them. One case alone, for example—Sir Gregory Parsloe. I have not read the thing, of course, but he tells me that there is a story in Galahad's book about himself when he was a young man in London—something about some prawns; I don't know what—which would make him the laughing-stock of the county. The book is full of that kind of story, and every story about somebody who is looked on to-day as a model of propriety. If it is published, it will ruin the reputation of half the best people in England."

Lady Julia laughed shortly.

"I'm afraid I don't share your reverence for the feelings of the British aristocracy, Connie. I agree that Galahad probably knows the shady secrets of two-thirds of the peerage, but I don't feel your shrinking horror at the thought of the public reading them in print. I haven't the slightest objection in the world to Galahad throwing bomb-shells. At any rate, whatever the effect of his literary efforts on the peace of mind of the governing classes, I certainly do not intend to buy him off at the price of having Ronnie marrying any Miss Browns."

"You don't mean that you are going to try to stop this marriage?"

"I most certainly am."

"But, Julia! This book of Galahad's. It will alienate every friend we've got. They will say we ought to have stopped him. You don't know ——"

"I know this: That Galahad can publish Reminiscences till he is blue in the face, but I am not going to have my son making a fool of himself and doing something he'll regret for the rest of his life. And now, if you will excuse me, Connie, I propose to take a short stroll on the terrace in the faint hope of cooling off. I feel so incandescent that I'm apt to burst into spontaneous flame at any moment, like dry tinder."

With which words, Lady Julia Fish took her departure through the French windows. And Lady Constance, having remained for some few moments in anguished thought, moved to the fireplace and rang the bell.

Beach appeared.

"Beach," said Lady Constance, "please telephone at once to Sir Gregory Parsloe at Matchingham. Tell him I must see him immediately. Say it is of the utmost importance. Ask him to hurry over, so as to get here before people begin to arrive. And when he comes, show him into the library."

"Very good, m'lady."

THE butler spoke with his official calm, but inwardly he was profoundly stirred. He was not a nimble-minded man, but he could put two and two together, and it seemed to him that in some mysterious way, beyond the power of his intellect to grasp, all these alarms and excursions must be connected with the love story of his old friend, Mr. Ronald, and his new but very highly esteemed friend, Sue Brown.

He had left Mr. Ronald with his mother. Then Lady Constance had gone in. A short while later, Mr. Ronald had come out and gone on rushing upstairs with all the appearance of an overwrought soul. And now here was Lady Constance, after a conversation with Lady Julia, ringing bells and sending urgent telephone messages.

It must mean something. If Beach had been Monty Bodkin, he would have said that there were wheels within wheels. Heaving gently like a seaweed-covered sea, he withdrew to carry out his instructions.

* * *

The butler's telephone message found Sir Gregory Parsloe enjoying a restful cigarette in his bedroom. He had completed his toilet some little time before; but, being an experienced diner-out and knowing how sticky that anteprandial vigil in somebody else's drawing-room can be, he had not intended to set out for Blandings Castle for another twenty minutes or so. Like so many elderly, self-indulgent bachelors, he was inclined to shirk life's grimmer side.

But the information that Lady Constance Keeble wished to have urgent speech with him had him galloping down the stairs and lumbering into his car in what, for a man of his build, was practically tantamount to a trice. It must, he felt, be those infernal Reminiscences that she wanted to see him about, and, feeling nervous and apprehensive, he told the chauffeur to drive like the devil.

In the past two weeks, Sir Gregory Parsloe-Parlsoe, of Matchingham Hall, seventh baronet of his line, had run the gamut of the emotions. He had plumbed the depths of horror on learning that his old companion, the Hon. Galahad Threepwood, was planning to publish the story of his life. He had soared to dizzy heights of relief on learning that he had decided not to do so. But from that relief there had been a reaction. What, he had asked himself, was to prevent the old past changing his mind again? And this telephone call seemed to suggest that he might have done so.

Of all the gray-haired pillars of society who had winced and cried aloud at the news that the Hon. Galahad was about to unlock the doors of memory, it was probably Sid Gregory Parsloe who had winced most and cried loudest. His position was so particularly vulnerable. He had political ambitions, and was, indeed, on the eve of being accepted by the local Unionist committee as the party's candidate for the forthcoming by-election in the Brideford and Shifley Parliamentary Division of Shropshire. And no one knew better than himself that Unionist committees look askance at men with pasts.

Small wonder, then, that Sir Gregory Parsloe writhed in his car, and clumping up the stairs of Blandings Castle to the library in Beach's wake, sank into a chair and sat gazing at Lady Constance with apprehension on every feature of his massive face. Years of good living had given Sir Gregory something of the look of a buck of the Regency days. He resembled now a Regency buck about to embark on a difficult interview with the family lawyer.

Lady Constane made no humane attempt to break the bad news gently. She was far too agitated for that. Sir Gregory got it like a pail of water in the face, and sat spluttering as if it had actually been water that she had poured over him.

"What shall we do?" lamented Lady Constance. "I know Julia so well. She is entirely self-centred. So long as she can get what she wants, other people don't count. Julia is like that, and always has been. She will stop this marriage. I don't know how, but she will do it. And if it is broken off, Galahad will have no reason for suppressing his abominable book. The manuscript will go to the publishers next day. What did you say?"

Sir Gregory had not spoken. He had merely uttered a wordless sound halfway between a grunt and a groan.

"Have you nothing to suggest?" said Lady Constance.

Before the baronet could reply, if he would have replied, there was an interruption. The door of the library opened and a head inserted itself. It was a small, brilliantined head, the eyes beneath the narrow forehead furtive, the moustache below the perky nose a nasty little moustache. Having smiled weakly, it withdrew.

It was a desire for solitude that had brought P. Frobisher Pilbeam to the library. A few moments before, he had been in the drawing-room and had found its atmosphere oppressive. Solid county gentlemen and their wives had begun to arrive, and the sense of being an alien in a community where everybody seemed extraordinarily intimate with everybody else had weighed upon him, inducing red ears and a general sensation of elephantiasis about the hands and feet.

* * *

Taking advantage, therefore, of the fact that the lady with the weather-beaten face who had just asked him what pack he hunted with had had her attention diverted elsewhere, he had stolen down to the library to be alone. And the first thing he saw there was Lady Constance Keeble. So, as we say, Percy Pilbeam smiled weakly and withdrew.

The actual time covered by his appearance and disappearance was not more than two or three seconds, but it had been enough for Lady Constance to give him one of the celebrated Keeble looks. Turning from this task and lowering the raised eyebrow and uncurling the curled lip, she was astonished to observe that Sir Gregory Parsloe was staring at the closed door with the aspect of one who had just seen a beautiful vision.

"What—what—what ——"

"I beg your pardon?" said Lady Constance perplexed.

"Heavens! Was that Pilbeam?"

Lady Constance was shocked.

"Do you know Mr. Pilbeam?" she asked in a tone which suggested that she would have expected something better than this from the seventh holder of a proud title.

Sir Gregory was not a man of the build that leaps from chairs, but he had levered himself out of the one he sat in with an animation that almost made the thing amount to a leap.

"Know him? Why, he's in the castle because I know him! I engaged him to steal that infernal manuscript of your brother's."

"What?"

"Certainly. A week or so ago. Emsworth called with Threepwood to see me, and accused me of having stolen that dashed pig of his, and when I told him I knew nothing about it, Threepwood got nasty and said he was going to make a special effort to remember all the discreditable things that had ever happened to me as a young man and put them in his book. So I ran up to London next day and went to see this fellow Pilbeam—he had acted for me before in a certain rather delicate matter—and found that Emsworth had asked him to come here to investigate the theft of his pig, and I offered him five hundred pounds if, when he was at the castle, he would steal the manuscript."

"Good gracious!"

"And then you told me the pig had been found and Threepwood was going to suppress the book; so I naturally assumed that the chap would have gone back to London. Why, if he's still here, the whole thing's simple. He must go ahead, as originally planned, and get hold of that manuscript and hand it over to us, and we'll destroy it. Then it won't matter if this marriage you speak of takes place or not." He paused. Animation gave place to concern. "But suppose there are more copies than one?"

"There aren't."

"You're sure." He may have had it typed."

"No, I know he has not. He never really finished the horrible thing. He keeps it in his desk and takes it out and adds bits to it."

"If Mr. Pilbeam can get possession of the manuscript."

"Oh, he'll do that. You can rely on him. There isn't a smarter young fellow in London at that sort of thing. Why, he got hold of some letters of mine—but that is neither here nor there. I can assure you that if you engage Pilbeam to steal compromising papers, you will have them in the course of a day or two. It's what he's best at. You say Threepwood keeps the thing in a desk. Desks are nothing to Pilbeam. Those—er—those letters of mine, to which I alluded just now—those letters—perfectly innocent, you understand, but a wrong construction might have been placed upon one or two passages in them, had they been published as the girl—as their recipient—had threatened—well, to cut a long story short, to secure those, Pilbeam had to pretend to be the man come to inspect the gas meter, and break into a safe. This will be child's play to him. If you will excuse me, I will go and find him at once. We must put the matter in hand without delay. What a pity he popped off like that. We could have had everything arranged by now."

* * *

Sir Gregory hurried from the room, baying on the scent like one of his own hounds. And Lady Constance, drawing a deep breath, leaned back in her chair and closed her eyes. After all that had passed in the last twenty minutes, she felt the need to relax.

On her face, as she sat, there might have been observed, not merely relief, but a sort of awed look, as of one who contemplates the inscrutable workings of providence.

Providence, she now perceived, did not put even Pilbeams into the world without a purpose.

Tail-Wagger Chats:

The Little Skippers.

Vivacious and Friendly Dogs

By "PHILOKUON."

THE schipperke, pronounced skipperkie, meaning little skipper, got his name in Belgium because he was commonly used for guarding the barges on the canals. Sharp as a needle, he will run found the ledges that surmount the sides of the boats, and from that point of vantage he is able to exercise supervision over his master's property. The guarding instinct has never been lost in the dogs that have been bred in Great Britain purely for show purposes, and a schipperke in the home will inform one immediately if strangers are about. Of course, they are not strong enough to do much harm to a burglar, not weighing more than about twelve pounds, but they are prompt to give the alarm.

The vivacity, which is so characteristic, also makes them amusing pets, for their inquisitive natures impel them to take an interest in whatever is happening. They assume that they are a part of the family. Among their other accomplishments they are said to be clever ratters. That I can believe, as they have strongish jaws for their size, and are extraordinarily quick in action. Although his tail is docked close up to the rump the little skipper is eligible for membership of the Tail-Waggers' Club. Though he has no tail to wag, he is capable of expressing his feelings by wriggling his body, and one is never in doubt when he is pleased. I do not know how the custom of close docking came into vogue, for it seems to serve no useful purpose, but we have become so used to seeing him without a tail that it would change his character completely to have one. When it is allowed to grow it curls over the back, which, in conjunction with other features, suggests that he is an offshoot of the Pomeranian family, whatever cross may have been used to reduce the length of his coat.

His coat is not long and stand-offish as with the Pomeranians, but it is very thick, and is erect round the neck, where it forms a mane and frill. There is ample feathering on the thighs as well. This question of mane and breeching or culotte caused a lot of trouble when the dogs were first introduced into England in the early 1890's. Apparently those that we were able to buy were deficient in these respects, and on the discovery being made that we were on the wrong lines dissensions arose among breeders. However, the outcome was that manes and feathering were ruled to be in order, and they remain to-day.

A schipperke should have a smart foxy head with small, erect ears, short, compact body tapering towards the hindquarters, well sprung ribs, and straight forelegs. The rather short neck is strong and full, and slightly arched. The eyes are dark brown, small, and rather oval in shape. Although the usual colour is black, chocolates sometimes appear in a litter. The standard describes the general appearance as that of a small cobby animal with sharp expression, intensely lively, presenting the appearance of being always on the alert. Anyone who wants a pet a little different from the common run would be safe in getting a schipperke, which has the advantage of being reasonable in price and hardy of constitution.

SUNDOWN SPLENDID AND SERENE

An Awakening at the Close of Day.

By H. L. GEE.

BAREHEADED I stood facing west. The wind had died an hour earlier, and the time was quiet as a Nun breathless with adoration. Above me were louring clouds, black and ominous, moved slowly by a lofty current of air; and before me, drifting in the stately fashion across the flaming crimson of the western sky, were other cloud shapes, their ruffled edges catching at the red and gold light. The distant hill (dull black by contrast) was the grave of the sun, but its summit seemed to quiver in halo of blazing chrome. It seemed to me that I was the spectator of a sight God never meant human eye to behold—a sight too fiercely beautiful, too majestically sublime, too wonderful for such as I to gaze upon! Had I been St. John the Divine in the isle called Patinos, I could scarcely have looked upon a vision more awe-inspiring than that glowing sky with its merging reds and glowing yellows its slowly-changing clouds, its sudden shadows, its retreating vistas suggesting infinities beyond infinities and leading (as it seemed) to the very gates of the Celestial City!

I say I stood bareheaded with the glory on my face, and, indeed, I might easily have knelt upon the grass in prayer for I felt in the presence of the Almighty. The silence was eloquent. The sheer immensity of the spectacle gripped my attention, held my thoughts, compelled me to awful wonder. In the sacramental light of that sunset a man (whether king or pauper) might well account himself as the dust of the earth, saying, "What is man that Thou art mindful of him?" It seemed to me that I looked beyond this earth to heaven, saw the shining hosts about the throne, the shadows (and the shadows only) of the four and twenty beasts, and the blinding light which I could not pierce wherein sat the King of Kings and Lord of Lords . . . "that sitteth upon the circle of the earth; that stretcheth out the heavens as a curtain, and spreadeth them out as a tent to dwell in."

THE SPIRIT OF THE EARTH.

And after a season I turned away from the sight, and I took pencil and paper intending to describe that sunset. But my words seemed worthless. I could find none in which to depict the splendour of the western sky, and even had I possessed the magic brush of a Turner I could never have succeeded in expressing all the surging emotions which rose up in a high tide and overwhelmed me The wizardly words of Carlyle flashed upon me, and I set them down in place of my own imperfect composition . .

"A hundred and a hundred savage peaks in the last light of day; all glowing of gold and amethyst like giant spires of the wilderness; there, in their solitude in their silence even as on the night when Noah's Deluge first dried! And as the ruddy glow was fading into clearness in the sky, and the sun had now departed, a murmur of Eternity and Immensity, of Death and of Life stole through the on-looker's soul; and he felt as if Death and Life were one, as if the earth were not dead, as if the Spirit of the earth had its throne in that splendour, and his own spirit were therewith holding communion."

But this confused medley was but an imperfect expression of my thoughts, and I was constrained to set down Wordsworth lines which surely must take rank among the finest pieces of poetry in the English language.—

". . . . And I have felt
A presence that disturbs me with the joy
Of elevated thoughts; a sense sublime
Of something far more deeply interfused,
Whose dwelling is the light of setting suns,
And the round ocean and the living air,
And the blue sky, and in the mind man;
A motion and a spirit that impels
All thinking things, all objects of all thought,
And rolls through all things."

For a while I had stood as one enchanted, as a trespasser upon holy ground, and I had indeed felt "a sense sublime of something far more deeply interfused . . . a motion and a spirit that impels all thinking things."

THE IMMENSITIES.

I am no believer in the sudden and the spectacular. I believe with all my soul that there is more wonder in the silent dew than in all the roar and swirl of turbulent Niagra, and that God's purposes are more easily read in the myriad silent stars keeping watch century by century than in the sudden comet which flashes upon our wonderful gaze and then is seen no more. I have usually more faith in the worth of the ordinary events of the day than in the extraordinary events which sometimes amaze us. Nevertheless, I am persuaded that occasionally we need to be disturbed, roused from ourselves, startled, impressed, inspired. We are finite, but it does us good sometimes to feel the lure of the infinite, to be amazed at the incredibly tremendous, and to feel our souls strangely moved by some arresting event or phenomena, Because we live amongst little houses and short streets; because we measure our lives in hours and half-hours, there is a danger that we settle down complacently and contentedly into a kind of amiable jog-trot existence.

God grant that now and then we may be spell-stopped by a sunset that grips us, holds our thoughts prisoners, ruthlessly compels us to realise our own littleness and as ruthlessly piles up infinites of clouds before our wonderful gaze! The blinding lightning and the crashing thunder serve their purpose if they succeed in startling us, if they impress us with the vastness of the forces about us. The great ocean is a symbol of the immensity of God; and when we have come to think of the Almighty in too familiar a manner, when we are in danger of robbing him of his attributes and ranking him with the lesser princes of the earth, then the wonder of the sunset may expand our minds and fill our hearts and teach us the mystery of life.

It is strange that I have recently been accused of rank optimism! With Stevenson I believe that we are meant to go through life as cheerful adventurers, but by that I do not mean we should undervalue life, hold it cheaply, think it of less worth than it really is. Through the busy day, amidst our pleasures we are liable to forget the dignity of life, the infinity of its possibilities. These sunset moments, then, make us conscious of the immensities beyond and within us. They sober us, so to speak. We realize our littleness even as we feel the awakening of the divinity within.

I stood bareheaded facing west. I hope that when you next witness a golden sundown, splendid and serene, you, too, will be constrained to stand bareheaded, and that you, too, may feel immensity entering your heart, enlarging your life, and filling your being with new power.

FOURTEEN YEARS OF SUFFERING.

Woman's Fatal Overdose.

A woman's death from overdose of barbitone after 14 years of suffering, was investigated by the Coroner (Dr. A. Ambrose) at an inquest held at the Ilford Town Hall on Friday, on Mrs. Elizabeth Lois Beckett (68), of 65, Cowley-road, Ilford, wife of a schoolmaster.

Mr. Christopher Beckett, the husband, said his wife had had trouble with her ears for many years and was unable to sleep. The doctor gave her some tablets to induce sleep, but his wife was very chary of taking them at all.

On Monday, July 31st, she had a terrible night and for six hours was in agony with her ears and her head.

In the moning he left her in bed, but heard a bell ring soon after and went up to find her practically unconscious. She said, before she lapsed into unconsciousness, "I hope you will forgive me for the terrible thing I have done."

The Coroner: In a moment of desperation, poor soul.

Mr. Beckett said he did not think she meant to end her life—it was her desperate desire for sleep.

Dr. J. Segerdal said death was due to an overdose of barbitone, the substance of which the tablets were composed.

The Coroner: It is rather a bad thing to have about?

Dr. Segerdal: I understand that people have taken larger doses than deceased and have recovered.

The Coroner said he was not satisfied whether the deceased took the overdose simply to get sleep or whether she took it to end her miseries—she had had 14 years of trouble with her ears.

He brought in an open verdict.

Camera Hints.

THE DYING WINDMILL.

By Frank Sharpe.

WINDMILLS make good picture studies for the camera. There is something attractive about these quaint relics of long ago.

Many of the existing windmills are not less than 300 years old and are on the sites of original mills built in the twelfth century by the Crusaders, who brought the idea from the East. Norfolk and Suffolk at one time were famous for windmills, and it is said there were over 500 in these two counties alone. A few will still be found on the Downs of Sussex and Kent, which contrast strongly in settings with those of the lowlands.

But they are rapidly being demolished and you may be glad to secure a photograph before it is too late. So get your Kodak and see what old windmills you can find. They make beautiful pictures, but their beauty is not derived solely from the mills alone. They are usually in a setting of broad meadows, or near a field of growing corn.

As a rule photography of windmills does not present many difficulties. A suitable viewpoint is easy to find, but it is well to choose a time when the sails are at rest and then full exposure can be given. However, you may be compelled to snap your particular mill when it is working. If so, take care not to be too near. Set your shutter to 1/50th of a second and on a bright day you should obtain a sharp photograph.

In a strong wind the sails may be going too fast for you to take a direct picture, but if a point can be chosen giving an oblique view of the sails, there is little danger of the movement spoiling the photograph.

Remember that your mill will probably have a wide open background, so choose a vantage point that will give you a good picture and not just a silhouette.

The pictorial quality of the picture will be considerably improved if you are lucky enough to secure a background of grey storm clouds, which will record on your negative without the aid of a sky filter.

It is proposed to have a 120ft. long Swimming Bath at Brentwood and the surveyor has been instructed to proceed immediately with the preparation of a scheme for the Council's consideration.

KEEP MILK BOTTLES CLEAN

It is almost impossible to prevent hands that are soiled from touching foodstuffs that are delivered daily. Milk bottles are almost always carried by the rim, over which the milk must be poured. Before unsealing the bottle it should be wiped carefully from top to bottom with a cloth that has been dipped in warm soapy water, then dried with a clean cloth.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE
WITHOUT PURGATIVES OR CALOMEL
and you'll jump out of bed in the morning full of pep

If you are fed-up and depressed, feel heavy-eyed in the morning and get the blues all day long, don't swallow a lot of salts, liquid paraffin, palatable laxatives or harsh purgatives and expect them to make you feel fresh and buoyant and full of sunshine.

They can't do it. They only move the bowels and that doesn't get at the cause—your liver. Your liver's chief job is to send two pints of bile juice into your bowels every day. If bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Your stomach is filled with gas. You have a thick, bad taste in your mouth. Your breath is foul and skin blemishes often break out. You get headaches and feel rotten. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good old CARTERS BRAND LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pints of bile juice flowing freely and to make you feel right on top of the world. They contain harmless, gentle vegetable extracts and they are just wonderful when it comes to promoting the flow of bile. But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carters Pills. Look for the name Carters on the package. At all Chemists 1/3 and special 3/- size, saving ninepence.

Simple Dishes for Nursery Folk

Chocolate Rice Pudding.

Required: 4ozs. rice, 3ozs. chocolate, 1oz. butter, 1 pint milk, 2ozs. sugar, a pinch of salt, 1 pint of water, 1 teaspoonful of vanilla essence. Wash the rice well and drain. Boil the water and sprinkle into it the rice and salt, and simmer until the rice is soft and has absorbed the water. Grate the chocolate, mix it with the milk bring slowly to the boil, then stir it into the rice. Add the sugar and vanilla essence and butter. Mix well and turn it into a greased piedish and bake it for about 40 minutes in a moderate oven. This pudding may be served hot or cold; but it may be steamed in a basin if liked instead of baked, and eaten hot or cold.

Steamed Jam Pudding.

Mix four tablespoonfuls of flour with half a teaspoonful of baking powder and lightly rub into them a tablespoonful of butter. Beat up two eggs with two tablespoonfuls of sugar and two tablespoonfuls of milk, and moisten the dry ingredients with this liquid. Butter a basin, put three or four tablespoonfuls of jam at the bottom. Pour the mixture on the jam. Cover and steam for two and-a-half hours. When turned out the jam should fall over the sides of the pudding.

Fish en Casserole.

Any cooked white fish will do for this. You will want about 1½lbs. Remove the skin and all bones carefully and flake the fish. Put it into a buttered casserole or fireproof dish, cover with slices of hard-boiled egg, sprinkle with salt, cover with slices of cooked potatoes, and pour over half pint of white or parsley sauce. Put into a moderate oven until it is thoroughly hot.

Savoury Rice.

Put some rice and milk in a piedish and cook as for rice pudding. When half done mix in some chopped herbs, chopped parsley, a little butter, seasonings, onions and tomatoes if liked. Cover with breadcrumbs and little dabs of butter and bake in a very moderate oven.

Creamed Spinach.

Boil some spinach without any water until it is tender. Drain it and mash thoroughly, add ½oz. of butter and one or two tablespoonfuls of cream or milk, season with salt and reheat. Then pile on slices of fried bread or toast and serve very hot.

TO MEND A HOLE IN A BUCKET.

Don't throw away a metal pail just because there is a hole in it. You can mend it if you take a little trouble. First, thoroughly clean the article to be mended, and cut a piece of canvas or ordinary sacking to a size about 2ins. larger than the bottom. Put the sacking in water to get it wet all over, wring it out, and push it well down into the pail so that it comes a little way up the sides as well as covering the base. Next make a thin paste of cement and water and pour this into the bucket until the bottom is covered with a thin layer. Allow this to stand for about half an hour and then pour in another layer of the cement paste until the whole of the sacking is covered. When the cement is set and quite dry, the pail is ready for use, and it should last a long time.

HOME-MADE CHICKEN AND HAM PASTE.

Appetising potted meat can be made from small pieces of cold cooked fowl. Scrape all the bits from the carcase and add an equal quantity of rather fat cooked ham. Mince well and pound together, with salt and pepper to season, until it forms a paste. If you want to keep it for a few days press the paste into small glass jars and steam for about half an hour. When cold put a layer of melted butter over the top and seal the pots.

Buy Your Leather Coat During the Month of August.

(By the Editor of the Women's Page.)

HAVE you made up your mind if you will need a new leather coat, this autumn? I expect such a question seems hopelessly unseasonable when the whole world is gasping in the heat. But I have chosen, this week, to talk of leather coats for two very practical reasons. The first is that I have learned on reliable authority that there will be a definite rise in the wholesale price of leather coats just as soon as manufacturers have exhausted their present supplies of skins, so that an increase in retail prices in a month or two can be prophesied with certainty. The second reason is that the first 1933 autumn leather coats arrived in Ilford this week, so that shoppers just now may have coats in the new styles at last season's price levels.

* * *

WEARING LEATHER.

THE great increase in the popularity of leather coats during the past year or two, is the best tribute that could be paid to their usefulness. They are, of course, wind-proof and water-proof, comfortable, light and soft to wear. The warmth of a leather coat practically equals that of a fur coat, so that leather makes a safe alternative to a fur coat in winter weather, and is quite unspoiled by rain and sleet that would ruin a fur coat. Holiday-makers who visit the Lake district, who go touring in the north of Scotland, cruising on the Norwegian coast or in the Baltic, or who cross the Atlantic, will find a leather coat one of the greatest travel comforts.

NEW STYLES.

LEATHER coats, to-day, are fully-fashioned garments, skilfully cut and designed to give a becoming slim line to the figure of the wearer. Each year designers and manufacturers grow more expert in these matters. The most marked features of this year's coats, I think, are the interesting and varied decorative ideas that have been introduced. Many coats are lined with all wool plaid or check materials, and the collar of the coat is made of the same material as the lining. Very frequently these collars are designed in the cravat style, with the ties crossing on the shoulder. I was shown a black leather coat with a black and white check cravat collar, and a brown coat was brightened with the contrast of a warm plaid.

LIZARD PIPING.

ANOTHER outstandingly pretty and unique coat was designed in black leather and piped in lizard skin. The pockets, too, were lined with lizard skin. Piped trimmings, of course, show to particular advantage on leather coats, because each coat is made of several skins, and the piping is introduced where the skins join. Many coats have very smart and effective insets introduced, which not only give a becoming ornamental effect to the back of the coat, but also shape it skilfully to the figure of the wearer. Close stitching ornamented a number of coats, being used to edge storm collars and to adorn leather insets. Many of the coats had wind-proof lining inserted in the sleeves and drawn up by an elastic band at the wrist, so that the arms of the wearer would be protected from cold and rain.

COLOURS.

BLACK will be one of the most popular colours for leather coats, this autumn, particularly with white trimming. Navy also will take a leading place, though other shades of blue will be worn as well. Both green and brown will be reliable colours. Coats will be obtainable in a big range of sizes. The best skins are those that can be softly crumpled in one's hand without afterwards showing any creases.

* * *

ALTERATIONS.

THOSE who bought leather coats last year should consider whether they will not be well advised to have their coats overhauled and renovated before the cooler weather comes. Like fur coats, leather coats can be most skilfully repaired and refreshed at quite a small cost, and look practically as good as new. Worn parts in the skin can often be cut away and replaced. Lengthening can be so skilfully contrived that the additions seem integral parts of the coat. And, above all, coats can be resprayed, so that the leather is given a new, unscratched surface. It is usually wisest to have a coat resprayed in the original colour, but often a different dye can be used quite effectively provided a strong colour is used over a weaker one.

THIS WEEK'S—

USE rock ammonia for softening the washing-up water if soda makes your hands hard and rough.

* * *

A pinch of salt added to burnt milk before it gets cold reduces the unpleasant taste.

* * *

A lemon cut into slices and boiled with white clothes keeps them white and takes out stains.

* * *

Use a mixture of strong cold tea and water for washing varnished woodwork. Allow the mixture to dry on the material, then polish with an old silk handkerchief.

* * *

Inkstains on garments should be soaked in a mixture of salt and milk. A teaspoonful of salt to nearly a gill of milk is the right proportion. If the ink has been allowed to dry it will be necessary to soak the stained part in the milk for an hour or two.

* * *

Do not throw away bones after one boiling. They can be boiled again and again and all nourishment has not been extracted until tiny holes appear all over them.

—BEST HINTS.

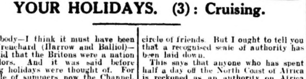
AFTER you have finished starching, put the basin or bowl containing it aside until the sediment settles. Then pour off the water and leave the white substance for a day or two. It will harden into crystals again, and can be used repeatedly.

* * *

Black silk which has become dull and shabby is greatly improved by the following process: Brush and wipe the silk, then stretch it flat on a table, and sponge it with hot coffee which has been strained through a piece of muslin. Sponge on the right side, and when almost dry iron on the wrong side.

* * *

Meat loses water and gains in nutriment when cooked. Care should be taken, if it is boiled, not to lose the soluble proteins and mineral salts. A good way to cook meat is to stew it, for the juices are then found in the gravy. If meat is boiled plunge it at once into boiling water; if it is baked or roasted expose it to a high temperature.



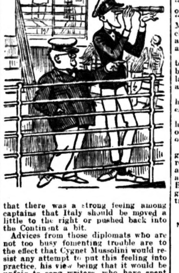
JOKING APART...
BY B.E.A. & JEWELL
HIGH LIGHTS AND SIDE LIGHTS HERE AND THERE.

YOUR HOLIDAYS. (3): Cruising.

Somebody—I think it must have been Lord Trenchard (Harrow and Balliol)—once said that the Britons were a nation of sailors. And it was said before cruising holidays were thought of. For a couple of summers now the Channel, Medit—Meddit—the sea round the edges of Italy—the North Sea and the Baltic have been thick with ships carrying sturdy seafaring folk from Balham and Ilford, Barking and Ealing all with their sea chests full of beach pyjamas, yachting caps, bathing suits, evening dress, dancing pumps and false noses and toy balloons and other nautical apparatus which has lessened the rigours of life for those at sea.

I have been told that residents along the edges of France and Italy have lodged a strong complaint about it. They say they can't get a wink of sleep at nights because of the jazz bands which brighten the lives of our mariners and that their view of the horizon is cut off throughout the summer by a wall of ships.

I would not go so far as to say that you could not drop a sardine between the ships because I believe that someone with a steady hand who was really intent upon doing so could manage it, but I believe that conditions are so crowded that there was a strong feeing among captains that Italy should be moved a little to the right or pushed back into the Continent a bit.



OFF COWES.
ME: "THERE IT IS!"
B.E.A.: "WHAT?"
ME: "THE YACHT THAT WE'VE NACHT GACHT!"

Advices from those diplomats who are not too busy fomenting trouble are to the effect that Cygnet Mussolini would resist any attempt to put this feeling into practice, his view being that it would be unfair to song writers, who have spent considerable time and thought in deciding that when it is nightime in Italy it is Wednesday over here, to muck about with the latitude or longitude of the country.

In the Channel they tell me, things are so bad that a captain dare not turn out of the traffic line without putting out his hand and in the North Sea, I am credibly informed, herrings are being caught in the form of kippers and plaice are so thin that they have to put paper weights on them when there is a bit of a breeze blowing along the decks.

Cruising therefore provides a safe holiday. If you fall overboard the greatest danger you have is injuring yourself when you fall on the next ship.

I have heard it said (by a relation of Jewell) that a couple of good walkers left England at Southampton and walked across the decks to Gibraltar in a week.

The advantage of a cruise is that it helps you to broaden your outlook. I knew one man who was so thin when he went that the Customs people in one of the ports refused to admit him because they were convinced that he was a skeleton out of the family cupboard and, as such, was taxable. When he returned he was 40 inches round the outlook, not including two bottles of brandy which he had tucked away in his cummerbund.

Still, you don't want to know that. You don't need telling how a cruise gives one a reputation as a world explorer—you probably have cruising liars in your own circle of friends. But I ought to tell you that a recognised scale of authority has been laid down.

This says that anyone who has spent half a day off the North Coast of Africa is reckoned as an authority on Africa down as far as the Congo. If he should step ashore he becomes an expert on Africa all the way down to the bottom.

A day excursion to Calais or Boulogne gives a traveller the right to the title of Expert on Continental Affairs and a couple of days in Italy ranks him about equal to Mussolini in his knowledge of that country.

You have to spend a whole day at Kiel before you can be reckoned an authority on Hitler's little game.

Before you start on your cruise you should polish up your nautical knowledge a bit because if you refer to the ship's "chimneys," "chimleys" or "chimbleys" (according to which public school you were at) some of these tough old cruising salts who spent a week at sea last year will laugh at you. A ship has no chimneys, chimleys or chimbleys. They are called funnels and they are stuck in the middle of the ship.

A few useful terms to know are "abaft," "forrard," "beam," "stabboard," "marlinspike," "batten," and "belaying pin."

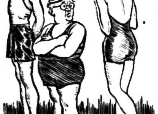
It doesn't much matter what they mean but, used sparingly, they give you the reputation of a rollicking old salt who is on familiar terms with the Seven Seas and never feels at home off a ship. "Forrard," however means the thin end of the ship and "abaft," the thick end. "Stabboard" is the off side of the ship. Marlinspike an instrument used exclusively for beaning a colleague. Where a landsman would naturally use a bottle a sailor reaches out for his marlinspike.

It is a very serious breach of etiquette to bean a fellow cruiser with anything but a marlinspike—unless you use a belaying pin which is permissible in the absence of a marlinspike.

Marlinspikes and belaying pins can be hired from the steward at a small charge.

A "batten" is an instrument used on hatches. They batten down the hatches occasionally when the hatches get frisky or mischievous.

Don't embark thinking that you are going to have a lazy holiday, you have responsibilites. It is, for example, an absolute necessity that you should go ashore as often as possible and, as a Briton, show yourself to the natives and give them a treat. It is also an obligation on you to show no consideration for the natives on these occasions. Barge about and generally show the benighted dogs what jolly good fellows we are.



ME (TO DESIGNING FEMALE): "I ADMIT HE HAS A WONDERFUL PROFILE, BUT I TELL YOU IT'S NOT RAMON NOVARRO!"

Even on board your time is pretty well booked up. You are practically bound to bathe all morning, snatch a hasty meal, bathe some more, play games, swallow a mouthful of tea, play more games, scramble dinner away and then spend a strenuous evening dancing good old nautical foxtrots.

Then, too, the captain looks to you for a bit of assistance and advice in handling the ship and you have to spend a bit of time with him in his little hut at the top of the stairs.

I once heard of a captain who was so upset because he was neglected that he waited till the ship next door had edged off a little and heaved himself into the ocean. The ship went on and on for weeks because no one knew where they were going and things got very bad.

Fortunately when the dance band was down to its very last tune the ship ran straight into Africa and everyone was drowned.

And now, from amusement to education. You should know something about the countries you will be visiting in your fortnight. I have left out Australia because we can't very well have anything to do with a country who have disagreed with the M.C.C.

FRANCE: Population, French; Exports, polishers, windows, chalk; Language, French; Things to see, Eiffel Tower (where the lemonade comes from), Bois de Boulogne and girls de Boulogne.

VALENTINES S.C. ACTIVITIES.

Splendid Tennis Win.

As the result of a visit to the Hornchurch Congregational Tennis Club, at Hornchurch, last Thursday, the tennis section of the Valentines Sporting Club (Ilford) put up their best performance of the season, and incidentally took ample revenge for the defeat sustained on our courts, sometime in June, when Hornchurch took the honours by two events to one.

Fortunately for us last Thursday's fixture fell at a time when most of our best players were available.

It only needed steady play on the courts to arrive at the desired result.

Playing on grass, after our own hard courts, at first appeared to trouble our representatives in addition to which they had to face some determined play by our hosts.

After these early reverses, however, play turned entirely in our favour, with the result that we eventually won all three events on the programme, the details being as follows:—

Mixed doubles, Mr. R. Wheatley and Miss H. Wilson beat Mr. J. West and Miss M. Cogar 4—6, 6—4, 6—2; gents doubles, Messrs. E. Wade and R. Baucutt beat Messrs. A. Foster and P. Knight, 5—7, 6—4, 6—2; ladies doubles, Misses E. Wilson and G. Sharman beat Misses K. Porteous and D. Lush 4—6 6—4, 6—3.

Just prior to the holiday week-end the two outstanding games in the first round of the club's "Max.-George" Cup tournament were decided, and the way is now clear for the second rounds to be embarked upon.

The results of the two games just spoken of were Mr. F. Gordon and Mrs. E. Bull beat Mr. A. J. Swift and Miss W. Stedman, 6—4, 6—4; and Mr. R. Wheatley and Miss E. Mortimer beat Mr. E. A. Bailey and Miss D. Stedman, 6—4, 6—2.

ESSEX CHAMPIONSHIP WALK.

In most cases our walking members refrained from competition events, during the holiday week-end, in view of the fact that on Saturday next we shall be engaged in the Essex County long distance championship which is one of the biggest fixtures on our list each year. This race, which starts from our headquarters at the "Cooper's Arms," Chadwell Heath, and finishes at the Pier, Southend-on-Sea is over a distance of 32 miles 7 furlongs and the team we have entered for this year is composed of L. A. Aves, S. W. Bryant, W. F. Cockle, D. G. Davies, A. Goodsell, L. Jessup, H. W. Kemp, E. A. Lamb and A. Mead.

Our rivals from the Woodford Green A.C. will again be strongly represented, and Loughton A.C. have also a good team in the "field" this time, but our strongest opponents would appear to be the Essex Beagles, who were successful in gaining their first team win in this event last August.

Apart from our competitors, we shall also be supplying a number of officials for the event, and all available members of the club are invited to be on the road wherever possible to give a hand in the numerous jobs that go to the making of such fixtures.

Those interested in the strolls, organised by our walking section, will find the new fixture card, which was issued this week, a very attractive one indeed.

There are the usual strolls booked for each Sunday throughout the twelve months ending next June, with all-day events for the first and third Sunday's of each month. Next Sunday, August 13th, there is a morning stroll to Ardleigh Green starting from Seven Kings station, at 10 o'clock, as usual.

The proximity of the Bank Holiday week-end, added to the normal holiday season, did not seem to reduce, by very many, the number present at the Ilford Baths for our usual club night, last Friday. Attendances of members for several weeks have in fact, been very good indeed and the strength of the swimming section is now reported to be well above the hundred mark. The fixture for this section, during last Friday's session was a team race with the Ilford (Ladies) S.C., in which we were represented by Mrs. M. Wiffin and the Misses M. Morris, E. Hankin and D. Tanner, the result being an easy win for the Ilford Ladies, who turned out a good side and finished about three-quarters length in front. To-morrow (Friday) evening a long plunge competition, for members of both sexes, will be held.

The football section, which is to compete in the first divisions of two local leagues next season again invite applications from prospective members, who should write to our football secretary, Mr. A. L. W. Rich, 30, Parkway, Seven Kings.

NATURE'S POET.

Wordsworth and the Revelation of Beauty.

I.M.M. RECITAL—ADDRESS

On Sunday, at the Ilford Men's Meeting, Mr. George Wadeson, of Hornsey, gave a recital-address entitled "The Revelation of God in Nature." Many passages from Wordsworth which manifested the poet's deep appreciation of the beauties of nature, were finely declaimed.

How many, he asked, when they looked upon the works of nature, felt there was a power behind, beyond the comprehension of mortal man—a supernatural or divine power? There was not a moment when nature was not producing scene after scene, glory after glory, from the beautiful radiance of the rising sun to its majestic setting in the west. The noblest scenes on earth could be seen and known only by few, but the sky, gentle capricious or awful by turn and almost divine in its infinity, was for all. Who could look upon the gorgeous hues of the rainbow without feeling some spiritual uplift?

Wordsworth, who knew every change and seasonal beauty by heart, showed by his works that he realised the revelation of God in nature. While yet a boy he showed a healthy love of the open air and of the freedom of meadows and woods, birds nesting and nutting, rowing and skating on the lake; but before long the animal love of nature began to change to a mystical spiritual love. The creative soul awoke in him, and a new glory and a new meaning stole across familiar things till a revelation of the spiritual significance of the universe came to him.

His spiritual faculties, quickened into activity, found their chief satisfaction in intimate communion with the indwelling spirit of external things. The essential feature of his treatment of nature was his intense spirituality. The spiritual meaning was added to natural beauty, not substituted for it.

SOUL OF THE UNIVERSE.

As an expression of pure delight in such natural beauty his poem "Daffodils," ten thousand tossing their heads in sprightly dance, could not easily be surpassed. It was because of the essential kinship between the spiritual faculty in man and the indwelling soul of the universe that communion with nature was possible, but only on condition that nature was approached in the right mood, the mood not of analysis and speculation, but of receptivity and deep religious contemplation.

Nature to Wordsworth was always benignant, harmonious and full of blessings. He found in nature what he sought, the peace which was in his own soul. Deeply deploring the blindness and deafness of the average man to the glories of the world around him, Wordsworth believed that even superstitious veneration of the forces of nature was better than the apathy born of absorption in material things. How applicable that was to day, when practically the whole world was worshipping Mammon.

Wordsworth opened the eyes of his readers to the loveliness of nature and their souls to her divine message, showing that the secret of true happiness was to be sought not in external things, but in the soul. Wordsworth never tired of the magic of the lakeland country, which was equally beautiful in the first golden days of spring, in the heated days and still nights of summer, in autumn, when the heather was turning to purple, in winter, when woods and dales were mantled by frost and snow. That was the country where Wordsworth lived and died, where the spirit of nature had power to solace his soul, where in every object in nature he found his text.

Next Sunday the speaker will be the Rev. Nicholas Richards, B.D., of Western Australia. Mr. S. Daniels will preside, and Miss Winifred Clapton will be the soloist.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH HIT BY LIGHTNING.

Are Conductors any Good?

It is revealed in the August issue of the St. Andrew's Parish Magazine that, during a recent storm the roof of the church was struck by lightning.

The roof was struck along the ridge at the apex of the apse, but it appeared that neither the woodwork or the brickwork had been damaged, according to a report made to the Parochial Church Council by Mr. A. P. Griggs, churchwarden.

A number of tiles had been carried away causing damage to the roof of the vestry and the vicarage. The amount of the damage was covered by insurance.

The Parochial Church Council discussed, at their last meeting, the advisability of fixing a lightning conductor at each end of the church.

Mr. Griggs said there existed a considerable divergency of opinion among architects as to the efficacy of lightning conductors.

Apparently no very great importance was attached to them even by insurance companies. The provision of lightning conductors did not bring about a reduction on insurance premiums.

ST. ANDREW'S DRAMATIC SOCIETY PROFIT.

St. Andrew's Choral and Dramatic Society finished last season with a balance at the bank of £30 14s. 7d., their receipts amounting to £203 12s. 11d. Of this amount £58 was raised by three dramatic and three choral performances. Subscriptions amounted to £55.

On the expenditure side £21 was spent in donations and £24 was given to the Ilford Social Service Council. Hire of the hall cost £33.

LOCAL WILLS.

Among wills recently proved are the following:—

Mr. J. Benton, 67, Cranbrook-road, Ilford, died May 6th, £21,407.

ILFORD PURCHASE OF INDIAN GRANITE

No "Sweated Labour" in Mysore Industry.

OFFICIAL STATEMENT.

Dear Sir,—The great publicity given by you to the recent visit of Mr. N. Mad hava Rau, Chief Secretary to the government of Mysore, to your borough for the purpose of gaining an insight into the municipal life of this country, and th very great courtesy shown to him by the Mayor, officials and all with whor he came into contact, is very much appreciated by my Government.

The granite to which you refer in you issue of the 3rd August, is only one of th many products of the State of Mysore I enclose copy of a letter dealing wit the chief points referred to in you article, which has been sent to the Members of Parliament concerned.

I should be glad if you would publis this letter in as prominent a position your own article, since I feel that th public might otherwise get a wrong impression.—Yours faithfully,

H. D. RICE,
Actg. Trade Commissioner for Mysore in London.
Grand Buildings,
Trafalgar Square, W.C.2.

"SOME MISUNDERSTANDING."

The following is a copy of the lette sent to Mr. Charles Williams, M.P., dated 5th August, 1933. (The crossheadings have been inserted editorially.)

"I have seen a reference in the Pres to the question asked by Mr. Burnett in the House of Commons on the 27th July and answered by Dr. Burgin, on the subject of the conditions under which granit kerbs are quarried in the State of Mysore. I understand further that you ar also interested in this question and tha you, together with Members representin Aberdeen, propose to approach the Minister of Transport on the subject.

"I do not know what further developments there have been in the matter but, judging from the very brief repor in the Press, I fear there may be som misunderstanding, and as you have bee good enough to interest qourself in the matter, I wish to communicate the following facts for your information.

RATES OF PAY.

"The workmen on the granite quarri in Mysore earn a higher rate of wages than most other classes of labourer. It is incorrect to refer to the men wh quarry and dress granite as "coolies, since they are skilled workers and thei labour, so far from being sweated, relatively highly paid. In contrastir rates of pay in India and here, differences in the condition of life in the tw countries and in the purchasing power of the respective amounts earned have to be borne in mind. It should be remembered, too, that a large number of middle-class educated Indians do not earn so much as these skilled workers.

"I may inform you that the whole matter was explained in detail to the High Commissioner for India before this industry was started. We then made it clear that we would not compete against U.K. granite, but if the highway authorities were unable to afford the price of U.K. kerb, we asked for consideration being shown for an Empire product as against a foreign product such as that from Scandinavia. That there is room for Overseas Empire producers to supply the United Kingdom market in addition to local supplies is evident from the fact that during the years 1928 to 1931 inclusive (the latest years for which detailed statistics are available) importations of granite setts and kerbs from Sweden, Norway and other foreign countries have on average exceeded 100,000 tons per annum. I am not importing granite in the form of setts but only in well dressed kerbstones.

"I might also point out that our supplies are confined to places within about twenty miles from the London wharves. It is, from the nature of things, impossible for us to attempt deliveries at mor distant points, and it is not our desir to do so. Our activities in fact onl touch the fringe of the business available in kerb in this country.

WORK FOR BRITISH HANDS.

"You may also be interested to know that the greater portion of the total expenditure incurred in the import of kerb goes back to sources that were financed with British capital. The kerb is carried for 200 miles on Indian railways built substantially with British capital It is then carried in British bottoms fro Madras to London, where it is handled by British workmen, and again carried the work in British lorries.

"You will thus see that the Indian industry does not depend upon sweated labour, nor does it compete with the quarrying business in this country except to a small extent and, I am sur you will agree, in a legitimate manner. We feel that an Empire industry like this has a strong claim for consideration as against kerb from foreign sources."

BARKINGSIDE CLERK ACQUITTED.

Insufficient Evidence in Serious Case.

Arthur William Hall, a clerk, aged 41, of 70, Victoria-road, Barkingside, was discharged at Stratford Police Court on Friday when he appeared on remand charged with having committed an offence in front of a woman and her two children in North Circular-road, Walthamstow.

The Bench were of the opinion that there was insufficient evidence.

Hall was arrested at the instance of a policeman's wife who, at the first hearing, declared that after the alleged offence had been committed she detained him until the arrival of her husband.

The accused described her allegation as ridiculous.

At the resumed hearing, a gentleman who was described as a member of the Bar, said he was Hall's superior officer and they were both engaged in work that called for the highest degree of morality. It was part of witness's duty to make inquiries into Hall's life apart from the office, and if there was the slightest indication that he did not lead a strictly moral life witness would have heard of it, and would have had to have made a report on the matter. If Hall was convicted he would lose his position. Speaking from his knowledge of the man witness had no hesitation in giving him a good character.

Witness handed the Bench a confidential statement indicating Hall's official position.

Evidence was also given by a groundsman, who spoke to seeing Hall at a time that would have scarcely permitted him to reach the spot where the alleged offence was committed at the time mentioned by the woman.

FLORAL CHARM AT CHIGWELL.

"Bigger and Better" Annual Show.

FULL LIST OF AWARDS.

"Bigger and better than ever" is description that may be aptly applied to the 55th annual flower show of the Chigwell Horticultural Society, held on Monday, in the grounds of the Manor Hall. Not since 1878, when the exhibition was first organised, has the event been such a success.

The day was perfect. The sun shone without a break, a gentle breeze tempering the heat. In such ideal conditions crowds flocked to the grounds.

There were 84 more entries this year, and three large marquees were required to house the exhibits. Last year only one marquee was required.

The floral section provided a marvellous display and won the admiration of the judges, Messrs. C. W. Aylett, D. B. Crane, W. B. Gingell, G. Steele and T. W. Woodfield. The ladies classes were judged by Mrs. E. W. Smith and Miss Radley.

After the show the exhibits were collected and sent to the Forest Hospital.

In the evening there was a dance in the Manor Hall. The M.C.'s were Messrs. R. R. Wilkins, J. M. Hamilton, R. Hawkey and C. J. Sanders.

To enable the organisers, helpers, judges and guests to face the strain of a hard day a lunch was held in the Manor Hall.

Those present included Mr. J. Sanders (presiding), Rev. W. M. Smith (rector of Chigwell), Mr. J. C. Lockwood, M.P., Dr. J. H. Pratt, Councillor A. P. Griggs (Ilford), Messrs. R. R. Wilkins (chairman Chigwell Parish Council), A. E. Savill, A. F. Jackson, W. Stewart, C. Stedman, W. E. Scott Smith, L. E. Fraquet, W. L. Arbour, F. H. Booth, G. P. Bailey, J. Wiseman, A. Catto, J. J. WONDERFUL PROGRESS.

Mr. W. E. Smith, chairman of the society, submitting the health of the president, said that since Mr. J. Sanders had been in office they had made wonderful progress. It seemed that whatever Mr. Sanders was associated with, whether it was business or pleasure, it was always a success. In fact, everything that Mr. Sanders touched turned to gold. The reason was not far to seek. Mr. Sanders was a man possessed of ability and unbounded enthusiasm. He hoped they would retain the services of their president for many years to come.

Mr. Sanders, he went on, took over the reins of office when he (the speaker) dropped them in 1929. Then they had 129 members and 39 vice-presidents, now they had 164 members and 66 vice-presidents. They had given more than a hundred guineas to the Forest Hospital and a considerable sum to other charities. This year they had to have 10,000 square feet of marquee space to house the exhibits.

Responding, Mr. Sanders said it had given him great pleasure to be their president for five years, and he thanked Mr. Smith and Mr. Lamb for their loyal help. They had been wonderful workers, and he could not have made a success of his job but for their help. During the past five years the society had made great strides. He was sorry that he did not propose to carry on as their president after this year. He hoped that his successor would also be a keen horticulturist, and that he would have an equall successful term of office.

Mr. Lockwood expressed his delight being present, and his health was enthusiastically drunk on the proposition of Mr. A. E. Savill.

Mr. D. B. Crane, acknowledging the toast of "The Judges," offered by Mr. C. E. Lovett, said he was extremely pleased to see Mr. Lockwood there, because he believed he had the same interest in flowers as had his uncle th late Lord Lambourne.

He congratulated the members on the success of the show. He could not say anything elaborate about them, but in view of the abnormal weather he thought they could be justly proud of their efforts.

The toast to the officers was given by Mr. R. R. Wilkins, who said he wished to refer particularly to four officers, Messrs. Maguire, Catto, W. E. Smith, and their secretary Mr. Lamb. They could not secure a better secretary; his work was as near perfection as it could ever be. (Hear, hear.)

"JOLLY GOOD FELLOW."

In reply, Mr. Lamb, referring to the president's intention to retire, asked the members whether they were "going to let him go."

"No," replied the company.

"Very well, then," Mr. Lamb said, and, turning to Mr. Sanders, asked him if he would carry out his threat in face of the wishes of the company.

On being assured that the committee would assist him in his duties to a greater extent than in the past, Mr. Sanders, amid cheers, intimated that he would be willing to remain in office.

JUDGES' OPINION.

Interviewed by the "Recorder," Mr Crane, the chief judge, said: "We have had a very abnormal season, and it matter for amazement that a show could be held at all. That the Chigwell Horticultural Society have staged one reflects the highest credit on them. Many men have lost their plants altogether, yet Chigwell has succeeded in representing every branch of horticulture. The carnations are very good."

In addition to the show there were numerous side-shows, which attracted crowds, very good business being done.

MR. WILLIAM SMITH AND MISS ELSIE GREEN.

An Ilford bride, this week, had the pleasure of seeing representatives of four generations of her family, present at her wedding. Miss Green's family have lived in Ilford for 30 years, and her father is a Freeman of the City of London.

The ceremony, on Saturday, was performed by the Rev. Leslie Keeble, and Mr. Leonard Urquhart, L.R.A.M., played hymns and voluntaries.

The bride was daintily dressed in a white satin bridal gown, and an orange blossom wreath and veil. She carried a bouquet of cream tea roses.

Her sister, Miss Winifred Norah Green, who attended her, wore a pale blue satin gown, trimmed with touches of pink, a picture hat and a blue and gold crystal necklace, and carried a bouquet of pink sweet peas.

All three bridesmaids wore jade green necklaces and green mittens which were gifts from the bridegroom.

The bride's mother, who wore a spray of dark red carnations, was dressed in a graceful gown of black georgette and lace, with a large picture hat trimmed with angel skin ribbon shading from white to a deep gold. A GOSSIP'S BOWL BY "PUCK"

Little War On.

THOUGH, to all outward appearances, Ilford is calm and quiet, if not actually sound asleep, these days, under the surface is proceeding a fierce bit of guerilla warfare, in which the Ilford Council and the London Passenger Transport Board are sniping at each other. It is nothing very exciting to the ordinary man in the street, but it is causing members of the Council thrills.

The cause of the battle are the tram standards. Apparently the L.P.T.B. owns the tram standards now. On the standards Ilford Council have been in the habit of fixing lights and fire alarm wires, and the L.P.T.B. want to charge Ilford rent for these fixtures. "Very well," say the Ilford Council, "charge your rent and welcome. We will charge you for rates."

I think that is Ilford's reply in effect, though I am no expert on these little complications of municipal government, and it may not be rates Ilford are charging, but something else. If Ilford liked to be really nasty, they could say, I suppose, that they do not want the L.P.T.B.'s nasty old standards in the road at all, and call upon them to pull them up.

* * *

Red Trams.

WRITING of things tramlike, I notice that several of what used to be Ilford's trams have changed colour and are now brightening the streets with their red paint. I have not noticed any change in the uniform of the drivers and conductors yet. Presumably a uniform has been decided upon by the grand moguls of the L.P.T.B. If it has, I hope it will be a shade better than the grey and green affair in which the Ilford drivers and conductors have hitherto been encased. I know of no uniform which looked shabby so quickly as this one, and if I say I have not always wanted to see the back of it, it is merely because the back of it has been incredibly shiny.

* * *

Lambourne End Horror.

ON Sunday I went to Lambourne End, this day appealing to me more than Monday, because the chances were that Lambourne End's pretty country would be less crowded. My reasoning was pleasingly correct. The woods in the early afternoon were very peaceful and very cool, and the deep calm of the sunlit meadows did its best to persuade me that the crowded, fume-laden, horrible High-road and London were hundreds of miles away—as I wish they were in the summer. And then a roundabout planted near the main road started up. I do not think it was carrying passengers, though I could not be sure of that detail.

* * *

Bomb Wanted.

POSSIBLY the owners were giving it a trial run preparatory to enhancing the attractions of Lambourne End with it on the Monday. Whatever it might have been doing, of this I was certain—that there was no more peace in the woods and the fields that afternoon. You were brought back with most unpleasant speed for hundreds of miles away from London to the City of Racket and Smoke.

There are times and places, probably, in which canned jazz falls pleasantly on the ear, but on a Sunday afternoon at Lambourne End it is one of the most provoking disturbances I know. If I had been possessed of a bomb I should have dropped it thoughtfully into the works of that roundabout and considered that I had done a service to humanity.

* * *

Smelly Cranbrook.

I SUPPOSE it would be a mortal sin to say that Cranbrook is smelly, but the fact cannot, it seems, be concealed. Cranbrook is smelly. Not all of Cranbrook, of course, but a section of it between Redcliffe-gardens and Arlington-gardens, in Cranbrook-road. It is very smelly there. Smelly in a nasty, drainy way, so that you hurry past thinking nervously of diphtheria. I don't know how the residents manage about it—perhaps they like their road a little high—but if I were living that way I think I should write a respectful note to the Borough Surveyor about it, and ask him to come along and have a good sniff, and see what he could do about it. The smell has persisted for some weeks, and it gets more noticeable as the days pass by. I am sure it is not a good thing for the town to have Cranbrook so smelly—you might have a fish and chip shop there, and have done with it!

In Memoriam.

EFFORTS are being made in Ilford to perpetuate, by fitting memorials, the memory of two men who lived lives of outstanding usefulness in this town. The first of these will commemorate the work of the late Father Jackson, the former curate at St. Clement's, who became the blind missionary to the blind of Burma. It is hoped that this memorial will take both a sentimental and a practical form.

The organisers propose to place a mural tablet in Rangoon Cathedral, representing Father Jackson, in relief, in Burmese dress, with an appropriate inscription in English and Burmese. And they further hope to establish a Father Jackson Memorial Trust to be held by the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, to provide the whole or part of the stipend of a Missionary Priest-Director of the Mission to the Blind of Burma, who will carry on the work in the spirit of the Founder.

It is certain that many of those who came into personal contact with Father Jackson during the years 1912 to 1916, when he was associated with the work of St. Clement's, will wish to take part in this effort. Canon Ottaway is receiving subscriptions.

* * *

The Late Rev. W. H. Newman.

THE second memorial is to the memory of the late Rev. W. H. Newman, formerly curate at St. Margaret's. This, it is hoped, will take the form of a Chalice to be used in St. Margaret's Church, and of some acceptable gift to the King George Hospital. Mr. S. W. Cattermole, of 201, Coventry-road, is acting as honorary treasurer of this Memorial Fund.

SUICIDE IN FIELD.

Depressed Because He Could Not Work.

A verdict of suicide whilst of unsound mind was returned by the Coroner (Dr. Ambrose) on Thursday, when he investigated the death of Sylvester Hogan, aged 64, of 72, Myrtle-street, Stepney, who was found dead in a field at Chigwell Row.

Rebecca Smith, of 72, Myrtle-street, Stepney, gave evidence of identification, and said that Hogan, who was a labourer, lodged with her. He had suffered from rheumatism, and was very depressed because he could not work. He left the house at 9.45 on July 31, and she next saw his body at the mortuary at Buckhurst Hill.

Robert Gibb, of 8, Hope-cottages, Woodford Bridge, said that at 8.20 a.m. on August 1st, he was going through a field at Miller's-lane, Chigwell Row, when he noticed something lying on the ground which he took to be a workman's coat. However, when he crossed the field again at 10.15, he saw the object still there, and, on going over to it, found that it was the body of a man. There was a bottle by his side.

Dr. Pratt, of Chigwell, said death was due to corrosive poisoning.

DAIRY FIRM SMARTLY FINED.

Selling Milk Without Licence

Fines totalling £10 were imposed on the London Suburban Dairies, Ltd., of 1144a, Green-lane, Beacontree Heath, at Stratford Police Court, on Stratford Police Court, on Wednesday, when they were summoned by the Council for carrying on the trade of a dairyman without being registered.

There were two summonses, in respect of offences committed on June 16th and July 12th.

For Barking Council it was stated that defendants persisted in selling milk within the borough despite being frequently warned that they were carrying on an illegal business. They had not been granted a licence by the Council because they had failed to register the business.

Mr. Robert Steele, secretary to the company, pleaded guilty, and in extenuation said his firm had spent several hundred pounds in adapting premises at Dagenham for the business, and now Dagenham Council refused to grant them a certificate to carry on business at the premises. If Dagenham Council licenced them Barking Council would follow suit.

For Barking Council it was stated that the defendants had had two years in which to get registered.

CONTROL OF SKY ADVERTISING.

Essex Protest Against Wait-and-See Policy.

The wait-and-see policy of the Home Office on matters affecting the public amenities—such as sky writing, dog racing, Sunday cinemas—is condemned in a letter to the "Times" by Mr. Harry Chester, chairman of the Parliamentary Committee of the Essex County Council.

He points out that the Essex County Council inserted in the Bill, now an Act, which they promoted this session in Parliament, a clause empowering them to license and regulate advertising by means of disfigurement of the sky, but they were met by a report from the Home Office advising that local legislation upon the subject should be deferred until experience had been gained of the effectiveness of voluntary control.

(It will be recalled that Mr. W. G. D. Hutchison, the Member for Romford, made a spirited protest against the deletion of this clause when the Bill was under discussion. His speech, which was the subject of an editorial comment, was printed verbatim in the "Recorder" at the time).

Mr. Chester continues, "In recommending a 'wait-and-see' policy the Home Office were following what seems to be the settled practice of Government Departments, and in this connection I refer to the dilatory action of the appropriate Government Department in dealing with the disfigurement of the countryside by hideous petrol pumps. It is common knowledge that no step was taken to control the Sunday opening of cinemas until the practice had become general, at any rate, in London, and a member of the public had to institute legal proceedings to force the hands of the Government. The musk rat has been allowed to be imported and to become a most grievous menace without preventive action being taken by any Government Department, although the danger could have been foreseen and been dealt with before it became serious.

VESTED INTERESTS.

"The Home Office say, 'Wait-and-see,' but the irony of this is that, in another part of their Bill, the county council sought power to license and regulate dog-racing tracks, and when the Bill was before the Select Committee of the House of Lords they produced convincing evidence of annoyance to residents and depreciation of property by dog-racing tracks in more than one district of the county. The President of the National Greyhound Racing Society, however, gave evidence in opposition, and stated that approximately £5,000,000 was invested in dog-racing tracks owned by companies controlled by his society, and the Committee, while stating that the subject called urgently for public legislation, declined to take the responsibility of passing the clauses.

"It seems difficult for a county council to know what course to take. If they foresee that serious public nuisance is threatened and move before it is developed they are met by the Government Departments' 'wait-and-see' policy. On the other hand, when they wait, they are met with opposition by the powerful vested interests which have been allowed to grow up.

"The Essex County Council put up a good fight on the control of sky writing and dog racing and lost, and must now rest in the hope that when sky advertising becomes a serious nuisance the Home Office will take action, but by that time it will probably be found that powerful vested interests have arisen as in the case of dog racing, and that the subject is difficult to deal with."
